

S. Viets Abandon Hue

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — South Vietnamese military units pulled out of Hue Tuesday, abandoning the old imperial capital and its walled palace courtyards to the North Vietnamese onslaught, Western diplomats reported.

Further south, Communist-led forces captured two provincial capitals and drove through to the China Sea, cutting off the northern quarter of South Vietnam from the rest of the country.

Da Nang, a port city where U.S. Marines first landed 10 years ago, is now isolated and reachable only by sea or air.

The diplomats said government units began withdrawing from Hue Monday night, boarding boats for escape down the Perfume River to the sea. Most of the city's 200,000 residents had fled earlier, heading southward for Da Nang.

South Vietnam's deteriorating military condition brought renewed calls for President Nguyen Van Thieu to quit and it was reported in Washington that an additional U.S. aircraft carrier is en route to waters off Indochina. The carrier, with Marine helicopters, would be used to evacuate Americans and others, Pentagon sources said, but they did not rule out the possibility that the choppers might be used to transfer some Vietnamese from refugee-clogged Da Nang.

Da Nang is South Vietnam's second largest city and there were no indications that the Saigon command was planning to abandon it.

Hue became untenable when North Vietnamese troops seized a portion of Highway One that leads to Da Nang, 50 miles south, and closed down the Hue-Phu Bai airport, leaving only the water escape route.

It will be the second time that the North Vietnamese have seized historic Hue, South Vietnam's fourth largest city and national pride. They gained control during the 1968 Tet offensive but were driven out by U.S. Marines and government rangers after weeks of bitter fighting. Months later the bodies of more than 3,000 Hue residents were found in mass graves outside the city, executed by their Communist-led captors.

The fall of Quang Tin and Quang Ngai provinces south of Da Nang were the 10th and 11th of South Vietnam's 44 provinces to be lost. The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong now control about 40 per cent of the country's 68,000 square miles and 15 percent of its population of 20 million.

While civilians streamed south toward Da Nang from Hue, thousands of others headed north toward Da Nang from the provincial capitals of Quang Ngai City and Tam Ky. Quang Ngai City, capital of Quang Ngai province, is 75 miles south of Da Nang and Tam Ky, 35 miles south, is the capital of Quang Tin Province.

Observers estimate that the Communist offensive has created nearly one million refugees.

In other Indochina developments:

—The U.S. airlift to Phnom Penh resumed after a two-day suspension but rebel forces "attacking like ants" overran the key Tuol Leap base that was supposed to guard Phnom Penh airport from rockets. They also attacked a government position 18 miles west of the capital, killing scores of women and children, field reports said.

—The Phnom Penh embassies of Japan, Malaysia, Indonesia and Thailand will close temporarily over the next two weeks in a bid to pressure Cambodian President Lon Nol to quit so peace talks can start with the Communist-led rebels, reliable sources said.

—An opposition group in Saigon urged Thieu to resign because of the deteriorating military situation in South Vietnam. It was the first such call since the North Vietnamese offensive began earlier this month and the first time the largely Buddhist group cited military reasons for Thieu to quit.

The North Vietnamese overran two provincial capitals south of Da Nang and cut South Vietnam's northern quarter off at a point beginning roughly 300 miles northeast of Saigon and running from there west to the Cambodian border.

Associated Press special correspondent Peter Arnett reported from Da Nang that many refugees were fleeing Hue by boat. One motor ferry bringing refugees down the coast capsized in stormy seas Sunday night. First reports said 3,000 refugees were aboard and that all were feared lost. But the Saigon command said later it believed there were fewer than 100 aboard and that 45 survivors had been picked up.

pick up a squadron of big Marine choppers. He said the ship will leave later this week for the western Pacific. It was estimated that the Hancock's voyage from Hawaii to the western Pacific would take about 10 days.

The spokesman did not give the Hancock's ultimate destination, but there were indications the carrier will take up a position off Cambodia.

PSC OKs New Code Of Ethics

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska Public Service Commission members will be paying their own way — instead of allowing regulated utilities to pick up the tab for commissioners' entertainment — under a revised commission Code of Ethics.

Favors commissioners have enjoyed in the past, including fishing trips in Puget Sound, Cornhusker football tickets, Christmas gifts and trips to all-star baseball games and Disneyland, are ruled out in the commission's stiffer, more specific code.

Commissioners voted 5-0 to amend a vaguer code adopted one month ago with the stronger language, borrowed in part from the Judicial Code of Ethics.

'Social Favors' OK

The new code permits commissioners to accept "ordinary social favors," such as a luncheon, and campaign contributions from regulated utilities.

The code states: "A commissioner or employee of the Public Service Commission shall accept no loans or gifts from any person doing business with or appearing before the commission, provided, such prohibition shall not apply to the acceptance of ordinary social favors."

"Ordinary social favor, as used within this code, shall mean items which by their nature are ordinarily and readily returnable in kind; for example, a luncheon, invitation to and attendance at social functions... Ordinary social favor does not include such items as admission to events, memberships to clubs and organizations, the provision for lodging or transportation and other items..."

Commission Chairman Eric Rasmussen of Fairmont, the prime sponsor of the revised code, called the latest revision "a good code" which resolves some of the ambiguities in the old one.

No Code On File

An earlier version was adopted in response to a letter from the State Conflict of Interest Committee which informed commissioners that they did not have a code of ethics on file as required by a 1969 law. Such a code was apparently never filed as a result of an oversight.

Commissioner Duane Gay of Columbus had some misgivings about a section limiting off-the-record communications between commissioners and utilities once a hearing has been opened. The rule is intended to allow the commission to make decisions on rates and services based solely on the evidence appearing in the official record.

'Workability' Questioned

In a written concurring opinion, Gay said, "While I agree wholeheartedly with the principles set out in the code, the ambiguities, vague language and in some instances unreasonable limitations set out (in the section on ex parte communications) leaves me in the position of questioning the workability of the code."

"I recognize the inherent evils in discussing the merits of any case with an interested party, but it should be of prime import the fact that this commission is a fact-finding administrative body. My position is that our time should always be available to any person to discuss all sides of a case."

In a related matter, the Legislature's Conflict of Interest Committee has not yet concluded its secret inquiry into the propriety of the commissioners' acceptance of favors from utilities, a committee spokesman said.

PILE OF RUBBLE ... was U.S. mail facility until tornado thundered into northwest Atlanta.

Tornado Marches Into Atlanta

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A tornado thundered through northwest Atlanta early Monday, killing three persons, injuring at least 50 and leaving a huge industrial area in rubble.

The twister extensively damaged Georgia's $2 million governor's mansion, blowing off the roof and knocking down all the front columns of the elegant structure. The governor's office reported that Gov. George Busbee's son, Jeff, 14, escaped injury when one of the columns crashed into his bedroom.

The governor reportedly was in the shower when the tornado ripped into the mansion, and he shouted a warning to his family. Scores of persons were treated at hospitals and dozens more suffered cuts and bruises when the storm flattened buildings, shattered windows and tumbled cars about like matchsticks.

Mayor Maynard Jackson declared a state of emergency and said he would request federal disaster aid. Some 200 state troopers were called in to prevent looting and relieve traffic congestion, primarily in the more than a mile wide business area most devastated by the twister.

The tornado thundered along a 3 or 4 mile strip around 7:30 a.m. "If the tornado had dipped down like it did an hour later, hundreds of persons would have lost their lives," said a rescue worker searching through rubble for bodies.

At least 30 huge tractor trailers were tumbled upside down or crushed when the twister demolished a U.S. mail terminal. Strips of aluminum from the rigs hung from trees or telephone wires and huge tires were flung about the area.

Authorities estimated at least 60 businesses or warehouses were demolished. Hundreds of cars were buried under the rubble or bricks, furniture, goods, roofing and other debris.

B. F. Monroe, who works in a warehouse adjacent to the terminal, said he ran out of the warehouse when he heard the twister.

"A piece of roof caught me. It threw me about 50 feet," he said. "When I was getting up I saw a Pontiac coming down the street rolling like a matchbox. I saw a woman fall out. It didn't even look like she was hurt."

Seconds later a wind-blown truck crushed the automobile, but the woman escaped. One man was killed when a collapsing wall crushed his car, and a woman was killed at her home. Rescue workers pulled the body of another victim from the wreckage of a warehouse.

The victims were identified as Arthur Harold Sauser, 29, of Doraville, Ga., crushed in his car; Mark Howard, 24, of Atlanta, who was in the warehouse, and Catherine Hunken, about 55, of Atlanta.

The twister spun out of storm clouds that rolled across the metropolitan area in a northeasterly direction. It demolished a shopping area and flipped cars and trucks upside down as it hit a nearby commercial district.

Passover Recalls Jews' Exodus

(EDITOR'S NOTE: For Holy Week this year, The Star asked five local clergymen to prepare brief articles. The first is by Rabbi Mark Bisman of Tifereth Israel Synagogue and deals with the Passover, which is observed this week.)

By RABBI MARK BISMAN
Tifereth Israel Synagogue

At sundown on Wednesday, Jewish communities here in Lincoln and elsewhere will commence their celebration of Passover, Passover commemorates the Exodus from Egypt and the birth of the Jewish people. (Deuteronomy 6:20-25) It is for us very literally a holiday of freedom.

Two well known ways Passover is celebrated illustrate what the holiday means to the Jewish people and its relevance to all men.

For eight days, Jews are asked to refrain from eating the normal kinds of breads and cakes. Instead, they are asked to eat Matzah, a bread baked quickly before the dough can rise. This unleavened bread is to remind us how hastily the enslaved Israelites had to get away when the moment of freedom came. (Exodus 12:39)

But Matzah is also traditionally known as the bread of afflic-tion or the bread of poverty. In eating Matzah, one is to be reminded of those moments of slavery and persecution before one knew freedom. Not to take freedom for granted, means, periodically, to do something out of the ordinary to remind ourselves when we as a people didn't have it and how it felt to attain it.

Rabbi Mark Bisman

For the Jewish people, it is also critical to remember that freedom was achieved with the help of God. Consequently, when anyone is in distress, we may not turn aside. As God helped us to achieve what we could not have gotten on our own, so, too, we must try to help all those who cannot make it by themselves alone. (Deuteronomy 24:17-22)

To taste the Matzah is to re-experience the feelings of being marginal and insignificant to society. The value of the experience is to recommit oneself to fight against inequality and injustice in society, i.e., to help others attain the freedom that one treasures so. (Leviticus 19:33-34)

It is the knowledge and joy of freedom that is the central motif of the Seder, the second well known way Passover is celebrated. Seder means order. The festive family meal served on the first two nights of Passover has a set procedure. Intentionally unusual, each out-of-the-ordinary detail stimulates the child and the adult to ask questions. Judaism believes that rituals are educational opportunities. And more deeply, that a partial way to transmit a commitment to freedom and justice is through the visible family celebration of the first moment when freedom was realized.

To the Jewish people, to be free is to know where one came from. To be free is to know the experiences that have shaped one's life. To be free is to be able to tell one's children about what gives meaning to one's life and to invite them to join him as the next link in a chain of generations committed to teaching its children how to walk with God and to live justly.

The way to treasure freedom is to remember when one didn't have it or to imagine how it must have felt to gain it. To treasure freedom is to learn the lesson of being a stranger. It is to imagine what it might be like to be marginal and expendable so that one might never be guilty of disregarding the divine in any man.

On this Passover, I wish all I could do would be to express what I feel is the universal message of freedom and how Jews try to teach their children to treasure it. But the U.N., the Arab economic boycott, and Egyptian President Sadat's pretensions to moderation seem to be trying again to make the State of Israel seem marginal and expendable. On this Passover, the Jewish people's thoughts will turn to Israel with the prayer that Israel will not again be asked to defend its rights to be free and independent.

City Transportation ...

Department Considered

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The creation of a city department of transportation may be a long way down the road, but city lawmakers hinted Monday that they like the idea and may put Traffic Engineer Bob Holsinger in the driver's seat.

The lawmakers asked the mayor for a report on the proposal.

The council members met Monday with Holsinger and several department heads to mull over the proposal first suggested by Councilmen Steve Cook and Bob Sikya.

Both argue that such a department is needed in Lincoln to handle everything from parking meter revenues to the bus system.

Cook said operations of the traffic engineering division, city parking garages and lots and the Lincoln Transportation System (LTS) should be better coordinated.

Neither Department Needed

He said no one department or staffer is responsible for coordinating the various transportation oriented activities in the city. Better planning also is needed, Cook said.

For instance, whenever LTS decides to put in a new bus route, LTS planners don't have to check with Holsinger on the effect those extra buses will have on the existing street system. Holsinger acknowledged that there is little coordination between his division and LTS.

While several council members said Holsinger would be the most likely chief of the proposed department, Councilman Max Denney wasn't so sure he wanted to create another bureaucracy, which, he said, "will cost the taxpayers more money."

Councilwoman Helen Boosalis said the existing fragmented system may be a "lot more wasteful" than a consolidated system.

Latest Trend

Public Works Director Bob Obering, who could lose the traffic engineering division in the deal, acknowledged that the latest trend is the creation of such departments.

Obering cautioned the lawmakers, however, to make certain that strong liaison is maintained between his department and the traffic engineering section. Otherwise, he predicted the city would be in a mess.

Planning Director Doug Brogren expressed "favorable" reactions to the proposal.

Both department heads cautioned the council against creating a new department and then housing unrelated programs under that roof. For example, they noted that LTS and the city garage have been placed under the directorship of the finance department.

Parking Plan OK'd

In a related action the council endorsed the Downtown Advisory Committee's public parking plan and sent the recommendation on to the mayor for implementation.

DAC recommended that a citywide parking plan for the downtown be created, which would include the operation of city garages, parking meters and parking lots.

Revenues generated from those facilities should be channeled back into the operation of the parking system, DAC said.

DAC also suggested that administration of the system could be placed under the proposed department of transportation.

Campus Spies Unconstitutional

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California Supreme Court ruled Monday that the routine stationing of undercover police agents on college campuses is unconstitutional and a step away from "the censorship of totalitarian regimes."

In a unanimous decision written by Justice Mathew Tobriner, the court said police officers cannot pose as university students merely to compile intelligence dossiers on students and professors for possible future use.

Such surveillance in classrooms and in public and private university meetings is "government snooping in the extreme," the court said.

It held that unless that form of intelligence gathering is needed to further a compelling government interest, it violates state and federal guarantees of freedom of speech and California's constitutional freedom of privacy.

The court said that under the privacy amendment such police activity can be permitted only if a compelling interest is shown and that the "burden of justification is very heavy indeed."

March Lion Leaps Twice

By United Press International
Violent weather staged a twin-bill early spring spectacular Monday.

Tornadoes and destructive windstorms slashed at eight states from the Mississippi valley to the Atlantic seaboard and blizzard snows stranded thousands of motorists in the upper Midwest.

The storms, striking with spring only three days old, killed at least five persons and injured more than 200. More than 2,000 persons were marooned by blizzard snows hiked along by winds up to 100 miles an hour.

Raging snow storms, sometimes at blizzard intensity, swept the Dakotas, Minnesota and northwestern Wisconsin. Winds stacked 6- to 8-foot-high snow drifts that blocked hundreds of roads and highways and drove motorists to roadside havens.

More than 1,000 motorists were stranded along Interstate 35 in northern Minnesota. The city of Duluth was snowed in — its businesses closed, its traffic stalled.

Warren Hempstead, Red Cross first aid chairman in Cass City, Minn., assisted in a childbirth and reported the mother and child doing fine.

A man was crushed to death at St. Louis, Mo., as winds gusting up to 50 miles per hour toppled a tree onto his car. Lightning killed a 14-year-old boy in Bettendorf, Iowa, as he flew a kite in a thunderstorm.

A 2-year-old Massachusetts boy died and his parents were feared drowned when their station wagon went out of control on an icy, wind-swept Interstate highway bridge in Des Moines, Iowa, and plunged into the Des Moines River.

At least 22 persons were injured when a gust of wind blew a church bus off Interstate 69 and overturned the vehicle near Marshall, Mich., as a Sunday school class returned to Kalamazoo from a service in Germantown, Ohio.

Twisters hopped across the lower Midwest and South from Missouri to North Carolina and Virginia. The most damaging cut went through Atlanta.

Drifts were reported 8 feet deep at Gettysburg, S.D., causing a police communications officer to gasp: "I couldn't believe it." There was 35 inches of snow at Deadwood and 30 inches at Lead in the Black Hills.

A snowplow driver gave up trying to clear a parking lot at the state capitol in Pierre, S.D. "The wind blows it back as fast as I can clear it," he muttered.

"It's better than nothing," one traveler said when he was forced to bunk in the jail at Sauk Centre, Minn.

Mrs. Terry Schott, who with her husband was forced off Interstate 94 at Sauk Centre, said:

"My husband was driving with one hand on the wheel and his head out the window trying to see. It was really bad."

Civil defense workers evacuated 30 families from Rock River lowlands at Rockford, Ill., and authorities said more than 200 families were affected by the high waters.

Dozens of families were moved from their homes in southeastern Wisconsin. At Glendale, a Milwaukee suburb, Boy Scouts helped other volunteers fill sandbags.

Utility Subsidy Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton proposed Monday that the federal government subsidize the electric power industry on a temporary basis.

Morton, who is chairman of President Ford's cabinet-level Energy Policy Council, said the administration was considering a variety of subsidy proposals.

His remarks were made in a speech prepared for the Southeastern Electric Exchange in Boca Raton, Fla., and released here.

Morton said the proposals include: "Loan guarantees and other government financing mechanisms; additional changes in the tax treatment of utility stock dividends; rebates on oil taxes and import fees; and cash rebates of unused investment tax credits."

Morton urged early congressional action on measures previously proposed by President Ford to stimulate power plant construction.

"I can promise you early decisions on further measures we have under consideration," he added.

New York Times News Summary

Deficit Potential Up

Washington — Administration officials said the potential budget deficit for fiscal year 1976 had reached the $100 billion level and was still rising under the tax reduction and spending proposals being considered by Congress. The $100 billion would be nearly twice the $51.9 billion deficit projected by President Ford in his budget message two months ago.

Bill Expected Tuesday

Washington — The joint Senate-House conference committee closed its doors to the press and the public Monday and began work in secret on the final version of the tax bill. The conferees were hoping and planning to finish the entire job by late Tuesday.

Attack Possible

New York — North Vietnam's successes are expected to encourage Hanoi to mount a major attack on Saigon this year before the rains. Spectacular Communist progress in the north, U.S. sources say, has obscured a solid position established in south where the northern command can now pick the time and place for a final assault. There is no lack of resolution on the part of the South Vietnamese but sources say helicopters and heavy artillery are in short supply.

Nation To Be Socialist

Washington — Capt. Joao Tomaz Rosa, a leading member of Portugal's ruling Armed Forces Movement, said Monday his country would travel "a socialist path," but would never become Communist or a dependency of the Soviet Union. "There is absolutely no possibility of Portugal becoming a Soviet base," Rosa said.

Italy Trip Refused

Moscow — The dissident nuclear physicist Andrei D. Sakharov reported Monday that Soviet authorities have refused to let his wife travel to Italy for critical eye treatment. He added that she's expected to go blind within months.

German Talks Open

Philippines Get Loan

Manila — Pursuing a program to help provide electricity and roads for Philippine countryside, the United States government extended to the Philippines Monday a loan for $35 million at concessional terms.

Saxbe Sees Gap

New Delhi — Ambassador William Saxbe says a mature relationship between India and the United States is not possible as long as the Indians fail to appreciate realities first. He says even after 27 years of efforts by successive ambassadors a gap is there.

Stock Market Falls

New York — The New York stock market had its largest loss in more than four months as prices tumbled in reaction to the breakdown of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's negotiations for a Middle East peace settlement. The selloff in accelerated trading affected almost the entire market except for gold mining issues, which generally run against the market trend.

Court To Hear Seniority Challenge

Washington (UPI) — The Supreme Court Monday agreed to consider the sensitive issue of whether workers must give up some of their seniority to make up for past discrimination.

The issue often boils down to whether white workers, high on the seniority ladder, must sometimes be laid off before minority employees so that racial employment balance can be maintained.

Justice William O. Douglas, 76, returned to the bench Monday after suffering a stroke New Year's Eve. He had to be wheeled to his position beside Chief Justice Warren E. Burger because of partial paralysis.

The seniority case will be heard next term. The challenge was brought by the NAACP Legal Defense Fund, which said strict seniority systems often result in minorities being the last hired and the first fired.

The NAACP brought suit against an Atlanta trucking firm which refused to hire blacks as over-the-road drivers until 1970. The district court granted some black employees back pay for the past discrimination, but refused to move them up the seniority list.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed the order. It said the 1964 civil rights act specifically forbids interference in "color blind" seniority systems.

The NAACP, in asking for high court review, said industry layoffs are commonplace, and that by failing to move minorities who suffered past employment discrimination up the seniority ladder, they would not be given full employment rights.

In other action, the court:

—Agreed to decide whether a grand jury witness who may subsequently be indicted has a right to remain silent.

—Declined to rule on the constitutionality of a New Orleans judge's order setting strict limits on press coverage of a murder trial. The court said the case no longer presents a controversy, apparently because the trial is over and Justice Lewis F. Powell permitted full press coverage.

—Cleared the way for trial of Abbott Laboratories on charges it shipped adulterated drugs to hospitals which may have caused serious illness and death.

U.S. Admiral, Russian Daughter Meet

ORANGE PARK, Fla. (AP) — Russian actress Victoria Fyodorova has met with her 77-year-old father, a retired U.S. Navy admiral whom she had never seen, and then talked with her mother in Moscow from a Florida hideaway.

Victoria's father, Jackson R. Tate, also chatted briefly with his World War II sweetheart, Zoya Fyodorova, 66.

"They said they were delighted to be with each other," the mother told a reporter in Moscow on Monday. "But he said he was ill with a weak heart and did not want a lot of excitement."

A college professor in Connecticut recently put the Fyodorovas in touch with Tate, and Victoria launched a four-month campaign for official permission to come see her father.

Israel Declared Ready For War

By The Associated Press
Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin won overwhelming backing from parliament Monday for his tough stand in the shattered Mideast peace talks. He declared that Israel is ready for war if necessary.

Rabin told the hushed Knesset that Israel is "alert to the peril" of renewed fighting with its Arab neighbors but "it is wrong to treat war as a fatal and inevitable necessity."

The legislators then voted approval 92-4, with six abstentions, of a resolution blaming Egypt for the collapse Saturday of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's effort to mediate a second-stage disengagement of the belligerents. The opposition came from splinter left-wing parties.

Rabin told parliament in a policy statement: "There is no point in trying to strike fear into us. Israel is aware of the dangers, it is ready, and it has the strength it needs." He vowed that Israel would observe its existing cease-fire agreements with the Arabs, but only "on a mutual basis."

Manahem Begin, leader of Israel's right-wing Likud group and frequent critic of the ruling Labor coalition, praised Rabin's rejection of any additional withdrawals of Israeli troops from occupied territory without a no-war pledge from Egypt. One concession would lead to another, he told parliament, and "finally, Jerusalem and every other city in Israel would have been in the range of enemy guns, just like — God forbid — Phnom Penh."

In Cairo, Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy told a meeting of Arab foreign ministers, "It is now clear we must unite in our efforts against Israel because it submitted unreasonable demands." His speech contained no surprises, as he repeated his stand that Kissinger's step-by-step diplomacy is now dead and the Arabs must unite for a reconvening of the Geneva conference.

Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam, who had been critical of Egypt's reliance on Kissinger, said: "We are happy that he has failed. The situation in the Middle East is normal again. Let us now face the future as one solid united front."

Syria announced Monday it had conducted military maneuvers with live ammunition to practice "storming enemy defense lines and striking deep into enemy territory in light of the lessons learned in the October (1973) war."

Israeli troops patrolled their country's borders in a state of alert, and military sources in Tel Aviv said Egypt had increased its military readiness during the 16 days Kissinger shuttled between Egypt and Israel in search of a new Sifai accord.

Kissinger flew home Sunday, saying he had run into "irreconcilable" differences between Israel and Egypt over the terms of an Israeli withdrawal in the Sinai desert.

The Soviet Union and France issued a joint communique late Monday saying only Israeli withdrawal from all Arab territories occupied in the 1967 war and the creation of a Palestinian homeland will assure establishment of a "just and durable peace in the Middle East." It also said the right of independent existence by all states in the area must be "solidly guaranteed," a reference to Israel.

The communique was published after an official visit to the Soviet Union by French Premier Jacques Chirac.

According To Kissinger: U.S. Reassessment 'Not Question Of Ending Aid'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Monday that a reassessment of U.S. policy in the Middle East "is not a question of cutting off any aid."

President Ford earlier told congressional leaders that the United States is beginning a reassessment of Middle East policy in the wake of a breakdown in Kissinger's peace negotiations. Ford also expressed hope that Kissinger's step-by-step diplomacy may yet resume.

This led to speculation that the U.S. policy of supporting Israel with military aid might be under review.

Kissinger said, "Reassessment means that we are facing a new situation of some peril."

He said it is "inevitable in such a situation that the President order a review to see what is the best policy for the United States to follow."

"It is not a question of cutting off any aid," Kissinger responded to a newsman's question about aid to Israel.

"Aid will be determined in relation to the overall policy," Kissinger spoke to newsmen after an afternoon briefing to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on the breakdown in his "step by step" negotiation effort.

"We are not engaged in any punitive actions," he said.

Earlier, 21 congressional leaders from both parties met with Ford and Kissinger at the White House and gave their unanimous support to U.S. Middle East policy and Kissinger's peace-making efforts.

$3.7 Billion Foreign Aid Bill Passed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A compromise $3.7 billion foreign aid appropriation bill containing more than $1 billion for the Middle East was approved by Congress Monday and sent to President Ford.

The bill passed the House by a narrow 8-vote margin, 193 to 185, and then the Senate by voice vote with only a few senators present.

The bill was cut $2.3 billion below administration requests for the fiscal year ending June 30, the biggest cut in the history of the program.

The Mideast aid includes $300 million military credit sales and $324.5 million reconstruction money for Israel, $250 million reconstruction aid for Egypt, $77 million for Jordan and a $100 million contingency fund for Palestinian and other projects.

The bill also includes $440 million reconstruction money for war-torn Indochina but no military aid for either Cambodia or South Vietnam.

The $3.7 billion includes $2.8 billion for economic and military aid and $844 million for related programs, including the Peace Corps and three international development banks.

Three Vote No

Flirtation Worries The West

Diplomatic sources said British Ambassador Nigel Trench called on President Francisco da Costa Gomes and Foreign Minister Mario Soares to express his government's worry.

The sources said other members of the 15-nation North Atlantic Treaty Organization were preparing to follow the lead of Britain, Portugal's oldest ally.

Meanwhile, a government spokesman said Premier Vasco Goncalves had formed a new cabinet that was expected to be announced within 24 hours. He did not reveal the makeup of the cabinet, but political sources have forecast that there will be increased Communist influence among the civilian members. Military men, however, are expected to continue to dominate the government.

Portugal, a member of NATO, occupies a strategic position along the gateway to the Mediterranean and the middle Atlantic sea lanes. Israel Declared Ready For War

By The Associated Press

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin won overwhelming backing from parliament Monday for his tough stand in the shattered Mideast peace talks. He declared that Israel is ready for war if necessary.

Rabin told the hushed Knesset that Israel is "alert to the peril" of renewed fighting with its Arab neighbors but "it is wrong to treat war as a fatal and inevitable necessity."

The legislators then voted approval 92-4, with six abstentions, of a resolution blaming Egypt for the collapse Saturday of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's effort to mediate a second-stage disengagement of the belligerents. The opposition came from splinter left-wing parties.

Rabin told parliament in a policy statement: "There is no point in trying to strike fear into us. Israel is aware of the dangers, it is ready, and it has the strength it needs." He vowed that Israel would observe its existing cease-fire agreements with the Arabs, but only "on a mutual basis."

Manahem Begin, leader of Israel's right-wing Likud group and coalition critic of the ruling Labor coalition, praised Rabin's rejection of any additional withdrawals of Israeli troops from occupied territory without a no-war pledge from Egypt. One concession would lead to another, he told parliament, and "finally, Jerusalem and every other city in Israel would have been in the range of enemy guns, just like — God forbid — Phnom Penh."

In Cairo, Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy told a meeting of Arab foreign ministers, "It is now clear we must unite in our efforts against Israel because it submitted unreasonable demands." His speech contained no surprises, as he repeated his stand that Kissinger's step-by-step diplomacy is now dead and the Arabs must unite for a reconvening of the Geneva conference.

Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam, who had been critical of Egypt's reliance on Kissinger, said: "We are happy that he has failed. The situation in the Middle East is normal again. Let us now face the future as one solid united front."

Syria announced Monday it had conducted military maneuvers with live ammunition to practice "storming enemy defense lines and striking deep into enemy territory in light of the lessons learned in the October (1973) war."

Israeli troops patrolled their country's borders in a state of alert, and military sources in Tel Aviv said Egypt had increased its military readiness during the 16 days Kissinger shuttled between Egypt and Israel in search of a new Sifai accord.

Kissinger flew home Sunday, saying he had run into "irreconcilable" differences between Israel and Egypt over the terms of an Israeli withdrawal in the Sinai desert.

The Soviet Union and France issued a joint communique late Monday saying only Israeli withdrawal from all Arab territories occupied in the 1967 war and the creation of a Palestinian homeland will assure establishment of a "just and durable peace in the Middle East." It also said the right of independent existence by all states in the area must be "solidly guaranteed," a reference to Israel.

The communique was published after an official visit to the Soviet Union by French Premier Jacques Chirac.

According To Kissinger: U.S. Reassessment 'Not Question Of Ending Aid'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Monday that a reassessment of U.S. policy in the Middle East "is not a question of cutting off any aid."

President Ford earlier told congressional leaders that the United States is beginning a reassessment of Middle East policy in the wake of a breakdown in Kissinger's peace negotiations. Ford also expressed hope that Kissinger's step-by-step diplomacy may yet resume.

This led to speculation that the U.S. policy of supporting Israel with military aid might be under review.

Kissinger said: "Reassessment means that we are facing a new situation of some peril."

He said it is "inevitable in such a situation that the President order a review to see what is the best policy for the United States to follow."

"It is not a question of cutting off any aid," Kissinger responded to a newsman's question about aid to Israel.

"Aid will be determined in relation to the overall policy," Kissinger spoke to newsmen after an afternoon briefing to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on the breakdown in his "step by step" negotiation effort.

"We are not engaged in any punitive actions," he said.

Earlier, 21 congressional leaders from both parties met with Ford and Kissinger at the White House and gave their unanimous support to U.S. Middle East policy and Kissinger's peace-making efforts.

$3.7 Billion Foreign Aid Bill Passed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A compromise $3.7 billion foreign aid appropriation bill containing more than $1 billion for the Middle East was approved by Congress Monday and sent to President Ford.

The bill passed the House by a narrow 8-vote margin, 193 to 185, and then the Senate by voice vote with only a few senators present.

The bill was cut $2.3 billion below administration requests for the fiscal year ending June 30, the biggest cut in the history of the program.

The Mideast aid includes $300 million military credit sales and $324.5 million reconstruction money for Israel, $250 million reconstruction aid for Egypt, $77 million for Jordan and a $100 million contingency fund for Palestinian and other projects.

The bill also includes $440 million reconstruction money for wartorn Indochina but no military aid for either Cambodia or South Vietnam.

The $3.7 billion includes $2.8 billion for economic and military aid and $844 million for related programs, including the Peace Corps and three international development banks.

Three Vote No

Washington (AP) — Nebraska's three Republican representatives, Charles Thone, John McCollister and Virginia Smith, all voted against the bill appropriating $3.7 billion for foreign aid.

Abducted Ambassador Said 'Calm'

Djibouti, Afars & Issas Territory (AP) — Jean Geury, the kidnapped French ambassador to the Somali republic, was reported "very calm" Monday as negotiations continued over his captors' demand that France release two jailed comrades and pay a $100,000 ransom in gold, reports from Mogadishu, the Somali capital, said.

Flirtation Worries The West

Diplomatic sources said British Ambassador Nigel Trench called on President Francisco da Costa Gomes and Foreign Minister Mario Soares to express his government's worry.

The sources said other members of the 15-nation North Atlantic Treaty Organization were preparing to follow the lead of Britain, Portugal's oldest ally.

Meanwhile, a government spokesman said Premier Vasco Gonçalves had formed a new cabinet that was expected to be announced within 24 hours. He did not reveal the makeup of the cabinet, but political sources have forecast that there will be increased Communist influence among the civilian members. Military men, however, are expected to continue to dominate the government.

Times Tough For Henry, Too

Henry Kissinger has fallen on hard times.

He returned this weekend from his umpteenth trip to the Middle East on the most difficult and delicate of missions emptyhanded. Apparently at the present time there are no common grounds upon which the Arabs and Israelis can meet and agree. Protracted discussions in Geneva are next, unless there is a dramatic and immediate turnaround in attitudes in Tel Aviv and Cairo and Damascus. And there, in Geneva, the Soviets will be only too glad to exert their influence on any future settlement.

The North Vietnamese have mounted a major offensive, have taken over control of more of the land and population of South Vietnam and there is talk in Washington that because of the new assaults from the north the Paris peace accords reached in 1973 should be voided.

Kissinger's standing with Congress and with a once worshipful media has also declined slowly but steadily over the past two years, partly because of the secretary's arrogance and less than candid responses to questions about his part in plugging administration leaks and partly because his policies have come under serious questioning by a growing number of critics.

Even the rapprochement with China, which he molded, is cooling; at least relations are not improving and have fallen off from the 1972 high.

Clearly, the glitter is rubbing off Super K.

But his swimming against the current right now does not or should not diminish his stature or make his prior accomplishments seem any less remarkable.

Without Kissinger's efforts in the Middle East over the past months and years, that area would not be closer to peace but closer to war and perhaps in flames again. The Paris accords, for which Kissinger shared the Nobel Peace Prize, set up a framework for peaceful settlement, provided for the exchange of prisoners of war and brought American forces home from Indochina. There is little more one man could do to reverse the tide in Southeast Asia. The fact that the house of cards has fallen apart should not make Kissinger or the Nobel committee feel guilty or unworthy. Without the Nixon-Kissinger initiative towards China, would this nation be any better off? Of course not. When the internal situation in China stabilizes, as it now appears to be doing, and when the U.S. makes the hard decision on what it will do regarding Taiwan, relations with the Peoples Republic of China should progress past the ping-pong, visiting dignitary stage. It will take time. But the initiative was a milestone. That is something the Shadow of San Clemente and the harried international diplomat can point to with pride.

If Kissinger is to be faulted it should be for his autocratic nature and duplicitous tendencies. And for the fact that he has a somewhat narrow focus at times. While a whiz kid in geopolitics, much of the time he seems to be little more than disinterested in the broad questions of resources and food management and world economics. And perhaps he harbors too strong a belief that the world order, the tenuous balance, can only be preserved by pitting muscle against muscle. In that he is only a creature of his age.

In all, however, he is still a remarkable public servant and an American resource from which the international community has benefitted.

Times are tough. His magic isn't working. The wand is waved and Poof! there are no miracles. He's married now and belly dancers don't sit in his lap. Starlets do not hang on his arm. The Nobel committee might have second thoughts. There are more than a few people who wish he would go back to Harvard and there are some at Harvard who don't want him back.

But hang in there, Henry. Although you can't win 'em all, you've won more than your share.

Shah Of Iran Oil King

By C. L. SULZBERGER
TEHERAN, Iran — One of the world's acknowledged experts on petroleum is Shah Mohammed Riza Pahlavi of Iran, whose country is the second greatest supplier of liquid energy and who unquestionably makes the most effective self-development use of accruing profits. But the Shah sees a definite time limit to oil economies. He complains that the international community refuses to face facts.

"World petroleum supplies will be finished within fifty years at most," he insists. "And yet you in America and elsewhere have 400 to 500 years' worth of coal supplies. I keep telling you all to use it — not U.S."

He thinks Henry Kissinger is on the right track when he argues in favor of a minimum price level below which oil's value should not be allowed to fall, thus insuring exploitation of other costlier energy sources. The only trouble with the Kissinger plan, for the Shah, is that it doesn't go far enough.

"As atomic power enters increasingly into operation, its cost in terms of investment and operation will be immensely higher than fossil fuels," he says. "We must calculate this in reckoning future prices. Don't forget that cheap oil prevents the development of other energy sources. Kissinger's idea simply doesn't go far enough. The floor should be higher."

Despite growing debate on the issue, the Shah firmly believes oil prices in international markets should be fixed in U.S. dollars although the amount charged must be adjusted to meet intensified inflation. Moreover, he adds: "The dollar will strengthen from its present levels and by normal means. This is inevitable."

"Right now a certain de facto devaluation suits you by facilitating your exports. But you have to buy as well as sell abroad; and you have to pay more for your imports right now. Anyway, you must remember that foreigners take your exports primarily on the basis of their quality, not price."

As the temporary world shortage of oil has eased and the Suez Canal is on the verge of reopening, the Shah thinks the supertanker age is ending for most markets except Japan and the United States. And supertankers can only be practical in the latter if the U.S. builds "seaslands" like Iran or offshore pipelines through which discharging oil can be pumped inland. Europe can revert to ordinary tankers as soon as the Suez Canal is deepened, as planned.

The Shah deems it possible Iran will be operating at a deficit if it maintains its present foreign aid program. He hopes to avoid this choice. But if the recession in industrial lands eases and more factories resume functioning, the demand for petroleum will again increase.

But this country's present form of oil economy cannot continue and, like other lands able to afford it, Iran is purchasing nuclear power plants for future energy. It hopes to husband oil supplies to fabricate more profitable petrochemicals.

Right now Iran is floating in almost as much money as it is in black gold. The Shah estimates hard currency reserves at between $5 billion and $7 billion, which "gives us much prestige in the world monetary system. But we probably can't keep the figure that high because of development costs and a decline — at least temporarily — in probable petroleum income."

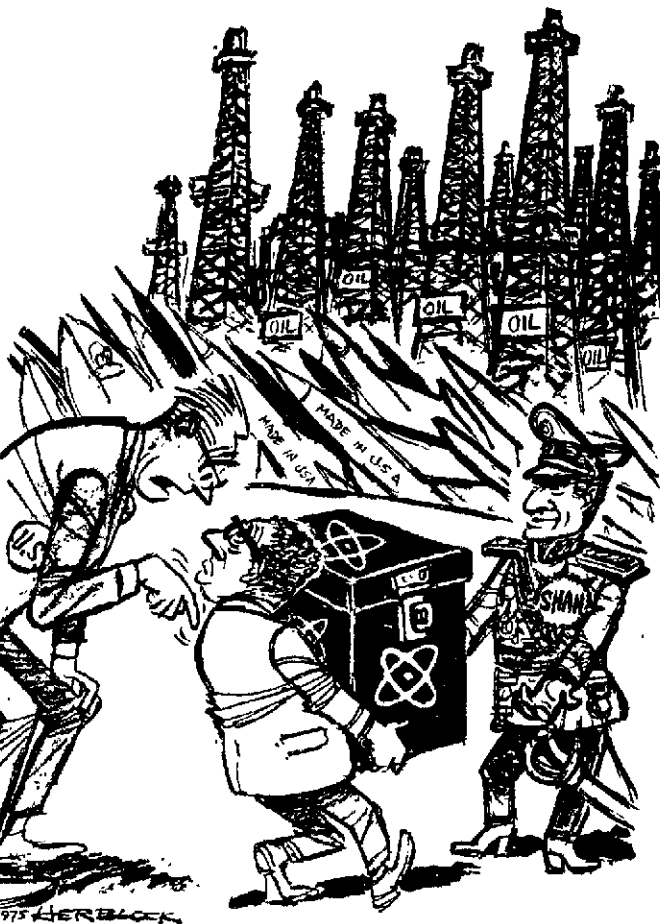

He acknowledges that funds already at hand or anticipated give Iran a useful opportunity for wise investment abroad. "We aren't interested — like some lands — in just putting money into real estate," he says. "Our program foresees putting large sums into serious things — like steel, electronics or petrochemicals."

"It's not just a question of making profits. We wish to learn. We want to discover the best way to build our country. We'll go into things, for example, like Pan American Airlines. But there we are still awaiting approval from your Civil Aeronautics Board. We don't want to control any foreign industries. We never hope to control them. And we only want to go into such arrangements abroad with the agreement — and the welcome — of the host country.

"As for our own petroleum, we don't use it for political purposes, embargoes, pressures. When we fill up a tanker at an oil terminal, we don't care where it goes — once we are paid. Thus we have not given any special assurance to anyone that Iranian oil would be made available to Israel if it returns the Sinai wells to Egypt in a further disengagement. No such assurances are necessary. Everyone knows our policy."

"Explain Slowly — What Does He Need All Those Weapons For, And Why Does He Need Nuclear Reactors?"

Pay Hike For Senators

Legislative salaries are still an issue and we have detected an upswing in sentiment across the state for some sort of hike in pay for Nebraska lawmakers. Not a groundswell, mind you, but an inkling that the idea may be more palatable.

Every recent proposal for a legislative salary hike has been batted down by the electorate. We think voters recognize, deep down, that the senators are underpaid, but we suppose that when voters get into the privacy of the booth and read that pay proposal on the ballot, they convince themselves they shouldn't raise pay for people who spend their tax money. It's one of those gut feeling things that reasonable argument has a hard time conquering. But there have been signs recently that the attitude may be softening.

BOB GREENE

To Utopia By Train

TREMONT, Ind. — Thoughts on getting out of town:

Maybe it's the sense of winter's ending, or maybe it comes from a more personal changing of the season. Whatever, you find yourself doing it again: getting on a train and riding it out of Chicago and renting a room for the night in some town where you don't know anyone and they don't know you, and that's the plan.

You can still do it, although it seems that before too long the railroads will all be gone, even the few escape routes that are left, and then the road will be made up only of freeway exits, and part of the random feel of picking a stop by instinct will be dead. But it is still worthy of a try, and for some reason you are willing to try it more and more often.

To watch the city disappear mile by mile is a luxury whose appeal is made stronger by its unexpected nature; it shouldn't feel so good. But it does, and the feeling is heightened by the thought that no one knows where you will end up, not even yourself, and so there will be no telephones to ring you awake, no voices to hail you on the street.

The others on the train are all going somewhere, but you are only going away, and that can be the truest vacation of all. The time factor does not count. You can leave in the afternoon and be back by the next noon, and no one will know that you were even gone. If it is important enough to you, hours and minutes have nothing to do with it.

If you tell yourself that you are looking for the country, you will be disappointed, because that is hard to find any more. There are too many fast-food restaurants, and too many motels with national names you have seen advertised on your television, and if you are searching for a place that has not been touched by the urbanization of America, your search may take longer than the time that you have stolen for yourself. But if you accept that, and tell yourself that all you want is a smaller place in which to keep company with yourself, then it can be all right.

Because if you look, you can still find that there are places that can help. You can still find a real town square to walk around, with the police station and the town hall and the dinner restaurant all within sight of one another. You can still find a community movie theater that has one show each night, and devotes the first 10 minutes on the screen to slides advertising for local merchants who know that it is a sure way to reach their people. You can walk in a neighborhood where you will see four cars in the course of an hour.

Lincolnite Bill Harris has urged the Legislature's Constitutional Revision Committee to consider a proposal which would boost legislative salaries to $1,200 a month during the months the Unicameral is in session and leave the salary rate at the present $400 month when the Legislature is not in session.

"If this issue is put before the voters in this form, I feel that they would understand more clearly the purpose of an increase in salary for the state's representatives," Harris wrote the committee.

This is an interesting proposal surely due serious consideration by the Legislature. It is reasonable enough and should be attractive enough to be convincing.

And if you don't want to, you won't hear the sound of your own voice. You can walk all evening, or just sit and watch this part of the world, and never be compelled to make a conversation or look to see who else is around. You may surprise yourself when 10 o'clock comes and you don't even have the urge to turn on the news, and you don't care what you may have missed.

It can be so good that you find yourself not wanting to go to sleep, even though there is nothing better to do. You go back to your room and sit by the window with your legs draped over a chair, one light burning on the table, and you look out at the night and lose track of time. The hours go by without a sound, and you let them.

In the morning you go outside early, and watch the highway before breakfast. You eat by yourself and don't hurry, and you don't look at your watch to see if you're making anyone else. Check their watches in some office in Chicago.

And when you leave, it should be with the understanding that you won't be back, not to the place you have been this time. Because if you're out to grab a moment for yourself, you can't do it in a place you've ever seen, or on a road you've ever walked. You've got to be selfish enough not to let your own memories intrude.

When you take the train back to Chicago, there is no reason to let anyone know where you have been, or what you have done, or why. There should be a part of your life that is allowed to remain your own. You shouldn't share it, or it will lose whatever there was in it for you. You should never put it in a newspaper

Protect and Preserve the Doves

Lincoln, Neb.
It is my purpose to express opposition to the Legislative Bill 142 and make the plea to protect and preserve the mourning dove.

One may point out that the people are aware and concerned, specifically members of the federal and Nebraska wildlife associations and the Nebraska Dove Protective Society, supported by the President and Supreme Court of the United States who have acted to preserve the ecology and protect the wilderness areas and the wildlife, birds and other creatures, inhabitants thereof.

As an example, the Everglades of Florida, Aransas Pass, Texas, and our own state of Nebraska wildlife sanctuaries. The purpose is protecting the environment from spoilation and keeping "America the Beautiful".

There is much wanton and senseless slaughter of humankind and wildlife that is so appalling throughout our land. Therefore let us preserve and tenaciously cling to that which is good. Let us protect and preserve the dove as a song bird, a bird that is beautiful, a harbinger of good will, not evil, not a predator but a benefactor of all mankind.

Thus the members of the Legislature, our senators, chosen to represent the people, sirs as gentlemen, may aspire and become God's noblemen if they act on the instincts of their better nature and vote to protect and preserve the mourning dove as a song bird, not as a hunter's target.

In behalf of the citizens of our great state of Nebraska, I earnestly make the plea — let us do for ourselves, not what others do. "Keep the doves flying, not bullets".

Councilman Causes Concern

Lincoln, Neb.
City Councilman W. Richard Baker was awarded a contract to operate a pharmacy in the city-owned Physicians Building adjacent to Lincoln General Hospital on April 26, 1973.

Baker, one year later, resigned from the Lincoln General Hospital Board of Trustees and the Lincoln Hospital Association Board of Trustees because, he said, regarding this award, he still was "getting a little staid."

The Star ("Has Baker Gone Far Enough" — May 28, 1974) stated, "If Baker wants to avoid any suspicion of conflict of interest regarding hospital matters, perhaps he should resign from the Council or terminate his contract to run the pharmacy." Baker has done neither and filed for re-election on Thursday, March 13, 1975.

I ask Mr. Baker: What have you done to show the people of Lincoln that they should still not be concerned about this situation?

Failure on the part of Mr. Baker to adequately allay this concern should bring voters of Lincoln to ask: Is this the kind of city councilman we want for four more years?

Just a Local Matter?

Blair, Neb.
What mahner of dirty partisan politics is involved with the Hruska-Curtis duo, in their delaying tactics connected with letting East Nebr. Metro Tech. gain possession of Ft. Omaha as a vocational school facility? Could this be the beginning of some of the devious partisan political chicanery we can expect, connected with the 1976 race for U.S. senator? Is Unicameral Senator Marvel another of the principals in this Watergate-type thing? Will we never learn! Does politics simply have to be a dirty game?

Tweddle-dum (Mr. Curtis) doesn't even change his colorful socks, shirts and ties without first consulting about same with "Tweddle-dee," Mr. Hruska. So this has to be something more than just a local matter as suggested by Mr. Hruska's office in Wash. D.C.

Ms. Spring Confides

WASHINGTON — Spring came to Washington this week, right smack on time. It was soft and warm, non-political and seasonally adjusted, providing generous rebates and non-contributory benefits for one and all alike. Ah, spring!

It crept up the Potomac from the south past Mount Vernon, dropped off a drift of daffodils in Lady Bird Johnson Park, shook the yellow willows on the upstairs porch of the Kennedy Center, spread a green carpet down Capitol Hill and across the White House lawn, and opened up the pink buds on the tulip magnolias at the Treasury and Interior Departments.

Everything was different only a few short days ago. The whole town was the color of wet rags. The streets were torn up with subway construction. The President and the Congress were fussing over taxes and energy, and almost everybody was deluged by monuments of unread books, articles and speeches on the insoluble perplexities of the human race. O Xerox, where is thy pity?

But then this funny thing happened. The star magnolia at the northwest gate of the White House produced its identity card and burst into bloom. The forsythia and japonica broke out in the middle of the lawn, and the Congress of the United States, having settle nothing, went home for an undeserved Easter vacation.

In a news conference in the White House rose garden, Spring explained that she came a little early this year because everybody seemed a little gloomy. She agreed to answer questions, with Ron Nessen presiding:

Question—What are we to do about the Gross National Product?

Answer — Enjoy it! The production of flowers this year will be up 14.3%, dogwood trees up 12%, pretty girls up 4%, and crabgrass will be down 8%.

Q — How do you account for the decline in crabgrass?

A — Less pollution since Watergate. The atmosphere is better, the air and water cleaner, and picnics will be big this year.

Q — How do you account for that?

A — They're cheaper than restaurants. Also, in 87.3% of the picnics tested by the Pure Food and Drug Administration, picnic food ranges from the unspeakable to the inedible. So people eat less, look better and are healthier.

Q — Are you worried about the unemployment?

A — Yes, but total unemployment is not so bad as the division of employment. All the pessimists are working overtime and all the optimists have been laid off. This is hurting the production of laughter. Even the world supply and inventory of giggles has been declining steadily since fiscal year 1960.

Q — What remedies do you have in mind?

A — This is my busy season and politics is not my game but it seems to me that a few weeks of total silence, say between now and the first of May, when Henry gets back, might be helpful: no speeches, no newspapers, no news conferences or broadcasts, no predictions of the coming Dark Age. If everybody just had time to read a book or take a walk...

Q — Be honest with us, Ms. Spring: Don't you have a conflict of interest here? Aren't you in the flowers and happiness racket?

A — I am a registered lobbyist, yes, but I'm a non-profit, tax-free institution. I don't sell flowers, but give them free during a carefully regulated period of the year.

Q — Why are you so kindly to Washington — almost unfair with all these flowering shrubs, willows along reflecting pools, gleaming streams and rivers?

A — Well, actually, I do most of my work in secret places in the valleys and mountains where nobody goes except Mr. Justice Douglas, but I do rather show off here in Washington. I have to admit that. It leads such a miserable life all winter, fussing with everything, analyzing everything, and getting into such dreadful muddles. It needs more help than most places. Besides, I have a line into the appropriations committees. They provide the best fertilizer, which is money, and the setting's not bad.

Q — Do you ever get weary of trying to cheer up the human race?

A — Not really. You see, I work around here only a couple of months a year and I do a lot of traveling. People are tiresome, reckless, disorderly, and presumptuous. They think they run the world, which is ridiculous, but they need order and I like cheering them up.

Q — One final personal question: What do you think of the Women's Liberation Movement?

A — Well, sometimes I must admit I get tired of all this production — by the end of June I'm exhausted — but I do need a little help with all these flowers. Otherwise, I'd be out of business.

Ron Nessen: Thank you, Ms. Spring. See you next year.

Times Tough For Henry, Too

Henry Kissinger has fallen on hard times.

He returned this weekend from his umpteenth trip to the Middle East on the most difficult and delicate of missions emptyhanded. Apparently at the present time there are no common grounds upon which the Arabs and Israelis can meet and agree. Protracted discussions in Geneva are next, unless there is a dramatic and immediate turnaround in attitudes in Tel Aviv and Cairo and Damascus. And there, in Geneva, the Soviets will be only too glad to exert their influence on any future settlement.

The North Vietnamese have mounted a major offensive, have taken over control of more of the land and population of South Vietnam and there is talk in Washington that because of the new assaults from the north the Paris peace accords reached in 1973 should be voided.

Kissinger's standing with Congress and with a once worshipful media has also declined slowly but steadily over the past two years, partly because of the secretary's arrogance and less than candid responses to questions about his part in plugging administration leaks and partly because his policies have come under serious questioning by a growing number of critics.

Even the rapprochement with China, which he molded, is cooling; at least relations are not improving and have fallen off from the 1972 high.

Clearly, the glitter is rubbing off Super K.

But his swimming against the current right now does not or should not diminish his stature or make his prior accomplishments seem any less remarkable.

Without Kissinger's efforts in the Middle East over the past months and years, that area would not be closer to peace but closer to war and perhaps in flames again. The Paris accords, for which Kissinger shared the Nobel Peace Prize, set up a framework for peaceful settlement, provided for the exchange of prisoners of war and brought American forces home from Indochina. There is little more one man could do to reverse the tide in Southeast Asia. The fact that the house of cards has fallen apart should not make Kissinger or the Nobel committee feel guilty or unworthy. Without the Nixon-Kissinger initiative towards China, would this nation be any better off? Of course not. When the internal situation in China stabilizes, as it now appears to be doing, and when the U.S. makes the hard decision on what it will do regarding Taiwan, relations with the Peoples Republic of China should progress past the ping-pong, visiting dignitary stage. It will take time. But the initiative was a milestone. That is something the Shadow of San Clemente and the harried international diplomat can point to with pride.

If Kissinger is to be faulted it should be for his autocratic nature and duplicitous tendencies. And for the fact that he has a somewhat narrow focus at times. While a whiz kid in geopolitics, much of the time he seems to be little more than disinterested in the broad questions of resources and food management and world economics. And perhaps he harbors too strong a belief that the world order, the tenuous balance, can only be preserved by pitting muscle against muscle. In that he is only a creature of his age.

In all, however, he is still a remarkable public servant and an American resource from which the international community has benefitted.

Times are tough. His magic isn't working. The wand is waved and Poof! there are no miracles. He's married now and belly dancers don't sit in his lap. Starlets do not hang on his arm. The Nobel committee might have second thoughts. There are more than a few people who wish he would go back to Harvard and there are some at Harvard who don't want him back.

But hang in there, Henry. Although you can't win 'em all, you've won more than your share.

By C. L. SULZBERGER

TEHERAN, Iran — One of the world's acknowledged experts on petroleum is Shah Mohammed Riza Pahlavi of Iran, whose country is the second greatest supplier of liquid energy and who unquestionably makes the most effective self-development use of accruing profits. But the Shah sees a definite time limit to oil economies. He complains that the international community refuses to face facts.

"World petroleum supplies will be finished within fifty years at most," he insists. "And yet you in America and elsewhere have 400 to 500 years' worth of coal supplies. I keep telling you all to use IT — not US."

He thinks Henry Kissinger is on the right track when he argues in favor of a minimum price level below which oil's value should not be allowed to fall, thus insuring exploitation of other costlier energy sources. The only trouble with the Kissinger plan, for the Shah, is that it doesn't go far enough.

"As atomic power enters increasingly into operation, its cost in terms of investment and operation will be immensely higher than fossil fuels," he says. "We must calculate this in reckoning future prices. Don't forget that cheap oil prevents the development of other energy sources. Kissinger's idea simply doesn't go far enough. The floor should be higher."

Despite growing debate on the issue, the Shah firmly believes oil prices in international markets should be fixed in U.S. dollars although the amount charged must be adjusted to meet intensified inflation. Moreover, he adds: "The dollar will strengthen from its present levels and by normal means. This is inevitable."

"Right now a certain de facto devaluation suits you by facilitating your exports. But you have to buy as well as sell abroad; and you have to pay more for your imports right now. Anyway, you must remember that foreigners take your exports primarily on the basis of their quality, not price."

As the temporary world shortage of oil has eased and the Suez Canal is on the verge of reopening, the Shah thinks the supertanker age is ending for most markets except Japan and the United States. And supertankers can only be practical in the latter if the U.S. builds "sea-islands" like Iran or offshore pipelines through which discharging oil can be pumped inland. Europe can revert to ordinary tankers as soon as the Suez Canal is deepened, as planned.

The Shah deems it possible Iran will be operating at a deficit if it maintains its present foreign aid program. He hopes to avoid this choice. But if the recession in industrial lands eases and more factories resume functioning, the demand for petroleum will again increase.

But this country's present form of oil economy cannot continue and, like other lands able to afford it, Iran is purchasing nuclear power plants for future energy. It hopes to husband oil supplies to fabricate more profitable petrochemicals.

Right now Iran is floating in almost as much money as it is in black gold. The Shah estimates hard currency reserves at between $5 billion and $7 billion, which "gives us much prestige in the world monetary system. But we probably can't keep the figure that high because of development costs and a decline — at least temporarily — in probable petroleum income."

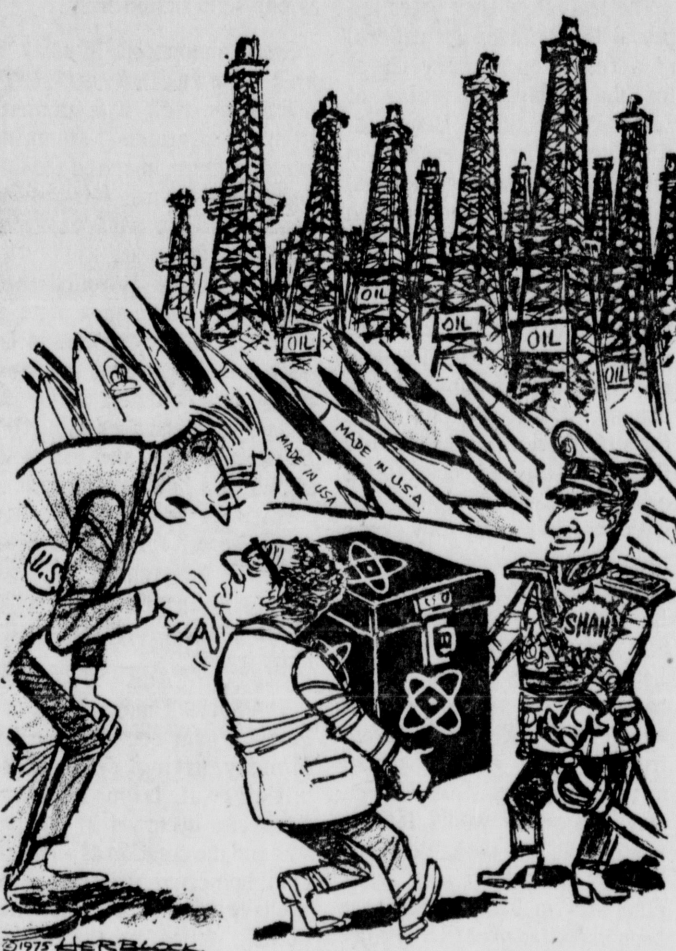

He acknowledges that funds already at hand or anticipated give Iran a useful opportunity for wise investment abroad. "We aren't interested — like some lands — in just putting money into real estate," he says. "Our program foresees putting large sums into serious things — like steel, electronics or petrochemicals."

"It's not just a question of making profits. We wish to learn. We want to discover the best way to build our country. We'll go into things, for example, like Pan American Airlines. But there we are still awaiting approval from your Civil Aeronautics Board. We don't want to control any foreign industries. We never hope to control them. And we only want to go into such arrangements abroad with the agreement — and the welcome — of the host country.

"As for our own petroleum, we don't use it for political purposes, embargoes, pressures. When we fill up a tanker at an oil terminal, we don't care where it goes — once we are paid. Thus we have not given any special assurance to anyone that Iranian oil would be made available to Israel if it returns the Sinai wells to Egypt in a further disengagement. No such assurances are necessary. Everyone knows our policy."

"Explain Slowly — What Does He Need All Those Weapons For, And Why Does He Need Nuclear Reactors?"

Pay Hike For Senators

Legislative salaries are still an issue and we have detected an upswing in sentiment across the state for some sort of hike in pay for Nebraska lawmakers. Not a groundswell, mind you, but an inkling that the idea may be more palatable.

Every recent proposal for a legislative salary hike has been batted down by the electorate. We think voters recognize, deep down, that the senators are underpaid, but we suppose that when voters get into the privacy of the booth and read that pay proposal on the ballot, they convince themselves they shouldn't raise pay for people who spend their tax money. It's one of those gut feeling things that reasonable argument has a hard time conquering. But there have been signs recently that the attitude may be softening.

BOB GREENE

To Utopia By Train

TREMONT, Ind. — Thoughts on getting out of town:

Maybe it's the sense of winter's ending, or maybe it comes from a more personal changing of the season. Whatever, you find yourself doing it again: getting on a train and riding it out of Chicago and renting a room for the night in some town where you don't know anyone and they don't know you, and that's the plan.

You can still do it, although it seems that before too long the railroads will all be gone, even the few escape routes that are left, and then the road will be made up only of freeway exits, and part of the random feel of picking a stop by instinct will be dead. But it is still worthy of a try, and for some reason you are willing to try it more and more often.

To watch the city disappear mile by mile is a luxury whose appeal is made stronger by its unexpected nature; it shouldn't feel so good. But it does, and the feeling is heightened by the thought that no one knows where you will end up, not even yourself, and so there will be no telephones to ring you awake, no voices to hail you on the street.

The others on the train are all going somewhere, but you are only going away, and that can be the truest vacation of all. The time factor does not count. You can leave in the afternoon and be back by the next noon, and no one will know that you were even gone. If it is important enough to you, hours and minutes have nothing to do with it.

If you tell yourself that you are looking for the country, you will be disappointed, because that is hard to find any more. There are too many fast-food restaurants, and too many motels with national names you have seen advertised on your television, and if you are searching for a place that has not been touched by the urbanization of America, your search may take longer than the time that you have stolen for yourself. But if you accept that, and tell yourself that all you want is a smaller place in which to keep company with yourself, then it can be all right.

Because if you look, you can still find that there are places that can help. You can still find a real town square to walk around, with the police station and the town hall and the dinner restaurant all within sight of one another. You can still find a community movie theater that has one show each night, and devotes the first 10 minutes on the screen to slides advertising for local merchants who know that it is a sure way to reach their people. You can walk in a neighborhood where you will see four cars in the course of an hour.

Lincolnite Bill Harris has urged the Legislature's Constitutional Revision Committee to consider a proposal which would boost legislative salaries to $1,200 a month during the months the Unicameral is in session and leave the salary rate at the present $400 month when the Legislature is not in session.

"If this issue is put before the voters in this form, I feel that they would understand more clearly the purpose of an increase in salary for the state's representatives," Harris wrote the committee.

This is an interesting proposal surely due serious consideration by the Legislature. It is reasonable enough and should be attractive enough to be convincing.

And if you don't want to, you won't hear the sound of your own voice. You can walk all evening, or just sit and watch this part of the world, and never be compelled to make a conversation or look to see who else is around. You may surprise yourself when 10 o'clock comes and you don't even have the urge to turn on the news, and you don't care what you may have missed.

It can be so good that you find yourself not wanting to go to sleep, even though there is nothing better to do. You go back to your room and sit by the window with your legs draped over a chair, one light burning on the table, and you look out at the night and lose track of time. The hours go by without a sound, and you let them.

In the morning you go outside early, and watch the highway before breakfast. You eat by yourself and don't hurry, and you don't look at your watch to see if you're making anyone else, check their watches in some office in Chicago.

And when you leave, it should be with the understanding that you won't be back, not to the place you have been this time. Because if you're out to grab a moment for yourself, you can't do it in a place you've ever seen, or on a road you've ever walked. You've got to be selfish enough not to let your own memories intrude.

When you take the train back to Chicago, there is no reason to let anyone know where you have been, or what you have done, or why. There should be a part of your life that is allowed to remain your own. You shouldn't share it, or it will lose whatever there was in it for you. You should never put it in a newspaper

Lincoln, Neb. It is my purpose to express opposition to the Legislative Bill 142 and make the plea to protect and preserve the mourning dove.

One may point out that the people are aware and concerned, specifically members of the federal and Nebraska wildlife associations and the Nebraska Dove Protective Society, supported by the President and Supreme Court of the United States who have acted to preserve the ecology and protect the wilderness areas and the wildlife, birds and other creatures, inhabitants thereof.

As an example, the Everglades of Florida, Aransas Pass, Texas, and our own state of Nebraska wildlife sanctuaries. The purpose is protecting the environment from spoliation and keeping "America the Beautiful".

There is much wanton and senseless slaughter of humankind and wildlife that is so appalling throughout our land. Therefore let us preserve and tenaciously cling to that which is good. Let us protect and preserve the dove as a song bird, a bird that is beautiful, a harbinger of good will, not evil, not a predator but a benefactor of all mankind.

Thus the members of the Legislature, our senators, chosen to represent the people, sirs as gentlemen, may aspire and become God's noblemen if they act on the instincts of their better nature and vote to protect and preserve the mourning dove as a song bird, not as a hunter's target.

In behalf of the citizens of our great state of Nebraska, I earnestly make the plea — let us do for ourselves, not what others do. "Keep the doves flying, not bullets".

Councilman Causes Concern

Lincoln, Neb. City Councilman W. Richard Baker was awarded a contract to operate a pharmacy in the city-owned Physicians Building adjacent to Lincoln General Hospital on April 26, 1973.

Baker, one year later, resigned from the Lincoln General Hospital Board of Trustees and the Lincoln Hospital Association Board of Trustees because, he said, regarding this award, he still was "getting a little staid."

The Star ("Has Baker Gone Far Enough" — May 28, 1974) stated, "If Baker wants to avoid any suspicion of conflict of interest regarding hospital matters, perhaps he should resign from the Council or terminate his contract to run the pharmacy." Baker has done neither and filed for re-election on Thursday, March 13, 1975.

I ask Mr. Baker: What have you done to show the people of Lincoln that they should still not be concerned about this situation?

Failure on the part of Mr. Baker to adequately ally this concern should bring voters of Lincoln to ask: Is this the kind of city councilman we want for four more years?

CHARLES P. BROWN

Just a Local Matter?

Blair, Neb. What manner of dirty partisan politics is involved with the Hruska-Curtis duo, in their delaying tactics connected with letting East Nebr. Metro Tech. gain possession of Ft. Omaha as a vocational school facility? Could this be the beginning of some of the devious partisan political chicanery we can expect, connected with the 1976 race for U.S. senator? Is Unicameral Senator Marvel another of the principals in this Watergate-type thing? Will we never learn! Does politics simply have to be a dirty game?

Tweedle-dum (Mr. Curtis) doesn't even change his colorful socks, shirts and ties without first consulting about same with "Tweedle-dee," Mr. Hruska. So this has to be something more than just a local matter as suggested by Mr. Hruska's office in Wash. D.C.

JAMES RESTON

Ms. Spring Confides

WASHINGTON — Spring came to Washington this week, right smack on time. It was soft and warm, non-political and seasonally adjusted, providing generous rebates and non-contributory benefits for one and all alike. Ah, spring!

It crept up the Potomac from the south past Mount Vernon, dropped off a drift of daffodils in Lady Bird Johnson Park, shook the yellow willows on the upstairs porch of the Kennedy Center, spread a green carpet down Capitol Hill and across the White House lawn, and opened up the pink buds on the tulip magnolias at the Treasury and Interior Departments.

Everything was different only a few short days ago. The whole town was the color of wet rags. The streets were torn up with subway construction. The President and the Congress were fussing over taxes and energy, and almost everybody was deluged by monuments of unread books, articles and speeches on the insoluble perplexities of the human race. O Xerox, where is thy pity?

But then this funny thing happened. The star magnolia at the northwest gate of the White House produced its identity card and burst into bloom. The forsythia and japonica broke out in the middle of the lawn, and the Congress of the United States, having settle nothing, went home for an undeserved Easter vacation.

In a news conference in the White House rose garden, Spring explained that she came a little early this year because everybody seemed a little gloomy. She agreed to answer questions, with Ron Nessen presiding:

Question—What are we to do about the Gross National Product?

Answer — Enjoy it! The production of flowers this year will be up 14.3%, dogwood trees up 12%, pretty girls up 4%, and crabgrass will be down 8%.

Q — How do you account for the decline in crabgrass?

Q — One final personal question: What do you think of the Women's Liberation Movement?

A — Well, sometimes I must admit I get tired of all this production — by the end of June I'm exhausted — but I do need a little help with all these flowers. Otherwise, I'd be out of business.

Ron Nessen: Thank you, Ms. Spring. See you next year.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — The accountant phoned yesterday. A reminder that death and taxes come to all men.

The accountant maneuvers my form sheet into shape that I can't understand but is perfectly clear to the U.S. bagman. Clear and believable, that's the point.

I said to the accountant: "I read in the paper the Pentagon made a little mistake in adding. A matter of $21.5 million! Nobody says to them, 'Hey, how about this?'"

Actual fact. The Pentagon overcharged Cambodia two one point five million dollars for arms. They must now pay it back — presumably in guns.

I said: "If I made even near such a mistake, it would be stony lonesome and throw away the key."

But the accountant only sighed and said: "Why are your expenses on typewriter ribbons higher this year than last?"

I said: "I must be typing faster."

The tax man cometh. (A little bit of that Pentagon $21.5 million is in my taxes. What can I do about it? Write my congressman?)

The accountant said: "What is this deduction for a step ladder?"

I said: "I have to get research books off the top shelf."

Now that is true. And the added fact that I climb the ladder to put jam away in the cupboard has nothing to do with it.

I said: "If I climb the ladder occasionally to put jam away, it's only because it is there. Like mountain climbers climb mountains because they are there."

"Before I had a ladder, I stood on a kitchen chair."

This is not really a ladder anyway. It's a simple three step thing. When I was running a stick along picket fences, we had a household ladder with eight steps.

My grandmother used it to get homemade preserves off the top shelf.

My grandfather used it to hang pictures. He opened the scissors of the ladder and climbed it while grandma held it steady. When he got as high as the fifth step it shook like jello.

"Careful now," said my grandmother.

My grandfather only said: "Glurp." His mouth was full of picture nails.

President Ford asked Congress for $222 million for extra ammo in Cambodia. So the discovery of a loose $21.5 comes at a good time.

The explanation of how we lost this magnificent sum is hard to believe. A matter of putting the bullets on a charge account. Then finding you charged too much because prices have changed.

I said: "Talk about a credibility gap."

But the accountant only sharpened his pencil: "Grrr. Grrr."

I said: "At least we could depreciate the ladder." The accountant said: "Household items are not deductible."

Grandma said: "I declare I think I'll break my neck one of these days." She got down cautiously holding a jar of pickled tomatoes.

A three-step ladder does for me. We don't build with high ceilings like they did in those days.

Life Begins At Forty:

Reader Afraid Of Misplacing Social Security Check

By JOANNE FARRIS

QUESTION: — "I'm so afraid I will lose my Social Security check as I am getting pretty forgetful. I need the money very much. What should I do if I misplace it?"

ANSWER: — Call your local Social Security office at once. They will tell you what you must do to get a replacement.

And, if you are in an emergency situation and need the money desperately and at once, the Social Security office can issue you a check for $100 to help you out until your regular Social Security check can be replaced.

QUESTION: — "How long does it take for the Social Security office to get me a new check for the one I've lost? I called them and gave them all the information they wanted and signed the form, but I still haven't received the money. And that was three weeks ago."

ANSWER: — Under normal circumstances, it takes about two months for the Social Security Administration to take all the steps necessary to ascertain what has happened to your check, and then to replace it.

However, if your case is critical, contact the supervisor at your nearest Social Security office.

This is the one person in that office who does have the authority to assist you in getting your case expedited. In special cases, the Supervisor can cut through the red tape for a client.

QUESTION: — "Do I have to wait until I retire to apply for Social Security benefits? I am 65 now, but I won't stop working until the end of the year."

ANSWER: — It is not necessary to wait until you retire to make application for benefits. This should be done at least two months before you become eligible.

As the above answer indicates, it takes two months to process a check for replacement, so you should allow that long for your claim of whatever kind, to work its way through the bureaucracy.

It is important to remember that Social Security checks are issued on the first of the month for the preceding month, so don't expect a check the first month you are eligible. You will receive benefits for that month, but they are not paid to you until the first of the following month.

Once you have found the location of the Social Security Office nearest you, call them first to find out what papers you need to take with you when you go in to file your claim. Also, check to see when they are busiest.

San Francisco (AP) — Its own independent dealers have filed a suit against Standard Oil of California alleging that the firm lowered prices at company-operated stations while boosting the wholesale price to the independents.

The suit was filed in U.S.
District Court by 116 Northern California Chevron service station operators.

It asks the court to stop Standard from allegedly lowering gasoline prices by up to three cents a gallon at company-operated stations while increasing wholesale prices 38
cents a gallon for independent operators. The suit seeks no money for alleged damages.

San Francisco (AP) — Its own independent dealers have filed a suit against Standard Oil of California, alleging that the firm
lowered prices at company-
operated stations while boosting the wholesale price to the independents.

The suit was filed in U.S.
District Court by 116 Northern California Chevron service station operators.

It asks the court to stop Standard from allegedly lowering gasoline prices by up to three cents a gallon at company-
operated stations while increasing wholesale prices 3.8
cents a gallon for independent operators. The suit seeks no
money for alleged damages.

Machines Teach More Than Reading

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer
When Richard Jones sits down in front of the System 80 teaching machine at West Lincoln School, he's not just learning how to read.

Richard is improving his vocabulary, his comprehension and his ability to listen — in the first blinks of what Ron Brandt calls the "vision of much more sophisticated and far-reaching" technology the public schools want to use to improve children's learning.

'We're Very Proud'
Meantime, "We're very proud of what we've done so far," said Brandt, associate superintendent for instruction. To wit, the teaching machines aren't robots to replace teachers.

Rather, Brandt said, they're the first medium that have been worked into the "total teaching program."

West Lincoln Principal Margie E. Elloe agreed: "System 80 is not determining what we teach the children. We are."

The nine machines fit with the district's eventual goal, to provide "more hands-on use" of technology by students, Brandt said.

'Less Important'
Educators are finding, for example, that "television being the teacher directly to students is becoming less important." And less effective, if used only to present a somber talking face.

Mrs. Elloe explained the name System 80 was chosen for the synchronized audio-visual machines, after research revealed 80% of children would score at least 80% after only one lesson. After two lessons, 95% of the students scored 80 or higher. System 80 is part of a "three-pronged program," she said. First, "Every child works in a basic reading program in the classroom with his teacher." She said if the teacher finds the child "needs extra help in reading, she writes a prescription for a definite need."

Then the child "goes into the System 80 program and works on the machine," while in the companion third phase, "he does get a period of Orton-Gillingham (reading) training," she said.

Based On Phonetics
System 80 is a phonetic-based program, also in three parts. The child first learns basic phonetic skills. Then he applies those skills in a follow-up lesson. And he reads for context meaning.

After every lesson, the child takes a test to determine what he'll do on the machine the next day, Mrs. Elloe said. "He never does a System 80 lesson that he does not need."

Moreover, "every child's program is different," to support what the teacher is trying to have the child accomplish, she said. Any of the 96 West Lincoln pupils using System 80 can skip over a lesson, at their own learning pace.

That's possible, Brandt said, because teachers can use the machine lessons to set up and define learning objectives in an effective sequence, instead of chronologically.

Intermediate pupils also use the teaching machines one period a day if they're referred by a teacher to get basic math skills. System 80 helps them learn to add, subtract, multiply and divide until they test out.

Since the System 80s were introduced last October, Mrs. Elloe said teachers and students alike applaud the special reading program. "In fact, the children who do not get to go" wish they could, a rarity in what amounts to remedial reading.

School Media Centers 'Far Beyond' Libraries

The teaching machines at West Lincoln School are only one aspect of technology the public school district uses or plans to use to help 29,000 kids learn.

Already, the media centers — an outgrowth of school libraries — go "far beyond" offering just books, said Ron Brandt, associate superintendent for instruction.

The media centers are loaded with special instructional materials, video cassette machines for television hookup, tapes, records and films.

And TV programs, supplied largely by the State Department of Education, feature kids dealing with real problems they themselves "are concerned about," Brandt said.

That approach is fairly new, presenting two children in a possible conflict situation, for example, the dramatization abruptly ending without resolve. The intent is to evoke questions and possible solutions from children watching the program.

"We are moving in the use of television, toward the videotaping" of programs, to allow rebroadcast when teachers want to use them, Brandt said.

And Lincoln is "looking to many different applications in the years ahead," he said; for example, electronic word-display machines to create catalogs of teaching tools, and using computers to program instruction for individual students.

Bob Den Hartog, associate superintendent for business affairs and master of the new district computer, said if terminals were installed in each building, it could schedule films for teachers. They now use about 400 films daily, and it's going up.

The plans for school technology aren't based on whim, fads or what a few administrators think might be a good idea.

The Elementary Study Committee has been digging into educational technology since last December. In a report to the Lincoln Board of Education, the committee wrote that none of the devices presently in use "seems to have had the impact on education one might expect."

"Sometimes it seems they only complicate the lives of busy teachers, rather than significantly improving children's learning."

Noting differences in use of various media from building to building and teacher to teacher (stemming from each school's philosophy), the committee said, "Even in schools with the most elaborate programs, the potential is far from being realized."

The 17 committee members agreed, "The challenge is to increase the likelihood that appropriate learning materials will be available when needed," in a projected "total system much more sophisticated and responsive than anything currently in existence."

First, however, "schools need to clarify the goals of education: to be more specific about what children should learn." And simultaneously, "to find more about how children learn."

"Instructional technology is more than machines," the committee declared.

Supt. John Prasch painfully points out that it is also money.

West Lincoln School leases each System 80 reading machine for $30 a year, as opposed to buying each one for $495. If that cost seems reasonable, consider that Lincoln has 45 school buildings. The district does buy a System 80 library, and one 10-lesson package costs from $130 to $188.

It goes further than money. Once the district buys a new device, it needs a staff member to handle, maintain and keep records on it; and a truck to tote associated materials to wherever they're needed; and a driver for the truck; and an employee to train teachers how to use the machine; and a repairman to fix it when it breaks, and so on.

"When you add technology to industry and business," Prasch said, "you can get a direct measure of productivity. The problem in the use of technology in education is that you can't demonstrate productivity increases."

Though an integrated technological package in the schools is some years off, Brandt and a cadre of believers are working on that vision, "to get the right lesson to the right child at the right time."

2 UNL Grads Map Sea Food Harvest

The food harvest from the sea is still small but it is growing faster than first believed possible, say two graduates of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Dennis Schaeffer and Valerie Smith. They work for Sea Research Nutrients of Port Washington, N.Y.

"There is nourishment for us down there in the seabeds, we all know that," Ms. Smith says. To find the right combinations of nutrients and keep the new products of aquaculture natural are what she is working toward.

"Our work is outrageously fascinating. One of the most relevant around," Ms. Smith says. "We lead an active life. Experimentation, scuba diving, underwater photography and slurping."

Yes, slurping. A slurp gun uses a transparent plastic cylinder and piston for grabbing specimens of small, flighty fish.

But finding the food formulas is most important. Smith and Schaeffer have found four. National and foreign distribution of the organic products is at least two years away.

"We have limited supplies, and I do mean limited," Schaeffer said. Warehouse firms look upon the quantities as a joke. So the sealed bottles are in our own drydock storehouse and have to be purchased directly from us."

Some of their research will be important to persons with allergies.

Their research group made a sea formula tablet of 16 nutrients natural to its 500 milligrams of protein. "A good supplemental source of protein for normal diets and for those allergic to eggs, bread or milk," said Smith.

A calcium-source product uses high-content calcium from the shell of mollusk organisms plus vitamin D2.

The Consumer Service of Sea Research offers three-month supplies of four products for $15 for those who don't want to wait until they sold on the market. Their address is 73B, Carlton Bay, Port Washington, N.Y. 11050.

Policemen To Be Models

Cleveland (UPI) — The models in an upcoming spring fashion show here will have 33-inch waists rather than the conventional slender curvy shapes required of most models.

The models will be 20 Cleveland policemen who will parade across the Front Row Theatre stage in suburban Highland Heights April 19, displaying clothes every well-dressed man should have hanging in his closet in order to assert his manliness.

The proceeds from the show will go to the Police Athletic League which is co-sponsoring the fashion show with the men's committee of the Cleveland Playhouse.

The show's intent is to renew the male dominance in a society which has been brainwashed by women's liberationists, according to show chairman and interior decorator Ray Elias.

"We're going to show all the various, wonderful things the American male represents — the sportsman, the hunter, the lover, the author and the street dude," Elias said.

Stay Home And Keep Germs To Yourself

DEAR ABBY: Will you please try to get it across to people who are sick that they should stay home? And if their kids are sick, they should keep THEM home, too?

One night last week, we invited another couple over for bridge. When they arrived, I opened the door, and Mrs. X, greeted us with a voice so hoarse she could hardly talk. Then she wiped her dripping nose and went into a coughing fit. I said: "Oh, if you aren't well, maybe we'd better make it another night — when you're feeling better."

She said: "Oh, I'm not THAT sick." Then she walked in and sat down. Her husband said he just got over something that had been going around and he must have given it to her.

She kept wiping her nose and coughing all evening. She even asked if she could see the children. (Imagine?) I told her I thought maybe she'd better not.

Abby, I couldn't wait until that couple went home. I wish you'd put this in your column for all those inconsiderate carriers who insist on going to work and school to spread their germs around.

SICK OF CARRIERS

DEAR SICK: Here's your letter. I'm as sick of inconsiderate carriers as you are.

DEAR ABBY: On last New Year's Eve, I drove 150 miles to surprise my husband. I surprised him all right! Him and her both.

After she left and I finished my screaming and cursing, we settled down to a sensible conversation. I don't know what made me give him the chance to explain, but I'm glad I did. He told me that I am the woman he LOVES, and I believe him.

We have talked many times since then and are slowly recovering from this single act of unfaithfulness. My husband travels for a living, and what happened to him is more likely to happen to a traveling man, no matter how much he loves his wife.

We all make mistakes. But the biggest mistake of all is refusing to forgive and forget.

Opening lead—seven of hearts.

Occasionally there are enormous swings in team of four play, even in world championship competition. For example, consider this deal played last year in the match between Italy and Indonesia.

The bidding at the first table went as shown when Garozzo and Belladonna were North-South for Italy. Garozzo made a fine decision when he elected to bid six spades over six hearts, and Belladonna had no trouble making the slam. He ruffed the heart lead in dummy, drew trumps, and cashed the obvious twelve tricks to score 1,430 points for Italy.

At the second table, the Indonesian North-South pair doubled six hearts when the Italian East-West pair arrived at that contract. The heart slam proved to be unbeatable and, in fact, declarer made the contract with an overtrick when South elected to lead his singleton diamond.

So the Italians scored another 1,310 points at this table—making a slam with the East-

West cards after their teammates with the North-South cards had also made a slam—and the Italian team racked up a gain of 2,740 points on this one deal.

Six spades could have been stopped at the first table had West been smart enough to lead a diamond at trick one and had East also been smart enough to win the lead with the ace and return a club at trick two.

However, on a more practical basis, East would have been well advised to bid seven hearts, in pursuance of the general principle that it pays to bid again in a tight competitive situation where you stand to lose very little by bidding but a lot by passing.

An Easter Gift of Cabochard by Gres

All the heady exhilaration of the city of lights and romance captured in one provocatively lovely perfume fragrance — Cabochard by Gres of Paris. Parfum 13.50 and 24.50. Spray Eau de Toilette 8.50 and 13.00. Bath Oil 8.50 and 14.50. Dusting Powder 9.00. Cosmetics, Downtown and Gateway. Conestoga Mall Grand Island.

Today — come and view the beautiful collection of Art Glass by CHARLES LOTTON

CHARLES LOTTON has succeeded in reinventing many of the lost formulas and techniques of hand blown iridescent lustered glass.

The work of CHARLES LOTTON is unmistakable. An accurate description of his work is nearly impossible as words have not been invented to describe the rainbow mists of color that hover, swirl, and float across his canvases of glass. Imagine a beaker of electric blue lava, sprinkled with a confetti of glowing opals. Possibly you would prefer the simple elegance of a clinging vine with heart-shaped leaves and iris luster, gracefully winding about a vase of classic shape. Also mention must be made of his unique paper weight pieces.

There is little doubt that the work of CHARLES LOTTON easily stands in any collection on its own design and artistic merits.

Our collection of art glass by LOTTON is individually selected for its perfection of beauty, form and color. We are proud to present the work of this outstanding artist to all those who appreciate works of art in the finest tradition. Gift Gallery, Downtown & Gateway.

2 UNL Grads Map Sea Food Harvest

The food harvest from the sea is still small but it is growing faster than first believed possible, say two graduates of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Dennis Schaeffer and Valerie Smith. They work for Sea Research Nutrients of Port Washington, N.Y.

"There is nourishment for us down there in the seabeds, we all know that," Ms. Smith says. To find the right combinations of nutrients and keep the new products of aquaculture natural are what she is working toward.

"Our work is outrageously fascinating. One of the most relevant around," Ms. Smith says. "We lead an active life. Experimentation, scuba diving, underwater photography and slurping."

Yes, slurping. A slurp gun uses a transparent plastic cylinder and piston for grabbing specimens of small, flighty fish.

But finding the food formulas is most important. Smith and Schaeffer have found four. National and foreign distribution of the organic products is at least two years away. "We have limited supplies, and I do mean limited," Schaeffer said. Warehouse firms look upon the quantities as a joke. So the sealed bottles are in our own drydock storehouse and have to be purchased directly from us."

Some of their research will be important to persons with allergies.

Their research group made a sea formula tablet of 16 nutrients natural to its 500 milligrams of protein. "A good supplemental source of protein for normal diets and for those allergic to eggs, bread or milk," said Smith.

A calcium-source product uses high-content calcium from the shell of mollusk organisms plus vitamin D2.

The Consumer Service of Sea Research offers three-month supplies of four products for $15 for those who don't want to wait until they sold on the market. Their address is 73B, Carlton Bay, Port Washington, N.Y. 11050.

Exon Plans Allows Choice Of Uncommitted Delegates

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon's proposal to wipe out direct election of national political convention delegates provides an opportunity for voters to express a preference for a delegation uncommitted to any presidential prospect.

The measure, LB591, signed by Sen. Gary Anderson of Axtell, was presented to the Legislature Monday.

Voters could choose among their party's presidential candidates in the presidential primary election, write in a choice of their own or mark a box expressing an "uncommitted" vote.

Following Nebraska's presidential primary vote, the delegate aspirants would gather in caucuses for each presidential candidate to choose the delegates representing that candidate at the convention. The uncommitted delegates would also caucus to determine their convention-goers.

Any presidential candidate would be free to communicate his wishes as to whom he would prefer as delegates prior to their selection.

Exon's proposal is designed to conform to the new Democratic Party national charter which provides for proportional selection of delegates.

Strongly Opposed

But Democratic National Committeewoman Frances Ohmsted of Guide Rock strongly opposes the governor's proposal to eliminate direct election of delegates, arguing that such a change is not required to conform to the national charter.

Instead, she has suggested that delegate candidate be required to gain permission from a presidential candidate before they could seek election committed to support that prospect.

Coordination Backed For Higher Education

Divided In Proportion

Delegates to their party's convention would then be divided among the presidential candidates and the uncommitted in proportion to their share of the total vote.

Whereas voters now directly select the delegates themselves, the new process would provide for selection of delegates at congressional district caucuses of delegate candidates following the presidential primary election.

Those who wish to be delegates would file a sworn statement of their intentions with the secretary of state at least 30 days before the election.

In that statement, they would express their presidential preference or list themselves as uncommitted to any presidential candidate.

At Least Two Ballots

Those who choose to commit themselves would pledge to support their preference for at least two convention ballots unless released by the candidate or unless he receives less than 35% of the convention vote on the first ballot.

By The Associated Press

All the witnesses at a public hearing before the Legislature's Education Committee Monday supported coordination among institutions of higher education and several supported consolidation.

The committee took no action on a bill to create a voluntary coordinating council, LB579.

Nebraska currently has private colleges and universities, the University of Nebraska operated by the Board of Regents, the four state colleges operated by the State College Board of Trustees and the technical community colleges operated by the State Technical Community College Board.

The bill would create a coordinating council to review programs and capital construction projects before they were recommended by the governor or approved by the Legislature.

Committee Chairman Frank Lewis said the educational institutions would present requests for new programs to the council. He said the institutions could take their case to the governor or the Legislature if a request for a program were turned down by the council.

The council would be made up of nine members appointed by the governor who could not be affiliated with any college.

The board of regents, the state college system, the technical community college system, the nonprofit private schools, the profit-making private schools and the State Board of Education would each have a member on the council.

Doctor Report Bill Is Revived On 25-12 Tally

By The Associated Press

The Legislature Monday brought a bill back to life that would allow doctors to report to the state on patients who have a medical disability that impairs their driving.

The bill, LB225, would allow doctors an exception to the prohibition against releasing information on their patients.

The bill was killed earlier this month on a motion by Sen. John Cavanaugh of Omaha. He said the bill would violate the trust patients put in their doctors.

Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island brought LB225 back to life Monday after telling his fellow senators it was needed for highway safety. The vote was 25-12.

Kelly promised to amend the bill to require doctors to tell their patients if they made a report to the Nebraska Department of Motor Vehicles.

The Legislature refused Monday to bring a bill back to life which would require state and local governments to withhold union dues and credit union payments for employees. The bill was LB126.

Educational Farm, Nature Center Boosted

The Legislature's Appropriations Committee Monday was asked to approve a $657,000 purchase of farm and wooded land in Sarpy County to serve as an environmental education and research facility for students.

State funding would purchase 657 acres of land with an appraised value of $720,000.

Along with it, free of cost, would go 926 acres of land valued at $1 million.

arrange field trips on a fee basis. The committee held the bill for later action.

LB507 would hand title to the land to the State Game and Parks Commission.

Game and Parks Director Willard Barbee said he would then negotiate a memorandum of understanding with MEPA outlining the use of the land.

MEPA spokesman Glenn

LeDoyt said his organization would plan to pay the operational costs of the facility, with school districts charged for their use of the project.

Operational costs were estimated at $50,000 a year.

an environmental education curriculum.

One advantage of the facility located close to Omaha would be to allow urban school children to see a farm in action, and see how agriculture and nature can exist in harmony, senators were told.

It could be "a national model" in environmental study, Koch declared.

$1,000 An Acre

The purchased land belongs to Dr. Harold Gifford, who has agreed to sell the tract to the state for $657,000, or $1,000 an acre.

The donated land belongs to the Gifford Foundation, and would be offered to the state without cost.

Sen. Gerald Koch of Ralston, sponsor of the proposal contained in LB507, said the measure gives the state the opportunity to provide students with a unique environmental education.

The land would include an educational farm, wildlife and nature learning center.

Its establishment is being promoted by the Metropolitan Educational Program Agency, an organization of about 30 educational institutions in the Omaha metropolitan area.

Available To All

But the facility would be available to all school children throughout the state, the committee was told. They could

Mobile Home Parks Code Falls Short By Five Votes

A bill that would have established a uniform standard code for mobile home parks in Nebraska failed to win first round approval in the Unicameral Monday.

Lincoln Sen. Harold Simpson's LB91 could muster only 20 votes, five short of the number needed to advance, as critics contended it could unduly raise the cost of mobile home living.

In other action, the Legislature rejected a kill motion and gave second stage approval to a bill that would cut the waiting period between the time a wedding license is issued and marriage may be conducted.

Senators advanced LB295 on a voice vote after rejecting a kill motion from Sen. John Murphy of South Sioux City on a 10-19 vote.

Tech Community College Bill Is Advanced To Floor

By United Press International

The Legislature's Education Committee Monday advanced to the floor a bill designed to revamp the technical community college system so that local control would be reinstated and property tax money could be used.

The bill, an amended version of Aurora Sen. Maurice Kremer's LB344, would do away with the community college budget controls that caused the State Supreme Court last year to outlaw the use of property tax money.

Specifically, each local board would be in charge of budgets and the Legislature and State Board of Technical Community Colleges would have no authority to make changes.

An attorney general's opinion, turned over to the committee during discussion on the bill, said provisions "would provide local control" and therefore would not put the system in violation of the constitution.

The state constitution prohibits the use of local property tax money for a state purpose. The Supreme Court said the system was a state system and therefore property tax money was used illegally.

Under the Kremer bill, the local boards could levy up to 2.5 mills in property taxes. In turn, in any combination the boards could impose up to two mills for operations and one mill for construction as long as the combined total did not exceed 2.5 mills.

The bill would create a coordinating council to review programs and capital construction projects before they were recommended by the governor or approved by the Legislature. Committee Chairman Frank Lewis said the educational institutions would present requests for new programs to the council. He said the institutions could take their case to the governor or the Legislature if a request for a program were turned down by the council.

The council would be made up of nine members appointed by the governor who could not be affiliated with any college.

The board of regents, the state college system, the technical community college system, the nonprofit private schools, the profit-making private schools and the State Board of Education would each have a member on the council.

Norman Otto, Gov. J. James Exon's administrative assistant, said "We can no longer afford the luxury of uncoordinated higher education."

Regent Robert Koefoot of Grand Island said the bill did not go far enough because the state colleges should be merged with NU. He said the four state colleges should be changed to "UN-Kearney, UN-Chadron, UN-Peru and UN-Wayne."

Regent Kermit Hansen of Omaha said all the public higher education systems should be governed by one constitutionally established board.

Lewis said the bill was a first step. He said the Legislature could go further next year.

The bill was introduced by Lewis for the governor.

Doctor Report Bill Is Revived On 25-12 Tally

By The Associated Press
The Legislature Monday brought a bill back to report that would allow doctors to file to the state on patients who have a medical disability that impairs their driving.

The bill, LB225, would allow doctors an exception to the prohibition against releasing information on their patients.

The bill was killed earlier this month on a motion by Sen. John Cavanaugh of Omaha. He said the bill would violate the trust patients put in their doctors.

Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island brought LB225 back to life Monday after telling his fellow senators it was needed for highway safety. The vote was 25-12.

Kelly promised to amend the bill to require doctors to tell their patients if they made a report to the Nebraska Department of Motor Vehicles.

The Legislature refused Monday to bring a bill back to life which would require state and local governments to withhold union dues and credit union payments for employees. The bill was LB126.

Prisoners In Mexico

Mexico City (AP) — A commercial jetliner brought Laura Allende, sister of Chile's late Marxist President Salvador Allende, and 94 other political prisoners to Mexico from Chile.

Mobile Home Parks Code Falls Short By Five Votes

A bill that would have established a uniform standard code for mobile home parks in Nebraska failed to win first round approval in the Unicameral Monday.

Lincoln Sen. Harold Simpson's LB91 could muster only 20 votes, five short of the number needed to advance, as critics contended it could unduly raise the cost of mobile home living.

Educational Farm, Nature Center Boosted

The Legislature's Appropriations Committee Monday was asked to approve a $657,000 purchase of farm and wooded land in Sarpy County to serve as an environmental education and research facility for students.

State funding would purchase 657 acres of land with an appraised value of $720,000.

Along with it, free of cost, would go 926 acres of land valued at $1 million.

$1,000 An Acre
The purchased land belongs to Dr. Harold Gifford, who has agreed to sell the tract to the state for $657,000, or $1,000 an acre.

The donated land belongs to the Gifford Foundation, and would be offered to the state without cost.

Sen. Gerald Koch of Ralston, sponsor of the proposal contained in LB507, said the measure gives the state the opportunity to provide students with a unique environmental education.

The land would include an educational farm, wildlife and nature learning center. Its establishment is being promoted by the Metropolitan Educational Program Agency, an organization of about 30 educational institutions in the Omaha metropolitan area.

Available To All
But the facility would be available to all school children throughout the state, the committee was told. They could arrange field trips on a fee basis. The committee held the bill for later action.

LB507 would hand title to the land to the State Game and Parks Commission.

Game and Parks Director Willard Barbee said he would then negotiate a memorandum of understanding with MEPA outlining the use of the land.

MEPA spokesman Glenn

Tuesday, March 25, 1975 The Lincoln Star 11

LeDioy said his organization would plan to pay the operational costs of the facility, with school districts charged for their use of the project.

Operational costs were estimated at $50,000 a year.

Grant Received
MEPA has already received a federal grant for development of an environmental education curriculum.

One advantage of the facility located close to Omaha would be to allow urban school children to see a farm in action, and see how agriculture and nature can exist in harmony, senators were told.

It could be "a national model" in environmental study, Koch declared.

Exon Vetoes 'Unfair' Communications Rule

By United Press International
Gov. J. James Exon vetoed a bill Monday he described as "the most unfair legislation, from the public's points of view, passed this session."

The measure, LB427, would require that the state contract for future telecommunications services with a common carrier under regulation of the Nebraska Public Service Commission.

In his veto message, Exon said he was sure the bill was not understood by most members of the Legislature.

"Likewise, I doubt that even the majority of the telecommunications committee was aware of its real implications and potential millions of dollars in additional costs to Nebraska taxpayers in the future," he said.

He characterized LB427 as "a major thrust to satisfy and further crystallize the monopolistic desires of the common carriers."

Exon said he strongly disagrees "with the basic philosophy espoused by LB427 that the common carriers are automatically guaranteed the right to all line and data processing microwave business at rates established by them."

The proposal would also, the governor said, prevent Nebraska from establishing its own state-owned facilities for any direct line communications, microwave, or even state-owned facilities between the Capitol and the new state office building.

Further, Exon said, the bill would cost an estimated $250,000 expense annually for reports and audits which appear superfluous.

Byler To Retire As Patrol Officer

Capt. V. W. Byler, commander of the State Patrol criminal investigation and identification division, will retire April 17, Col. C. P. Karthauser, patrol superintendent, announced Monday.

Byler was appointed to the patrol Sept. 4, 1940, and his duty stations have included Auburn, Fremont, Omaha and Lincoln. He was assigned to the criminal division on June 1, 1952.

Karthauser said Lt. Lynn V. Parks, presently assigned to the criminal division, will replace Byler.

Several Bills Get 1st Okay From Unicam

By The Associated Press
In the first afternoon meeting of the 84th session, the Legislature Monday gave initial approval to several relatively noncontroversial proposals.

The longest debate was over a proposal by Omaha Sen. George Syas to permit school districts to purchase land contiguous to land already owned outside the school district without a vote of the people.

The bill was introduced to enable the Omaha School District to expand its agriculture school on the west edge of Douglas County.

Opponents objected to special legislation to correct a situation for one school district. The bill would apply to any school district in the state that already owns land outside its district.

Others objected to one school district taking land off the tax rolls in another district, but when it came down to the vote, the bill received 26-9 support.

Other measures given first-round approval would —Increase from $25,000 to $40,000 the amount a person must deposit with the state treasurer to prove financial responsibility if he does not carry auto insurance. LB264.

—Increase the limit on compensation paid to directors of Public Power Districts. LB226.
—Exempt appraisers from licensing by the Real Estate Commission. LB365.
—Permit cities to contract for services such as delivering meals to elderly persons. LB307.

Boosalis Is Leading Money Raiser

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Helen Boosalis is in the money. Sam Schwartzkopf is in hock and Jo Bragg is hanging in there.

Those are the financial revelations from the first campaign spending reports filed by the three persons seeking to be the next mayor of Lincoln.

The report filed by Ms. Bragg revealed contributions of $546 and expenditures of $536.

Schwartzkopf's report showed a loan of $5,000 from the Gateway Bank, $1,429 in contributions and $5,513 in expenditures.

Mrs. Boosalis reported contributions totaling $5,943.50. Contributors were listed in six pages. She reported expenditures of $4,583.

In the crowded race for City Council, all but candidate William Thierstein filed campaign spending reports for the first reporting period. Reports on primary spending campaign must also be made on April 8 and 28.

Of candidates for council, Steve Tiwald was the cash flow leader. He reported contributions of $2,774 and expenditures of $2,662.

Of the other three candidates who reported funds both coming in and going out, Richard Baker reported contributions of $1,214 and expenditures of $675. Jim Carson reported contributions of $125 and expenses of $12 and Steve Cook reported $280 in contributions and $10 in expenditures.

Two candidates reported expenditures, but no contributions. They were Bruce Douthit, who reported a $10 expense and Robert Muggy, who reported $73 in expenses.

Ron Kurtenbach reported $15 in contributions, but no expenses. Unlike some other candidates, Kurtenbach did not report his $10 filing fee as an expense.

There were Rudolph Deinert, Stephen Marx, Mary Rogge, John V. King, Robert Jeambey, F. Bob Sikyta and Hale Laws.

A candidate for the Lincoln School Board also filed a campaign spending report, although spokesmen in the election commissioner's office said the report is apparently not required in that race.

Lu Pansing reported she raised $1,014, but spent none. The other five candidates in the race made no report.

Interest In Luxury Apartments Sold To Johnsen

It was announced Monday by Carl W. Olson and Selmer A. Solheim that an interest in the Sky Park Manor apartment complex, 1301 J St., has been sold to Johnny A. Johnsen.

The extent of the interest and the price were not disclosed.

Sky Park Manor, constructed in 1963, is Lincoln's only luxury high-rise apartment complex. The complex consists of 75 apartments of one, two and three bedrooms.

It is not anticipated that there will be any change in the management or operations of the building. Solheim will continue as the resident manager.

Comprehensive Plan Issue To Be On May 6 City Ballot

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

When Lincoln voters go to the polls May 6, they'll have a chance to make the City Council accountable for the Comprehensive Plan and make city law agree with state law.

The issue was placed on the ballot by the council Monday.

Voter approval of the amendment would have the effect of making the charter conform to state law, since the Legislature just passed a comprehensive planning bill affecting Lincoln and Lancaster County. The bill, signed by Gov. J. James Exon on Friday, is, as Councilman Max Denney put it, "the law of the land."

would serve as "an impediment rather than promoters" of city-county cooperation in running the building.

Robinson maintained, "The reason we're forming this commission is to remove us" from the day-to-day decision making process.

The city lawmakers also will seek County Board approval of another matter affecting future city-county consolidation. The council authorized the five-member City-County Implementation Commission (CCIC) to hire an executive director.

CCIC members believe full-time help is needed to push further city-county merger efforts. The staffer would receive an annual wage in the $18,000-$23,000 range, Council President Helen Boosalis said.

Mrs. Boosalis said the person would be charged with overseeing the CCIC budget, drafting legislation needed to carry out some recommendations and working with the public.

In further action, the council approved a 129,000 revenue sharing grant to the YMCA.

Appointment OK'd

The council also approved the mayor's appointment of R. E. Hall to the Personnel Board, replacing James Tisdale.

And during the public hearing, attorney Merritt James testified against a proposed paving subsidy program for the Clinton neighborhood. The Community Development Department is asking that Potter from 31st to 32nd be paved with a 75% city subsidy. The council already has approved a similar subsidy to another paving district in Clinton.

James objected to Clinton residents receiving "special treatment" when other taxpayers do not receive similar benefits. He said he favors city programs to rehabilitate housing in older neighborhoods.

The subsidy is part of the Clinton redevelopment program aimed at erasing blight and decay in the north central neighborhood.

The council also:

Haymarket Parking Hits Snags

Remember last week when your City Council said it had found a way to provide more parking for downtown Lincoln by turning the Haymarket Square block into a parking lot?

Well, don't expect to park your car there for a while.

On Monday, council members found out they may only get half a parking lot -- at least until the summer of '76.

It seems that the traffic engineering staff, which is housed in the former police service garage, can't move out until their new headquarters building is constructed in May 1976.

No Place Else

Traffic Engineer Bob Holsinger said he knows of no other place to house his staff during the interim period.

"It's not simply a matter of picking up boxes and moving out," he said, since sophisticated electrical testing equipment has been installed in the garage. And if other space is found, Holsinger said, it may cost the city more money than it wants to pay to move that equipment.

That leaves the east half of the block, housing the old fire and police stations.

Only one city office is housed in that section -- the property division people, who said they can pack up and leave any time.

Council members said Monday they could raze the buildings and put in a parking lot on the eastern half of the block.

But, as Finance Chief James

Mallon quickly pointed out, there's this problem of money. It seems that it would cost around $62,000 to demolish the old police and fire buildings and another $49,000 to put in a temporary parking lot. (Or $111,000 to put in a permanent lot.)

There's only $115,000 left in the city treasury's contingency fund, Mallon said. Some $30,000 of that should be left in the bank as a reserve for other emergencies, he said.

Overall cost to demolish buildings on the entire block is estimated at $87,000. Cost to build a temporary lot on the entire block carries an $81,000 price tag, Obering said, while a permanent lot would cost the city $185,000.

Council members said they would like to put in some parking on the block as soon as possible and asked Mallon to report back on the financial picture next week.

Parking Lot Planned

The council decided to put a parking lot on the old municipal building block, at 9th and R, in order to relieve parking problems downtown. In going that route, the lawmakers rejected proposals from two private developers to convert the block into either a motel or newspaper warehousing operation.

It has not been decided whether the city or a private developer would operate the parking lot.

When the lawmakers tabbed the block for cars, they also sent O St. property owners a higher bill for beautifying the city's main street. The businessmen had said they'd be willing to foot more of O St.'s $1.9 million cost if more parking were made available downtown. The merchants haven't responded to the city's O St. financial package yet.

City Asks County To Help Pay For Solid Waste Study

City lawmakers asked the County Board Monday to reconsider a previous decision and fork over some money to help pay for a solid waste study.

The council was told by Public Works Director Bob Obering that the city is short $20,000 to $30,000 on a study estimated to cost more than $100,000.

Obering, who along with several department heads is interviewing four consultants who want the job, says the study would cover the rural area of the county if more money is made available.

Last fall the County Board said it didn't want to pick up any checks for the study. Since then, Commissioner Bruce Hamilton was elected to the board and his vote could sway the entire board's position.

County Commissioner Jan Gauger previously has favored county participation in the study, while Commissioner Bob Coltin has opposed it.

Obering pointed out that a proposed state law may force the county to prepare a plan on handling solid waste in the county.

If the county reversed its previous decision and helped out the city, Obering said, "Your problems will be solved with this study."

Commissioner Gauger also told a joint meeting of the council and board that she is looking at alternate sites to house the motor vehicles department.

Last week the county gave up a plan to house the office in the city's Antelope Park, primarily because the proposal had come under increasing fire from the public.

Boosalis Is Leading Money Raiser

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Helen Boosalis is in the money, Sam Schwartzkopf is in hock and Jo Bragg is hanging in there.

Those are the financial revelations from the first campaign spending reports filed by the three persons seeking to be the next mayor of Lincoln.

The report filed by Ms. Bragg revealed contributions of $546 and expenditures of $536.

Schwartzkopf's report showed a loan of $5,000 from the Gateway Bank, $1,429 in contributions and $5,513 in expenditures.

Mrs. Boosalis reported contributions totaling $5,943.50. Contributors were listed in six pages. She reported expenditures of $4,583.

In the crowded race for City Council, all but candidate William Thierstein filed campaign spending reports for the first reporting period. Reports on primary spending campaign must also be made on April 8 and 23.

Of candidates for council, Steve Tiwald was the cash flow leader. He reported contributions of $2,774 and expenditures of $2,662.

Of the other three candidates who reported funds both coming in and going out, Richard Baker reported contributions of $1,214 and expenditures of $675, Jim Carson reported contributions of $125 and expenses of $12 and Steve Cook reported $280 in contributions and $10 in expenditures.

Two candidates reported expenditures, but no contributions. They were Bruce Douthitt, who reported a $10 expense and Robert Muggy, who reported $73 in expenses.

Ron Kurtenbach reported $15 in contributions, but no expenses. Unlike some other candidates, Kurtenbach did not report his $10 filing fee as an expense.

There were Rudolph Deinert, Stephen Marx, Mary Rogge, John V. King, Robert Jeambey, F. Bob Sikyta and Hale Laws.

A candidate for the Lincoln School Board also filed a campaign spending report, although spokesmen in the election commissioner's office said the report is apparently not required in that race.

Lu Pansing reported she raised $1,014, but spent none. The other five candidates in the race made no report.

Comprehensive Plan Issue To Be On May 6 City Ballot

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

When Lincoln voters go to the polls May 6, they'll have a chance to make the City Council accountable for the Comprehensive Plan and make city law agree with state law.

The issue was placed on the ballot by the council Monday.

Voter approval of the amendment would have the effect of making the charter conform to state law, since the Legislature just passed a comprehensive planning bill affecting Lincoln and Lancaster County. The bill, signed by Gov. J. James Exon on Friday, is, as Councilman Max Denney put it, "the law of the land."

Growth Blueprint

Until now, the advisory City-County Planning Commission has been charged with final adoption of the plan, generally regarded as the blueprint for growth and development in the city and county.

The charter change has garnered the support of the city's Charter Revision Commission and the League of Women Voters.

In other business, the council officially agreed to create a new, high powered building commission which would run the County-City Building. The County Board is scheduled to take action on that agreement Tuesday.

The seven-member panel would have the authority to hire a professional building manager and review space allocation to various offices in the overcrowded public building. Budgets would need council and County Board approval.

The only change made by city lawmakers in the agreement was the make-up of the seven-member commission.

The council decided elected officials should be represented on the panel — two from the city and two county commissioners. The remaining three members would be appointed by the four elected officials.

Councilman John Robinson objected to that change on the grounds that the elected officials would serve as "an impediment rather than promoters" of city-county cooperation in running the building.

Robinson maintained, "The reason we're forming this commission is to remove us" from the day-to-day decision making process.

The city lawmakers also will seek County Board approval of another matter affecting future city-county consolidation. The council authorized the five-member City-County Implementation Commission (CCIC) to hire an executive director.

CCIC members believe full-time help is needed to push further city-county merger efforts. The staffer would receive an annual wage in the $18,000-$23,000 range, Council President Helen Boosalis said.

Mrs. Boosalis said the person would be charged with overseeing the CCIC budget, drafting legislation needed to carry out some recommendations and working with the public.

In further action, the council approved a 129,000 revenue sharing grant to the YMCA.

Appointment OK'd

The council also approved the mayor's appointment of R. E. Hall to the Personnel Board, replacing James Tisdale.

And during the public hearing, attorney Merritt James testified against a proposed paving subsidy program for the Clinton neighborhood. The Community Development Department is asking that Potter from 31st to 32nd be paved with a 75% city subsidy. The council already has approved a similar subsidy to another paving district in Clinton.

James objected to Clinton residents receiving "special treatment" when other taxpayers do not receive similar benefits. He said he favors city programs to rehabilitate housing in older neighborhoods.

The subsidy is part of the Clinton redevelopment program aimed at erasing blight and decay in the north central neighborhood.

The council also:

City Asks County To Help Pay For Solid Waste Study

City lawmakers asked the County Board Monday to reconsider a previous decision and fork over some money to help pay for a solid waste study.

The council was told by Public Works Director Bob Obering that the city is short $20,000 to $30,000 on a study estimated to cost more than $100,000.

Obering, who along with several department heads is interviewing four consultants who want the job, says the study would cover the rural area of the county if more money is made available.

Last fall the County Board said it didn't want to pick up any checks for the study. Since then, Commissioner Bruce Hamilton was elected to the board and his vote could sway the entire board's position.

Last week the county gave up a plan to house the office in the city's Antelope Park, primarily because the proposal had come under increasing fire from the public.

The drivers' license bureau is now housed in the County-City Building. The office was to be moved out of the building in order to permit some major office shuffling to allow construction of the fourth Municipal courtroom.

New Air Structure More Flexible

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Air bubbles aren't novelties any more but neither are they standard building structures. Peter Hoffmann reports from the Bonn bureau of McGraw-Hill World News on new designs that could bring an air structure to your town.)

By PETER HOFFMANN
Bonn — In cost-conscious communities in the U.S. and abroad, air-supported buildings have been winning increasing favor. Fund-starved colleges use them as low-cost swimming pool coverings or fieldhouses. In Europe, a Swiss retailer has put up a 107,000 sq. ft. supermarket near Zurich; another big bubble has been adorning the Hanover, Germany, fairgrounds for the last 10 years.

Now German architects have come up with an improved design that promises better economy, more design flexibility, and the prospect of covering virtually unlimited ground space.

The designers and the builder, Krupp Universalbau of Essen, subsidiary of the famous Krupp group, call their creation an "air pillow" structure. And that is exactly what it is — a big inflated pillow serving as a roof that seemingly hovers, almost balloon-like, over the space and people below. Only the space inside the pillow is pressurized at slightly above atmospheric pressure. That means inflating as little as 20% of the volume of a normal air-supported structure. In turn, that requires smaller and more economical air blowers and heaters to melt snow off the roof.

The space underneath the pillow remains at normal atmospheric pressure, like any conventional building. One advantage is that the design does away with locks or "doors" required on normal air-supported structures to keep pressure up and the building in shape.

Architect Rudolf Kleine who designed the building says a conventional air structure, "is either up or down, nothing else. You can't change its usable configuration. With this type of design you can cover space of any size and of any shape. You can design a building with courtyards on the inside, for example."

The translucent, weather-resistant, flame-retardant and non-abrasive material of the structure consists of tough polyester fabric covered on both sides with PVC. Krupp says it has a guaranteed lifetime of at least 15 years. "Replacing the skin doesn't cost any more than renovating the roofing of a conventional flat-roofed industrial building," Kleine claims.

Krupp has erected two such "air pillow" structures in a model program, supported with some German government funding in the small town of Rulzheim in southern Germany. The first covers an indoor-outdoor pool, the second, completed last December, is a multipurpose 118-ft. diameter recreations building intended for lectures, amateur theater and just plain town hall. Because the building doesn't need airlocks the wall can be opened all around, letting the air and the sun in during the summer. Normally, the twin-membraned roof is anchored tautly to the structure's concrete foundation but these anchorages can be released. The pillow held by a system of guy wires, floats some 13 feet upwards, opening up the sides all around. During storms, the big bubble can be tied down, snug to the foundation.

Such amenities did not come cheap. The recreation center, not including extensive landscaping, and other surrounding facilities, cost $560,000. Kleine figures that a conventional structure of wood and concrete would have cost 25% to 50% more. But a conventional air-supported structure with the same usable floor space and similar appointments would have cost some $80,000 less. Still, Kleine thinks the economics would change markedly for the better in a larger structure, perhaps 30 to 40% less than for a conventional air-supported design.

More Questions Than Exclamations In Boys City Track

By RANDY YORK

Prep Sports Editor

Even though it's track season, Lincoln is seeing more snow plows than sunbathers.

Track in Nebraska is experiencing its usual unpredictable, snowy start and, consequently, there are more question marks than exclamations points.

The biggest question marks at Lincoln's five high schools are Mike Washington's consistency, Doug Caulkins' leg, Rich Brandtas' starts, Gary Karthaus' inexperience and Jim Smiley's decision on which events to run.

It's no secret that Lincoln High's Washington experienced a sub-par football season last fall despite receiving a Nebraska football scholarship.

An all-state linebacker as a junior, he missed making the all-city team as a senior because of inconsistency.

Harold Scott, starting his 22nd season as the Links' head track coach, is hoping Washington avoids that same problem in track.

"So far this spring, he's been up and down," Scott says of Washington. "He'll get some good throws, but he hasn't been able to keep from scratching."

Washington heaved the shot 56-9/4 in the state meet last spring. He threw 51-11 last week in a Lincoln High intra-class meet.

Caulkins' leg is causing second-year East coach Bob Eyth concern. The senior sprinter, author of two wind-aided :59.6 efforts in the 100-yard dash last spring, was forced out of competition last weekend in an indoor meet at the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

"He pulled up in the quarterfinals of the 60," Eyth said of Caulkins. "He won his preliminary heat, but his right leg has been sore and giving him problems."

"He's been lifting weights and working out since December," Eyth added. "He's a lot stronger and determined to run."

"But he may have to lay off the 100 until mid-season," the East coach says. "He's been doing lots of stretching exercises to help the leg. If he stays out of the 100 for awhile, he won't have to dig in as hard and get out of the blocks."

Brandtas, Lincoln Southeast's standout hurdler who finished fourth in the Class A 180 lows last spring, is concentrating on work out of the blocks.

Bad starts cost him dearly in his specialty, the 120 highs, at the state meet. He was charged with two false starts and disqualified from the state meet finals after posting a :14.7 in preliminary competition.

Brandtas joins teammate Scott Tallman, East's Bill Holmes and Lincoln Northeast's Steve Elikier as likely premier state-wide hurdlers.

Northeast's Karthaus is only a sophomore, but some coaches expect him to rank among the state leaders in the 880, depending on how much varsity inexperience hurts his bid for honors.

"He certainly has high hopes for himself," acknowledges Northeast track coach Clayton Luther, who replaces Max Hester at the Rocket helm this spring.

"Gary has his sights set somewhere around 1:56, but it's a pretty tall order for a sophomore," says Luther, a 3-year letterman catcher on the Nebraska baseball team before graduating in 1966. He served two years as an assistant under Hester at Northeast.

"Gary ran right at two minutes as a freshman, but he hurt his lower back last year," notes Luther. "He layed off last summer and does 20 minutes of stretching exercises every night to get his back in shape.

"He's a very intense young man and wants things to happen," adds Luther, who has another standout sophomore in Mike Sales, author of a city record :52.4 quarter as a freshman.

Lincoln Pius X pins its hopes on senior sprinter Smiley, but seventh-year coach George O'Boyle plans "to dip and dab him in other races. He's still not convinced what his best events are."

"He can run anything from the 100 to the half mile," says O'Boyle. "He prefers the sprints, but he ran a :51.6 last year at district in the 440 and right at 2-flat in the half after the season in Jr. Olympic competition."

Smiley and O'Boyle aren't likely to make a decision until early May.

Meanwhile, question marks prevail.

If Southeast solves a few, especially among some untested sophomore sprinters, the Knights could challenge East and Northeast for top city track honors.

Roy Churchill, head track coach at Southeast since the school opened, is confident attitude will present no problems.

"This year's group of athletes is more dedicated and has better attitudes than any group we've had here in the past several years," Churchill offers.

"That's not knocking the others," he adds. "This is just an outstanding group to work with. They have their minds set on winning."

NU Gym Team To NCAA Meet?

By RYLY JANE RUSSELL

Star Sports Writer

The outcome of the Big Ten gymnastics meet this Thursday and Friday will determine if the Nebraska gymnasts go to the NCAA finals at Terre Haute, Ind., April 3-5.

Should the Huskers be formally invited, it would be the first time in the 33 year-history of the meet that the Huskers would be represented as a team.

"We have to wait to be invited formerly until the Big Ten meet is over, in case its second team scores more than we did (413.60)," Husker coach Francis Allen said. "But I don't think their second can beat us, so we've made our reservations."

The Big Ten is the last of the major conferences to have its qualifying meet. There are eight conferences that send individuals to the NCAA meet, and if the winning team scores more than 400 total points, the team is invited to participate.

The Big Eight's representative is Iowa State University. From the Southern Intercollegiate Gymnastics League is Louisiana State University, Arizona State will represent the WAC, Cal-Berkeley of the Pac. Eight and Indiana State, the host team, represents the Eastern Independent Gymnastics League.

Two conferences failed to qualify teams for the competition. Temple University won the Eastern Intercollegiate League, but failed to surpass the 400 mark, as did Long Beach State, the champions of the Western Independent Gymnastics League.

One of the teams invited with the best score is Southern Illinois University, and the other will be either Nebraska or the second Big Ten team.

"We've sent individuals before, but this is the first time for the team to go," Allen said. "It should be a great meet."

"Whichever team goes in ahead after the compulsory will walk away with it," Allen continued. "We did that at the Rocky Mountain Open. We just got so far ahead that nobody could catch us. We beat Arizona State, Iowa State and SIU there."

Allen predicted Nebraska would do well, if all gymnasts have a good day.

"Gene (Mackie) hurt his back on the high bar, the last event of the first day of the Big Eight meet, which hurt us. He's back to 100% now and doing two routines in every event every day," Allen said.

"We're all set to go. The NCAA has our name on the computer all set to punch it into the program after the Big Ten meet this weekend. I've got a direct line to the meet so I'll know just what's happening."

The Husker traveling team will include Big Eight titlist Pete Studenski on the rings, Gary Duff, conference champ on the parallel bars, Jim Unger, who placed second in floor exercises and vaulting, Gene Mackie, second place all-arounder, Steve Dickey, second in pommel horse and Larry Gerard, who placed third in the all-around competition.

Other gymnasts going are Kurt Mackie, Larry Cosgrove, Gary Jourink, Frank O'Connor David Schulte and Duane West.

Arkansas Shells NU

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Arkansas socked in four runs in the first inning of both games to take a twin bill from Nebraska Monday, 15-6 and 10-4.

The day was cold and windy but Arkansas racked up 14 hits in the opener off three Nebraska pitchers and 10 runs in the second game off Kirk Eymann and Boyd Batenhorst. Eymann and Dave Buehrer took the losses.

Two more games are slated for Tuesday.

FIRST GAME
Nebraska 220 110 0-6 10 3
Arkansas 424 04 x-15 14 1
Buehrer (4), Batenhorst (6)
and Fowler, Bradford, Simons (2), and Andree WP—Simons LP—Buehrer, 0-2.

SECOND GAME
Nebraska 100 002 1-4 3 3

Cage Contest Set For Area Youths

All youths from eight to 13-years-old in Lancaster County are eligible to enter the Optimist Tri-Star Basketball Contest Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the National Guard Armory.

Information on the contest is available from either the Lincoln Optimist Noon and Evening Clubs, the sponsors.

Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali has challenger Chuck Wepner in the corner during the first round.

Norton Stymies Quarry For TKO

NEW YORK (AP)—Ken Norton blasted Jerry Quarry into retirement Monday night, bloodying the heavyweight's face and stopping him in the fifth round of their scheduled 12-round fight at Madison Square Garden.

"No more pictures," said Quarry, hiding his face from photographers. "I want to go out with a little pride."

Norton cut Quarry's right eye in the third round and then closed his other eye, leaving his opponent helpless as referee Johnny LoBianco stopped the fight at 2:29 of the fifth round.

"I couldn't see," said Quarry. "I gave it a try. The time has come to quit."

Norton, the ex-Marine from San Diego, had opened fast, scoring well with lefts and rights in the first round.

Quarry, the fifth-ranked heavyweight, fought back in the second round, stalking Norton and landing blows repeatedly.

In the third round, after Norton cut Quarry at the side of his right eye, Quarry came storming back with lefts and rights that backed Norton against the ropes.

But that was Quarry's last burst. In the fourth round, Norton became the slugger, showering Quarry with lefts and rights and staggering his opponent several times.

By then, both fighters were covered with Quarry's blood and Norton went to work on the other eye.

Teddy Brenner, director of boxing at the Garden, said he would try to make a title match between Norton and Ali or, failing that, would attempt an Ali-Frazier matchup for the arena.

Customers Are Always Right

New Delhi (UPI)—One thing is a sure bet at race courses across India—it isn't healthy for the favorite to lose.

Track officials in the South Indian city of Madras were quaking in their riding boots Sunday when heavily favored fair Angella and Calvados finished only fourth and third respectively in the fourth race.

As the result went up, losing bettors tore apart the stands and hurled their seats at the Totalizator, the Press Trust of India (PTI) reported.

Sooner Coach Ramsey Quits Under Pressure

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—Joe Ramsey, head basketball coach at the University of Oklahoma the past two seasons, resigned Monday under pressure despite a winning season.

The resignation was announced by athletic director Wade Walker, who said that although Ramsey's resignation is not effective until June 30, he will sever all connection with the basketball program immediately.

Ramsey, who has never had a losing season anywhere as a head basketball coach, is the first Oklahoma basketball coach forced out despite a winning record. He was 31-21 at Oklahoma and 15-13 in Big Eight Conference competition.

The subject of Ramsey came up at the university's board of regent's meeting last week, but no action was taken. There were indications, however, that his contract might not be extended when it came up for renewal at the end of the 1974-75 budget year.

"Mr. Ramsey's resignation probably represents the best solution to a difficult problem both for him and the university," said Dr. Paul Sharp, university president. "He is a capable young man who, with more experience and at another time and place, should be an asset to another intercollegiate athletic program."

Walker said the athletic council would meet soon to discuss the procedures for setting up a search committee to look for a new coach.

Ramsey came to Oklahoma from Robert Morris Junior College at Carthage, Ill., just before the start of the 1973-74 season after the death of head coach Lester Lane. He had a 125-25 record at Robert Morris and two of his teams there finished third in the national junior college basketball tournament.

He held the record for the most wins of the six coaches whose teams played in the old

Joe Ramsey

Oklahoma fieldhouse, which saw its last intercollegiate game played this past season. A new fieldhouse will be in use next season. His record in the old fieldhouse was 17-5 for a 77.3 per cent winning record.

This past season his squad defeated four teams which went to either the NCAA or NIT tournaments—Furman, South Carolina, San Diego State and Kansas State.

"Sometimes we fail to live up to the expectations that other people set for us," Ramsey said in a statement. "Sometimes the difficulty of the situation is overlooked."

"I'm sure that some people thought our team should have accomplished a better record than we did. In order to end all the conflict that has arisen over the situation, I felt it would be in the best interest of the university and the team that I resign."

Ramsey said he enjoyed his relationship with the team. "They are first-class youngsters who tried hard in every game," he said. "I have the utmost respect for them."

He also expressed his respect for assistant coaches Charles Spoonhour and Eddie Evans and added that "sometimes a situation like this is tougher on them than it is on the head coach."

GI's Swihart Opposes Pari-Mutuel Tax Hike

By MARK GORDON

Star Sports Writer

It shouldn't be any surprise, but Al Swihart agrees entirely with John Newman's recent speech at New Orleans.

Newman, immediate past president of the National Association of State Racing Commissioners, told the group last Wednesday that they should battle proposed increases in the pari-mutuel takeout.

Newman is quoted by the Daily Racing Form as saying: "I believe anything in excess of 16% (of the total handle) is unfair to the wagering public. We should strive to convince our administrations and legislators that increasing the takeout is self-defeating."

In Nebraska, Bellwood Sen. Loran Schmidt originally introduced a bill to increase the Nebraska mutuel takeout from 15 to 17%. That measure failed to get out of the Revenue Committee.

Last Friday, Schmidt used his position as chairman of the Agriculture Committee to get the measure introduced again. He eliminated all of the provisions of LB519 which was intended to finance the construction of a quarter horse track in the Kearney area.

He then added an amendment which was identical to his original pari-mutuel tax bill which the Revenue Committee killed.

"I think it was a smart and fair thing for the Revenue Committee to vote the bill down," said Swihart, general manager of Fonner Park in Grand Island. "There's only so much money to take out so many times. You can't keep taking out or there'll be nothing left."

As an example, Swihart pointed to Fonner's last Thursday mutuel handle of $273,581. He estimated that the total handle represents about a turnover four times, meaning that the patrons originally brought about $70,000 to the track and kept betting that original figure for nine races until the final $273,581 mark was reached.

"The total bet is very misleading—that really isn't how much money was brought to the track," he said. "Remember that 15% is taken from each dollar bet—if it were increased then it would really hurt us—it would break that many more people earlier."

Swihart said as long as Nebraska stays with a 15% takeout it would be bearable, but trouble looms if that takeout is increased.

Schmidt's bill, now LB519, will provide an extra 1% of the handle (from the present 5 to 6%) to the tracks. But Swihart discounted the positive effects of that move.

"It would help us in gross, but remember we give away about half of our take to the horsemen as purses, so we're really only talking gaining an extra half per cent," he said. "But we still have to pay expenses and I couldn't even begin to guess how much our expenses have gone up in recent years."

"For a track of our size, we sure are going to need relief at some point," Swihart said. "We haven't had a nickel increase in our share of the mutuel handout and our expenses have gone sky-high."

"The only way we can stay alive is if our handle keeps going up. That helps us offset our expenses," he continued. "But if we'd have a bad year and our handle went down, we'd really be in trouble."

While Swihart said it was improbable that a bill would ever be introduced in the Unicameral to lower the takeout, he said it was quiet likely that attempts would be made in future years to introduce bills to increase the tax.

Nebraska once had the lowest mutuel takeout in the nation of pari-mutuel thoroughbred racing operations at 14%. Now it's 15%—10% to the tracks and 5% to the state with the tracks keeping all 15% of the first $1 million in handle.

Fifteen per cent is tied for the lowest takeout of the major tracks currently running. Below is the total takeout of six tracks holding meetings and the breakdown between the state and track's share:

Detroit Race Course (Livonia, Mich.)—16 1/2% with 8% to the state and 8% to the track.

Aqueduct (New York City)—17% with 10 to the state, 4% to the Association and 3% for purses.

Thistledown (North Randall, O.)—17 1/2% with a graduated scale from 4 1/4% to 8 1/4% to the state.

Fair Grounds (New Orleans)—17% starting with 12% to the track and five to the state. It graduates to 10% to the track and 7% to the state.

Latonia (Florence, Ky.)—15% with 10% to the track and 4% to the state.

Oaklawn Park (Hot Springs, Ark.)—16% with 10 to the track and 6% to the state.

Meeting Set On License For Midwest

Consideration of renewal of the amusement license for Midwest Speedway will be one of the items on the agenda at a meeting of the County Board Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 p.m.

The meeting is open to the public. It will be in the County Commissioners hearing room in the County-County Building.

The amusement license is required for Midwest to hold its state of summer auto racing.

More Questions Than Exclamations In Boys City Track

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Even though it's track season, Lincoln is seeing more snow plows than suntans.

Track in Nebraska is experiencing its usual unpredictable, snowy start and, consequently, there are more question marks than exclamation points.

The biggest question marks at Lincoln's five high schools are Mike Washington's consistency, Doug Caulkins' leg, Rich Brandfas' starts, Gary Karthaus' inexperience and Jim Smiley's decision on which events to run.

It's no secret that Lincoln High's Washington experienced a sub-par football season last fall despite receiving a Nebraska football scholarship.

An all-state linebacker as a junior, he missed making the all-city team as a senior because of inconsistency.

Harold Scott, starting his 22nd season as the Links' head track coach, is hoping Washington avoids that same problem in track.

"So far this spring, he's been up and down," Scott says of Washington. "He'll get some good throws, but he hasn't been able to keep from scratching."

Washington heaved the shot 56-9/4 in the state meet last spring. He threw 51-11 last week in a Lincoln High intra-class meet.

Caulkins' leg is causing second-year East coach Bob Eyth concern. The senior sprinter, author of two wind-aided :09.6 efforts in the 100-yard dash last spring, was forced out of competition last weekend in an indoor meet at the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

"He pulled up in the quarterfinals of the 60," Eyth said of Caulkins. "He won his preliminary heat, but his right leg has been sore and giving him problems."

"He's been lifting weights and working out since December," Eyth added. "He's a lot stronger and determined to run."

"But he may have to lay off the 100 until mid-season," the East coach says. "He's been doing lots of stretching exercises to help the leg. If he stays out of the 100 for awhile, he won't have to dig in as hard and get out of the blocks."

Brandfas, Lincoln Southeast's standout hurdler who finished fourth in the Class A 180 lows last spring, is concentrating on work out of the blocks.

Bad starts cost him dearly in his specialty, the 120 highs, at the state meet. He was charged with two false starts and disqualified from the state meet finals after posting a :14.7 in preliminary competition.

Brandfas joins teammate Scott Tallman, East's Bill Holmes and Lincoln Northeast's Steve Eliker as likely premier state-wide hurdlers.

Northeast's Karthaus is only a sophomore, but some coaches expect him to rank among the state leaders in the 880, depending on how much varsity inexperience hurts his bid for honors.

"He certainly has high hopes for himself," acknowledges Northeast track coach Clayton Luther, who replaces Max Hester at the Rocket helm this spring.

"Gary has his sights set somewhere around 1:56, but it's a pretty tall order for a sophomore," says Luther, a 3-year letterman catcher on the Nebraska baseball team before graduating in 1966. He served two years as an assistant under Hester at Northeast.

"Gary ran right at two minutes as a freshman, but he hurt his lower back last year," notes Luther. "He layed off last summer and does 20 minutes of stretching exercises every night to get his back in shape."

"He's a very intense young man and wants things to happen," adds Luther, who has another standout sophomore in Mike Sales, author of a city record :52.4 quarter as a freshman.

Lincoln Pius X pins its hopes on senior sprinter Smiley, but seventh-year coach George O'Boyle plans "to dip and dab him in other races. He's still not convinced what his best events are."

"He can run anything from the 100 to the half mile," says O'Boyle. "He prefers the sprints, but he ran a :51.6 last year at district in the 440 and right at 2-flat in the half after the season in Jr. Olympic competition."

Smiley and O'Boyle aren't likely to make a decision until early May.

Meanwhile, question marks prevail.

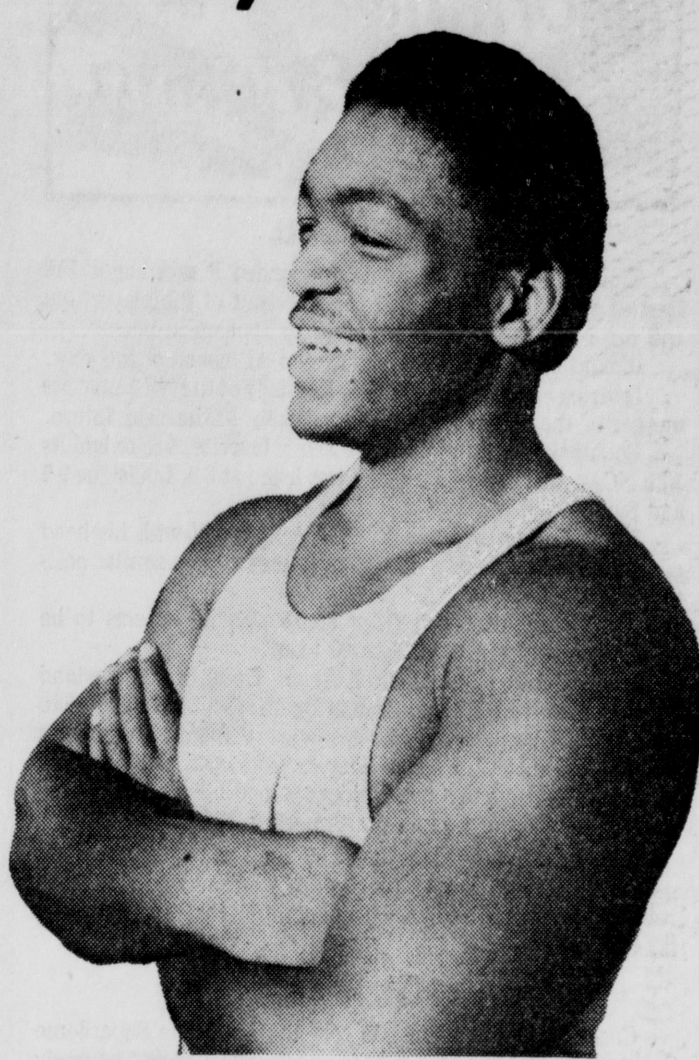

If Southeast solves a few, especially among some untested sophomore sprinters, the Knights could challenge East and Northeast for top city track honors.

Roy Churchill, head track coach at Southeast since the school opened, is confident attitude will present no problems.

"This year's group of athletes is more dedicated and has better attitudes than any group we've had here in the past several years," Churchill offers.

"That's not knocking the others," he adds. "This is just an outstanding group to work with. They have their minds set on winning."

By RYLY JANE RUSSELL
Star Sports Writer

The outcome of the Big Ten gymnastics meet this Thursday and Friday will determine if the Nebraska gymnasts go to the NCAA finals at Terre Haute, Ind., April 3-5.

Should the Huskers be formally invited, it would be the first time in the 33 year-history of the meet that the Huskers would be represented as a team.

"We have to wait to be invited formerly until the Big Ten meet is over, in case its second team scores more than we did (413.60)," Husker coach Francis Allen said. "But I don't think their second can beat us, so we've made our reservations."

The Big Ten is the last of the major conferences to have its qualifying meet. There are eight conferences that send individuals to the NCAA meet, and if the winning team scores more than 400 total points, the team is invited to participate.

The Big Eight's representative is Iowa State University. From the Southern Intercollegiate Gymnastics League is Louisiana State University. Arizona State will represent the WAC, Cal-Berkeley of the Pac. Eight and Indiana State, the host team, represents the Eastern Independent Gymnastics League.

Two conferences failed to qualify teams for the competition. Temple University won the Eastern Intercollegiate League, but failed to surpass the 400 mark, as did Long Beach State, the champions of the Western Independent Gymnastics League.

One of the teams invited with the best score is Southern Illinois University, and the other will be either Nebraska or the second Big Ten team.

"We've sent individuals before, but this is the first time for the team to go," Allen said. "It should be a great meet."

"Whichever team goes in ahead after the compulsory will walk away with it," Allen continued. "We did that at the Rocky Mountain Open. We just got so far ahead that nobody could catch us. We beat Arizona State, Iowa State and SIU there."

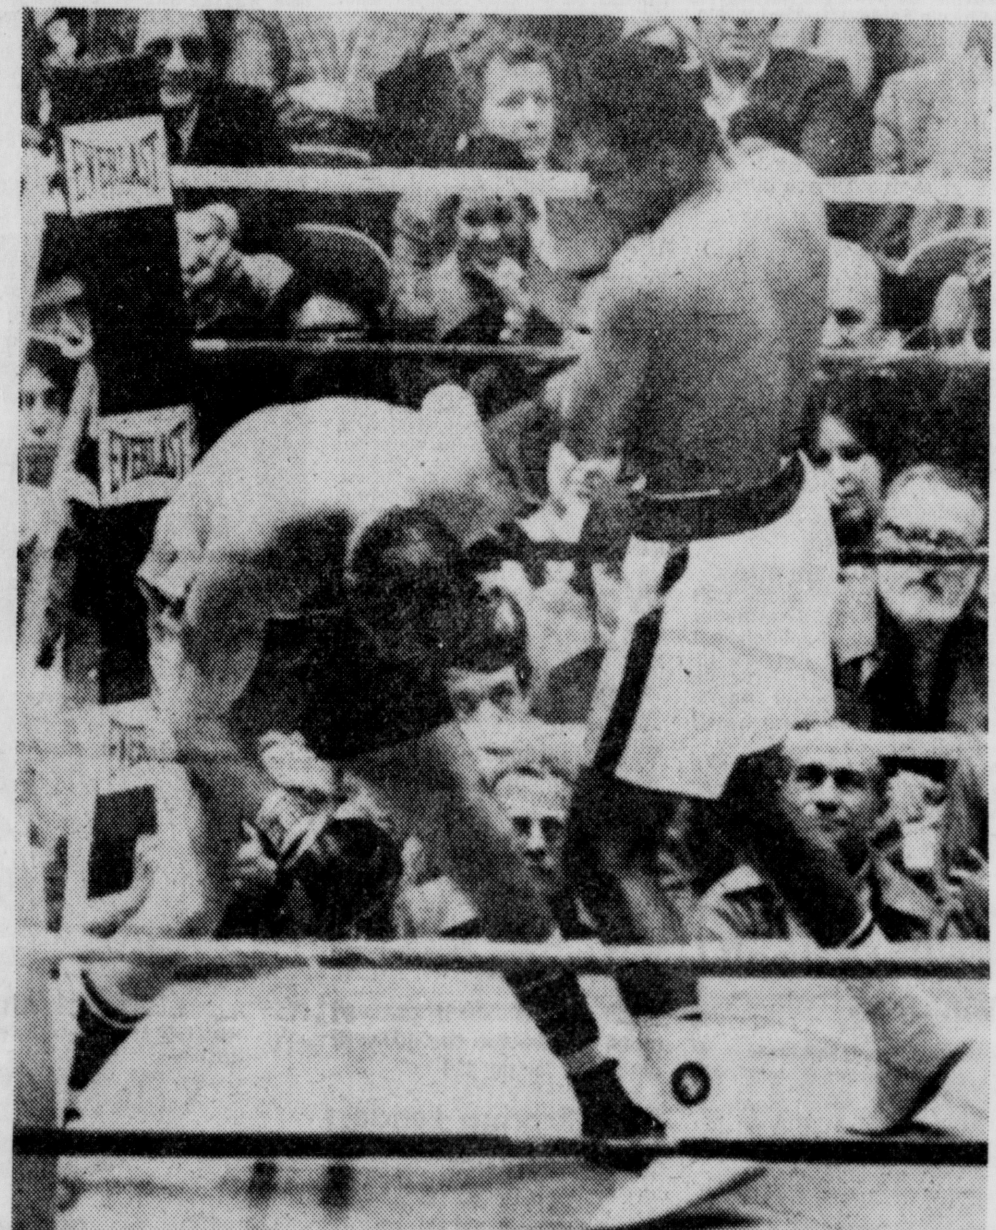

Allen predicted Nebraska would do well, if all gymnasts have a good day.

"Gene (Mackie) hurt his back on the high bar, the last event of the first day of the Big Eight meet, which hurt us. He's back to 100% now and doing two routines in every event every day," Allen said.

"We're all set to go. The NCAA has our name on the computer all set to punch it into the program after the Big Ten meet this weekend. I've got a direct line to the meet so I'll know just what's happening."

The Husker traveling team will include Big Eight titlist Pete Studenski on the rings, Gary Duff, conference champ on the parallel bars, Jim Unger, who placed second in floor exercises and vaulting, Gene Mackie, second place all-arounder, Steve Dickey, second in pommel horse and Larry Gerard, who placed third in the all-around competition.

Other gymnasts going are Kurt Mackie, Larry Cosgrove, Gary Jeirink, Frank O'Connor David Schulte and Duane West.

Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali has challenger Chuck Wepner in the corner during the first round.

Ali Registers TKO, Wepner's Bid Fails

RICHFIELD, Ohio (UPI) — "The man was a joke," said Muhammad Ali of Chuck Wepner after a travesty of a heavyweight championship fight in which he retained his title by stopping the challenger in the last 19 seconds of the 15th round.

It was a joke, indeed, and referee Tony Perez stopped counting over the fallen Wepner at the count of nine.

Wepner, 35, and dead game, simply had refused to go down under an unceasing barrage of punches over the last three rounds after having survived frustration throughout the bout and only one moment of simulated glory in the ninth round when a right hand sent Ali to the canvas for only the fourth time in his 48 fight career.

"I didn't get knocked down," Ali protested. "He just stepped on my toe and I couldn't get away."

But Perez insisted it had been a clean shot to which Ali's handler, Angelo Dundee, disagreed vehemently.

The scene at the end of the fight was chaos compounded, with Wepner sprawled on the canvas and Ali himself suddenly lying down. Dundee explained Ali's action by saying, "he went down to get away from the people. The only reason was he didn't want to get hurt by the mob in the ring. It was the funniest thing of the whole night."

There were those who disagreed with Dundee. It had been strictly an unfunny and sorry exhibition of what a title fight should be.

The paid attendance was a disappointing 14,847 in the 21,000 seat arena with prices scaled from $250 down to $15. It was a $15 fight.

Ali, sucking honey in his dressing room, said he would fight again in eight weeks but this time did not mention an opponent although previously he had said it would be European champion Joe Bugner in June.

Of the man he had battered about, Ali said, "I didn't pay no attention to him. I just let him play my game."

Wepner's reputation as a bleeder began to show in the seventh round when a slight cut appeared over his left eye.

From that point on Ali made the eye his favorite target and indeed rarely worked at all to Wepner's body.

By the end of the fight, the eye was completely shut and there were flecks of blood on Ali's white trunks. It had become a matter of pride to Wepner to stay on his feet. He never had been knocked down in his 41 pro bouts. But the string came to an end with a series of lefts and a thundering right in the last minute of the last round.

Wepner had survived the 14th round, staggering at times and then landing ineffective blows when Ali chose to rest on the ropes. At one point in the 13th round Wepner threw a wild right hand, missed Ali completely, spun around in his corner and caught the top strand of the rope to prevent his going down.

Wepner had said before the fight that his dream had been he would win the title by knocking out Ali in the 13th round. But, as had been virtually unanimously predicted, Wepner's dream had become a nightmare.

It was only the fourth time in his 48 bout career that Ali had been on the canvas. Sonny Banks, Henry Cooper and Joe Frazier previously had decked Ali.

Norton Stymies Quarry For TKO

NEW YORK (AP) — Ken Norton blasted Jerry Quarry into retirement Monday night, bloodying the heavyweight's face and stopping him in the fifth round of their scheduled 12-round fight at Madison Square Garden.

"No more pictures," said Quarry, hiding his face from photographers. "I want to go out with a little pride."

Norton cut Quarry's right eye in the third round and then closed his other eye, leaving his opponent helpless as referee Johnny LoBianco stopped the fight at 2:29 of the fifth round.

"I couldn't see," said Quarry. "I gave it a try. The time has come to quit."

Norton, the ex-Marine from San Diego, had opened fast, scoring well with lefts and rights in the first round.

Customers Are Always Right

New Delhi (UPI) — One thing is a sure bet at race courses across India — it isn't healthy for the favorite to lose.

Track officials in the South Indian city of Madras were quaking in their riding boots Sunday when heavily favored fair Angella and Calvados finished only fourth and third respectively in the fourth race.

As the result went up, losing bettors tore apart the stands and hurled their seats at the Totalizator, the Press Trust of India (PTI) reported.

Sooner Coach Ramsey Quits Under Pressure

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Joe Ramsey, head basketball coach at the University of Oklahoma the past two seasons, resigned Monday under pressure despite a winning season.

The resignation was announced by athletic director Wade Walker, who said that although Ramsey's resignation is not effective until June 30, he will sever all connection with the basketball program immediately.

Ramsey, who has never had a losing season anywhere as a head basketball coach, is the first Oklahoma basketball coach forced out despite a winning record. He was 31-21 at Oklahoma and 15-13 in Big Eight Conference competition.

The subject of Ramsey came up at the university's board of regent's meeting last week, but no action was taken. There were indications, however, that his contract might not be extended when it came up for renewal at the end of the 1974-75 budget year.

"Mr. Ramsey's resignation probably represents the best solution to a difficult problem both for him and the university," said Dr. Paul Sharp, university president. "He is a capable young man who, with more experience and at another time and place, should be an asset to another intercollegiate athletic program."

Walker said the athletic council would meet soon to discuss the procedures for setting up a search committee to look for a new coach.

Ramsey came to Oklahoma from Robert Morris Junior College at Carthage, Ill., just before the start of the 1973-74 season after the death of head coach Lester Lane. He had a 125-25 record at Robert Morris and two of his teams there finished third in the national junior college basketball tournament.

He held the record for the most wins of the six coaches whose teams played in the old Oklahoma fieldhouse, which saw its last intercollegiate game played this past season. A new fieldhouse will be in use next season. His record in the old fieldhouse was 17-5 for a 77.3 per cent winning record.

This past season his squad defeated four teams which went to either the NCAA or NIT tournaments — Furman, South Carolina, San Diego State and Kansas State.

"Sometimes we fail to live up to the expectations that other people set for us," Ramsey said in a statement. "Sometimes the difficulty of the situation is overlooked."

"I'm sure that some people thought our team should have accomplished a better record than we did. In order to end all the conflict that has arisen over the situation, I felt it would be in the best interest of the university and the team that I resign."

Ramsey said he enjoyed his relationship with the team. "They are first-class youngsters who tried hard in every game," he said. "I have the utmost respect for them."

He also expressed his respect for assistant coaches Charles Spoonhour and Eddie Evans and added that "sometimes a situation like this is tougher on them than it is on the head coach."

GI's Swihart Opposes Pari-Mutuel Tax Hike

Meeting Set On License For Midwest

Consideration of renewal of the amusement license for Midwest Speedway will be one of the items on the agenda at a meeting of the County Board Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 p.m.

The meeting is open to the public. It will be in the County Commissioners hearing room in the County-City Building.

The amusement license is required for Midwest to hold its slate of summer auto racing.

BASKETBALL

The National Hall of Fame announced it will honor Bill Russell by installing a stained glass portrait of the player, but will not formally induct him unless he appears in person.

Indiana's Bobby Knight was named AP coach of the year. Retiring commissioner Walter Kennedy of the NBA says the merger of the NBA and the ABA is likely in the near future.

Bookmakers made UCLA the heavy favorite, 4-5, to win its 10th NCAA title, while Kentucky was listed at 8-5, Louisville 9-5 and Syracuse at 8-1.

Eddie Sutton says he's "very, very happy" with his head coaching job at Arkansas and is not interested in a similar position at Clemson.

North Carolina coach Dean Smith says he expects to be named coach of the U.S. Olympic team.

Lusia Harris of national champion Delta State, Wayland Baptist's Carolyn Bush and Brenda Moeller, William Penn's Jan Irby, Immaculata's Marianne Crawford, Cal-State Fullerton's Nancy Dunkle, UCLA's Ann Meyers, Indiana's Debbie Oing, Southern Connecticut's Sue Rojewicz, and Elton's Susan Yow were named to the women's all-American team.

FOOTBALL

Contractors and architects told the Louisiana Superdome Commission that the $163-million sports palace would be ready by Aug. 1, eight days before the New Orleans Saints first home exhibition game.

Illinois all-state linebacker and heavyweight wrestling champion Brian Lantz of Stillman Valley High School signed a national letter of intent to attend Iowa State, coach Earle Bruce announced.

A six-member jury was selected to hear the $10-million civil suit banker Norman Hecht has brought against the Washington Redskins and the D.C. Armory Board over the pro football team's exclusive lease at RFK Stadium.

John Beake, former Kansas City Chiefs assistant coach, will be the offensive co-ordinator at Colorado State University.

BASEBALL

Trade rumors involving Cleveland right-hander Gaylord Perry continued as the Indians were idle in the Cactus League with the Boston Red Sox reportedly the team interested.

Jerold C. Hoffberger, board chairman of the Baltimore Orioles, responded with a "no comment" when asked about reports that a radio and television contract is the last obstacle to the sale of the team to a syndicate headed by Bill Vecek.

The Kansas City Royals obtained minor league player Doug Clark from the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for minor league relief pitcher Jim Foor.

HORSE RACING

Fire swept the Windsor, Ont., Harness Raceway clubhouse and grandstand, causing an estimated $2 million in damage and forcing cancellation of the rest of the winter season although no one or horse was injured.

Seven jockeys appear to be leaders in early balloting for election to the National Jockey's Hall of Fame at Pimlico Race Course, it was announced.

AUTO RACING

The only thing that remained in doubt after Richard Petty's domination of the Atlanta 500 Stock Car Race was the lap count mystery with Petty's and several other pit crews claiming the drivers went at least one and possibly two extra laps.

Petty increased his already considerable lead in the championship NASCAR point battle to 1,027 with Cecil Gordon second with 839.

OTHER SPORTS

Jeanne Evert defeated Terry Holladay, 6-4, 4-6, 6-2, in the opening of the $75,000 Virginia Slims Tennis Tournament.

Doctors made tests to determine the cause of abdominal pains that sent goalie Roger Crozier of the NHL's Buffalo Sabres to the hospital.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday for retired Dartmouth swimming coach Sidney Channing Hazelton, who died at the age of 86.

The Senate has been asked to designate the week of June 8-15 as "National Wheelchair Athletes' Week."

Chuck Wegner went into his bout with Muhammad Ali with the best wishes of the New Jersey Senate.

Hill Defends Handball Title

Rich Hill of Omaha defended his class A singles crown in the men's State Handball championships Sunday by defeating Randy Hsley of Lincoln 21-4, 21-15, Sunday at the Lincoln Downtown YMCA.

Terry Waite of Lincoln downed Jack Moore, also of Lincoln 21-19, 21-12 for the Class B title, while Gary Whitaker of Omaha and Leo Scherer of Lincoln captured the class A and B consolation titles respectively.

UCLA Takes No. 1 Spot

By The Associated Press
John Wooden's UCLA Bruins are back on top of the college basketball world. At least until Saturday.

In a week which saw major shuffling following Kentucky's $920 victory over previously top-ranked and undefeated Indiana, UCLA has moved into this week's Associated Press college basketball poll.

But there was no consensus among the 41 voters in the nationwide poll, except that there is a four-way struggle for the top spot.

1. UCLA (18) 26-3 732
2. Kentucky (15) 25-4 698
3. Indiana (16) 27-2 664
4. Louisville (10) 27-2 664
5. Maryland 24-5 633
6. Syracuse 24-3 643
7. Arizona State 25-2 626
8. N. Carolina St. 22-6 520
9. N. Carolina 23-8 280
10. Marquette 22-5 189
11. Alabama 22-5 181
12. Cincinnati 22-4 147
13. Princeton 17-9 481
14. Notre Dame 20-4 75
15. Kansas State 20-10 65
16. Drake 22-5 43
17. Pennsylvania 25-4 32
18. Centenary 19-8 21
19. Michigan 24-5 17

Morning Briefing

A Sports Roundup

BASKETBALL

The National Hall of Fame announced it will honor Bill Russell by installing a stained glass portrait of the player, but will not formally induct him unless he appears in person.

Indiana's Bobby Knight was named AP coach of the year. Retiring commissioner Walter Kennedy of the NBA says the merger of the NBA and the ABA is likely in the near future.

Bookmakers made UCLA the heavy favorite, 4-5, to win its 10th NCAA title, while Kentucky was listed at 8-5, Louisville 9-5 and Syracuse at 8-1.

Eddie Sutton says he's "very, very happy" with his head coaching job at Arkansas and is not interested in the same position at North Carolina.

New Carolina coach Dean Smith says he expects to be named coach of the U.S. Olympic team.

Lusia Harris of national champion Delta State, Wayland Baptist's Carolyn Bush and Brenda Moeller, William Penn's Jan Irby, Immaculata's Marianne Crawford, Cal-State Fullerton's Nancy Dunkle, UCLA's Ann Meyers, Indiana's Debbie Oing, Southern Connecticut's Sue Rojewicz, and Elon's Susan Yow were named to the women's all-American team.

FOOTBALL

Contractors and architects told the Louisiana Superdome Commission that the $163-million sports palace would be ready by Aug. 1, eight days before the New Orleans Saints first home exhibition game.

Illinois all-state linebacker and heavyweight wrestling champion Brian Lantz of Stillman Valley High School signed a national letter of intent to attend Iowa State, coach Earle Bruce announced.

A six-member jury was selected to hear the $10-million civil suit banker Norman Hecht has brought against the Washington Redskins and the D.C. Armory Board over the pro football team's exclusive lease at RFK Stadium.

John Beake, former Kansas City Chiefs assistant coach, will be the offensive co-ordinator at Colorado State University.

BASEBALL

Trade rumors involving Cleveland right-hander Gaylord Perry continued as the Indians were idle in the Cactus League with the Boston Red Sox reportedly the team interested.

Jerrold C. Hoffberger, board chairman of the Baltimore Orioles, responded with a "no comment" when asked about reports that a radio and television contract is the last obstacle to the sale of the team to a syndicate headed by Bill Veck. The Kansas City Royals obtained minor league player Doug Clark from the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for minor league relief pitcher Jim Foor.

California Angels' general Harry Dalton has a new contract good through the 1977 season.

HORSE RACING

Fire swept the Windsor, Ont., Harness Raceway clubhouse and grandstand, causing an estimated $2 million in damage and forcing cancellation of the rest of the winter season although no one or horse was injured.

Seven jockeys appear to be leaders in early balloting for election to the National Jockey's Hall of Fame at Pimlico Race Course, it was announced.

AUTO RACING

The only thing that remained in doubt after Richard Petty's domination of the Atlanta 500 Stock Car Race was the lap count mystery with Petty's and several other pit crews claiming the drivers went at least one and possibly two extra laps.

Petty increased his already considerable lead in the championship NASCAR point battle to 1,027 with Cecil Gordon second with 839.

OTHER SPORTS

Jeanne Evert defeated Terry Holladay, 6-4, 6-6, 6-2, in the opening of the $75,000 Virginia Slims Tennis Tournament.

Doctors made tests to determine the cause of abdominal pains that sent goalie Roger Crozier of the NHL's Buffalo Sabres to the hospital.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday for retired Dartmouth swimming coach Sidney Channing Hazelton, who died at the age of 86.

The Senate has been asked to designate the week of June 8-15 as "National Wheelchair Athletes' Week."

Chuck Wepner went into his bout with Muhammad Ali with the best wishes of the New Jersey State.

Hill Defends Handball Title

Rich Hill of Omaha defended his class A singles crown in the men's State Handball championships Sunday by defeating Randy Hisley of Lincoln 21-4, 21-15, Sunday at the Lincoln Downtown YMCA.

Terry Waite of Lincoln downed Jack Moore, also of Lincoln 21-19, 21-12 for the Class B title, while Gary Whitaker of Omaha and Leo Scherer of Lincoln captured the class A and B consolation titles respectively.

UCLA Takes No. 1 Spot

By The Associated Press
John Wooden's UCLA Bruins are back on top of the college basketball world. At least until Saturday.

In a week which saw major shuffling following Kentucky's 92-90 victory over previously top-ranked and undefeated Indiana, UCLA has moved into this week's Associated Press college basketball poll.

But there was no consensus among the 41 voters in the nationwide poll, except that there is a four-way struggle for the top spot.

1. UCLA (18) 26-3 732
2. Kentucky (5) 25-4 698
3. Indiana (8) 31-1 669
4. Louisville (10) 27-2 664
5. Maryland 29-3 633
6. Arizona State 23-7 343
7. Syracuse 25-4 322
8. N. Carolina State 22-4 320
9. N. Carolina 23-8 280
10. Marquette 23-4 199
11. Alabama 22-5 185
12. Cincinnati 22-6 184
13. Princeton 22-8 117
14. Notre Dame 19-10 83

Van Dusen Top Shooter

Lincoln Roberts' Deb Van Dusen won the free-throw shooting contest in conjunction with the Midwestern AAU girls basketball championships here Saturday.

Van Dusen, a Sunday Journal and Star all-city selection and honorable mention all-state, hit 23 of 25 attempts for the win.

In qualifying for the finals, Van Dusen hit 14 of 15 tries. Her Roberts team was also a winner, earning a trip to the nationals with a 53-50 overtime win over Omaha DAV.

2 Million Acres Pledged In State

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau
Hebron — An organizer of the 20% Ag Producers Movement said here Monday that more than 2 million Nebraska acres have now been pledged for leaving idle during the 1975 growing season.

Don Nelson, one of several Hildreth farmers spearheading a corn belt move to cut back feed grain production by 20%, was one of several farm representatives addressing 125 area farmers, mostly Thayer Countyans.

He said leaders have been enlisted in approximately 60 Nebraska counties to solicit voluntary pledges. The effort is being augmented by promotional letters and newspaper coupons.

"We're really rolling and getting the response now," Nelson enthused. "And 99% of the letters being returned are in favor of the cutback plan."

Nelson was one of six speakers at the two-hour informational meeting sponsored by the Thayer County Extension Service. He was one of 30 Nebraskans among some 4,000 farmers considering the cutbacks last week at Ames, Iowa.

Nelson said Monday that a followup Ames meeting is in prospect, probably April 10. He predicted an attendance of 10,000 to 15,000 for the second session.

"If you plant 100% this year, you may be wanting to cut to 40% next year," he warned. Nelson explained that the government's advocacy of fence-to-fence planting would drive grain prices further downward.

Intervention Forecast
Dr. Mike Turner, University of Nebraska Extension agricultural economist, said a 20% curtailment would result in "definite government intervention" to protect the domestic grain supply. He also predicted fall corn prices of $2 to $2.50 per bushel.

He said it is doubtful the U.S. will export as much corn next year as this, both because of shaky economic conditions overseas and because production is up in some other countries.

Daryl Holle of Jansen, representing the National Farmers Organization, said that production cutbacks "make very good sense."

"We're getting tired of producing because we owe it to somebody," he continued. "Agriculture is a business and must make a profit to survive."

Support Qualified
Paul Johnson, executive director of the Nebraska Livestock Growers Association, warned that grainmen "shouldn't price livestock producers out of the market." But he gave at least qualified support to the effort.

One observer, Hilmar Krueger of Hebron, said the curtailment could result in "the farmer being the scapegoat again" should it be a poor crop year. He explained that public opinion might react against the farmer in view of the world food problem.

Other speakers were Allen Kreuscher of DeWitt, president of the Nebraska Corn Growers Association, and Carl Schoenrock of Fairbury, representing the Farmers Union.

Cold, High Winds Rip Across State

Strong northwest winds, gusting over 60 miles per hour, combined with light snow and cold temperatures brought near blizzard conditions to most of Nebraska Monday on the fourth day of spring.

Hardest hit were the northeast and northern areas of the state where the high winds, clocked at up to 61 m.p.h. at Norfolk, kept highways hazardous due to drifting snow.

A Norfolk observer described the weather there as "rough," despite the fact that the northeast Nebraska city had only around an inch of snow during the day.

Big Weather System
The storm was part of a severe weather system affecting a big part of the upper Midwest Monday.

In Nebraska the storm began Sunday in the west, moving eastward during the day after dumping up to five inches of snow at Mullen and three at Valentine.

Hastings, in south central Nebraska, reported the state's strongest wind gusts Monday at 63 m.p.h. at 11 a.m.

In northern Nebraska, one-way traffic was reported in the Merriman-Cody vicinity.

As visibility dropped to zero at times Monday, snowplow crews were ordered off highways in the northeast, according to a spokesman from the state Highway Department.

100% Snowpacked
"All highways in the northeast and most of the roads in the west were 100% snowpacked Monday, the roads department advised."

Highways were also snowpacked in the Grand Island and Omaha areas.

In southeast Nebraska, Peru lost its power Monday when winds knocked out a power station. U.S. Highway 73-75 was closed for a time between Plattsmouth and Nebraska City because of drifting and several trucks that jackknifed.

The storm caught ranchers in the midst of calving, but most Sandhills ranchers had warning of the storm and the loss of calves was believed to be minimal.

In Lincoln, snowfall was limited to mostly flurries accompanied by high winds gusting up to 40 m.p.h. The barometer here rose to 29.65 by late Monday after falling to a low of 29.04 Sunday noon.

A Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co. spokesman reported minor problems with lines in rural areas around Lincoln due to the winds. Some of the rural lines wrapped together, and a few drop lines in Lincoln were downed by the strong winds, according to James Vanderslice of LT&T.

Service Restored
However, by early Monday night all telephone service was restored, he added.

Omahans, still jittery from their paralyzing January blizzard, postponed many Monday night meetings. The Douglas County courthouse closed at 3 p.m. Monday as a storm precautionary measure, and a number of schools in the area sent students home early.

Visibility Zero
In the Ord area of central Nebraska, the visibility was down to zero for a time Monday. Schools were closed Monday at Ord as well as at Burwell, Sargent and Taylor.

Temperatures Monday dipped as low as 10 degrees at Valentine. Lincoln's low was 21 degrees after a high of 64 Sunday.

Somewhat warmer weather is expected Tuesday and Wednesday, with highs in the state in the upper 30s to upper 40s.

More Elderly, Blind Receive Benefits Now

Omaha (AP) — A Social Security official says about 3,500 more elderly, blind and disabled Nebraskans received benefits under the federal Supplemental Security Income Program last year than under the old program it partially replaced.

Raymond Leach, manager of the Omaha District Social Security office, said about $7 million more in payments were made under the new program.

Leach said federal-state spending for the aged, blind and disabled increased by 71%, from $11.4 million in 1973 to $18.4 million in 1974 under the supplemental plan. The number of beneficiaries rose from 12,900 to 16,400.

He said state expenses under the new arrangement dropped from $3.7 million to $2.9 million, while federal expenditures rose from $7.7 million to $15.5 million.

The supplemental program provides a basic income floor of $146 a month for the aged, blind and disabled. This is supplemented in some cases by a state payment.

The program partially replaced the old state aid to the aged, blind and disabled welfare payments.

Douglas County Notified Insurance To Be Nixed

Omaha (AP) — Douglas County's auto insurance is being canceled, and Commissioner P. J. Morgan said Monday he is unhappy because the County Board has not been notified.

"It seems very unusual to me," Morgan said of the cancellation. "I think we should at least have been told about."

He said he will raise the matter at Tuesday's board meeting.

William Cuff, the county's purchasing agent, said Monday that the notice came last week that the county's policy with Hanover Insurance Co. of Kansas City will be canceled April 15.

Cuff said he heard about the possibility that the policy might be canceled earlier this month, but the notice didn't arrive until last week.

Cuff said apparently there have been too many accidents in relation to the premium the county is paying. Hanover's $7,800 bid for the one-year policy was $3,000 less than that of the nearest competitor.

Records showed 20 accidents claimed against the county since the policy went into effect Dec. 1. About $3,500 in claims have been paid so far, though some of the cases have not been settled.

4 Persons Die In 2-Car Crash

Scenic, S.D. (AP) — Four persons, including a Nebraskan, died in a two-vehicle crash near Scenic.

Officers said a car driven by Albert Coomes, 32, of White Clay, Neb., struck the rear of a car driven by Mathew Fights On, Manderson, S.D., Saturday.

Killed were Edith Eagle Hawk, 37; Linda Eagle Hawk, 4 months, and Earl Janus, 3, all passengers in the Fights On car. Coomes, who was alone, also was killed.

Auroran Spared In Fatal Crash

Inman, Kan. (AP) — Jonas Goering, 86, of rural Buhler, Kan., was fatally injured Sunday night in a two-car smashup on a McPherson County road north of Inman.

Authorities said Goering drove through a stop sign and into the path of a car driven by Theodore Jantzen of Aurora, Neb.

Jantzen and two other persons in his car escaped serious injury.

Stock Waste Control Meets Next Month

The Nebraska Department of Environmental Control will hold a series of four "Decision-Makers Workshops on Environment" in April. The meetings will deal with livestock feedlot pollution control with speakers from the DEC. According to E. A. Olson, Extension agricultural engineer at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, the sessions, to start at 1:30 p.m., are scheduled for: April 9, Community Room, First Federal Savings and Loan building, Norfolk; April 16, Student Union Chadron State College, Chadron; April 17, City Building, Ogallala; April 23, Student Center, Doane College, Crete.

Ajalt To Address Agri-Business Group

Kearney (AP) — J. Dawson Ajalt, a staff economist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, will be one of the major speakers for the Mid-America Agri-Business Congress here today and Wednesday. Topics for discussion will include land use zoning, water control, the energy shortage, consumer issues, money markets, transportation and the commodity market.

Nash-Finch Leaving North Platte

North Platte (UPI) — After 60 years of doing business in the North Platte area, a major food distribution firm has closed its branch operation in the city. Nash-Finch Co. of Minneapolis, Minn., said its North Platte area customers would be served out of its new distribution center in Grand Island. A spokesman said of the firm's estimated 25 North Platte employees, some have been offered transfers to Grand Island while others would remain in North Platte and seek other jobs.

AAL Grants Concordia Aid For Minorities

Seward — Dr. W. Th. Jansow, president of Concordia College here, announced that Concordia has been granted $2,000 by the Aid Association for Lutherans for the AAL's continuing Lutheran American minority scholarship program. AAL, a fraternal life insurance company of Appleton, Wis., has allocated funds for those Lutheran colleges and universities enrolling five or more Lutheran American minority students during the present academic year.

Dawson Feeders Select Wichelt

Omahan Pleads Guilty In Holdup Of Two Banks

Omaha (AP) — A former Omaha Golden Gloves boxing champion, charged in connection with two Metro bank robberies in the past three months, pleaded guilty Monday in U.S. District Court.

William L. "Boots" Washington, 34, appeared before Judge Albert G. Schatz, changing his earlier pleas of innocent to a total of four counts of bank larceny. The charges were filed in connection with the holdup of the Omaha National Bank Drive-In, Jan. 17, and March 6 holdup of the Mid-City Bank.

Schatz deferred sentencing pending an investigation by the federal probation office, and continued bond at $50,000. Washington remained in custody.

Washington asked Schatz to reduce the bond, but the judge said he could not under the circumstances. Washington was free on bond from the first bank robbery when he pulled the second holdup.

2 Million Acres Pledged In State

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau
Hebron — An organizer of the 20% Ag Producers Movement said here Monday that more than 2 million Nebraska acres have now been pledged for leaving idle during the 1975 growing season.

Don Nelson, one of several Hildreth farmers spearheading a corn belt move to cut back feed grain production by 20%, was one of several farm representatives addressing 125 area farmers, mostly Thayer Counties.

He said leaders have been enlisted in approximately 60 Nebraska counties to solicit voluntary pledges. The effort is being augmented by promotional letters and newspaper coupons.

'99% In Favor'
"We're really rolling and getting the response now," Nelson enthused. "And 99% of the letters being returned are in favor of the cutback plan."

Nelson was one of six speakers at the two-hour informational meeting sponsored by the Thayer County Extension Service. He was one of 30 Nebraskans among some 4,000 farmers considering the cutbacks last week at Ames, Iowa.

Nelson said Monday that a followup Ames meeting is in prospect, probably April 10. He predicted an attendance of 10,000 to 15,000 for the second session.

"If you plant 100% this year, you may be wanting to cut to 40% next year," he warned. Nelson explained that the government's advocacy of fence-to-fence planting would drive grain prices further downward.

Intervention Forecast
Dr. Mike Turner, University of Nebraska Extension agricultural economist, said a 20% curtailment would result in "definite government intervention" to protect the domestic grain supply. He also predicted fall corn prices of $2 to $2.50 per bushel.

He said it is doubtful the U.S. will export as much corn next year as this, both because of shaky economic conditions overseas and because production is up in some other countries.

Daryl Holle of Jansen, representing the National Farmers Organization, said that production cutbacks "make very good sense."

"We're getting tired of producing because we owe it to somebody," he continued. "Agriculture is a business and must make a profit to survive."

Support Qualified
Paul Johnson, executive director of the Nebraska Livestock Growers Association, warned that grainmen "shouldn't price livestock producers out of the market." But he gave at least qualified support to the effort.

One observer, Hilmar Krueger of Hebron, said the curtailment could result in "the farmer being the scapegoat again" should it be a poor crop year. He explained that public opinion might react against the farmer in view of the world food problem.

Other speakers were Allen Kreuscher of DeWitt, president of the Nebraska Corn Growers Association, and Carl Schoenrock of Fairbury, representing the Farmers Union.

WINDSWEPT... downtown Lincoln.

Cold, High Winds Rip Across State

Strong northwest winds, gusting over 60 miles per hour, combined with light snow and cold temperatures brought near blizzard conditions to most of Nebraska Monday on the fourth day of spring.

Hastings, in south central Nebraska, reported the state's strongest wind gusts Monday at 63 m.p.h. at 11 a.m.

In northern Nebraska, one-way traffic was reported in the Merriman-Cody vicinity.

As visibility dropped to zero at times Monday, snowplow crews were ordered off highways in the northeast, according to a spokesman from the state Highway Department.

100% Snowpacked
"All highways in the northeast and most of the roads in the west were 100% snowpacked Monday, the roads department advised."

Highways were also snowpacked in the Grand Island and Omaha areas.

In southeast Nebraska, Peru lost its power Monday when winds knocked out a power station. U.S. Highway 73-75 was closed for a time between Plattsmouth and Nebraska City because of drifting and several trucks that jackknifed.

The storm caught ranchers in the midst of calving, but most Sandhills ranchers had warning of the storm and the loss of calves was believed to be minimal.

In Lincoln, snowfall was limited to mostly flurries accompanied by high winds gusting up to 40 m.p.h. The barometer here rose to 29.65 by late Monday after falling to a low of 29.04 Sunday noon.

A Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co. spokesman reported minor problems with lines in rural areas around Lincoln due to the winds. Some of the rural lines wrapped together, and a few drop lines in Lincoln were downed by the strong winds, according to James Vanderslice of LT&T.

Service Restored
However, by early Monday night all telephone service was restored, he added.

Omahans, still jittery from their paralyzing January blizzard, postponed many Monday night meetings. The Douglas County courthouse closed at 3 p.m. Monday as a storm precautionary measure, and a number of schools in the area sent students home early.

Visibility Zero
In the Ord area of central Nebraska, the visibility was down to zero for a time Monday. Schools were closed Monday at Ord as well as at Burwell, Sargent and Taylor.

Temperatures Monday dipped as low as 10 degrees at Valentine. Lincoln's low was 21 degrees after a high of 64 Sunday.

Somewhat warmer weather is expected Tuesday and Wednesday, with highs in the state in the upper 30s to upper 40s.

More Elderly, Blind Receive Benefits Now

Omaha (AP) — A Social Security official says about 3,500 more elderly, blind and disabled Nebraskans received benefits under the federal Supplemental Security Income Program last year than under the old program it partially replaced.

Raymond Leach, manager of the Omaha District Social Security office, said about $7 million more in payments were made under the new program.

Leach said federal-state spending for the aged, blind and disabled increased by 71%, from $11.4 million in 1973 to $18.4 million in 1974 under the supplemental plan. The number of beneficiaries rose from 12,900 to 16,400.

He said state expenses under the new arrangement dropped from $3.7 million to $2.9 million, while federal expenditures rose from $7.7 million to $15.5 million.

The supplemental program provides a basic income floor of $146 a month for the aged, blind and disabled. This is supplemented in some cases by a state payment.

The program partially replaced the old state aid to the aged, blind and disabled welfare payments.

Douglas County Notified Insurance To Be Nixed

Omaha (AP) — Douglas County's auto insurance is being canceled, and Commissioner P. J. Morgan said Monday he is unhappy because the County Board has not been notified.

"It seems very unusual to me," Morgan said of the cancellation. "I think we should at least have been told about."

He said he will raise the matter at Tuesday's board meeting.

William Cuff, the county's purchasing agent, said Monday that the notice came last week that the county's policy with Hanover Insurance Co. of Kansas City will be canceled April 15.

Cuff said he heard about the possibility that the policy might be canceled earlier this month, but the notice didn't arrive until last week.

Cuff said apparently there have been too many accidents in relation to the premium the county is paying. Hanover's $7,800 bid for the one-year policy was $3,000 less than that of the nearest competitor.

Records showed 20 accidents claimed against the county since the policy went into effect Dec. 1. About $3,500 in claims has been paid so far, though some of the cases have not been settled.

4 Persons Die In 2-Car Crash

Scenic, S.D. (AP) — Four persons, including a Nebraskan, died in a two-vehicle crash near Scenic.

Officers said a car driven by Albert Coomes, 32, of White Clay, Neb., struck the rear of a car driven by Mathew Fights On, Manderson, S.D., Saturday.

Killed were Edith Eagle Hawk, 37; Linda Eagle Hawk, 4 months; and Earl Janis, 3, all passengers in the Fights On car. Coomes, who was alone, also was killed.

Auroran Spared In Fatal Crash

Inman, Kan. (AP) — Jonas Goering, 86, of rural Buhler, Kan., was fatally injured Sunday night in a two-car smashup on a McPherson County road north of Inman.

Authorities said Goering drove through a stop sign and into the path of a car driven by Theodore Jantzen of Aurora, Neb. Jantzen and two other persons in his car escaped serious injury.

Ajalt To Address Agri-Business Group

Kearney (AP) — J. Dawson Ajalt, a staff economist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, will be one of the major speakers for the Mid-America Agri-Business Congress here today and Wednesday. Topics for discussion will include land use zoning, water control, the energy shortage, consumer issues, money markets, transportation and the commodity market.

Nash-Finch Leaving North Platte

North Platte (UPI) — After 60 years of doing business in the North Platte area, a major food distribution firm has closed its branch operation in the city. Nash-Finch Co. of Minneapolis, Minn., said its North Platte area customers would be served out of its new distribution center in Grand Island. A spokesman said of the firm's estimated 25 North Platte employees, some have been offered transfers to Grand Island while others would remain in North Platte and seek other jobs.

AAL Grants Concordia Aid For Minorities

Seward — Dr. W. Th. Janzow, president of Concordia College here, announced that Concordia has been granted $2,000 by the Aid Association for Lutherans for the AAL's continuing Lutheran American minority scholarship program. AAL, a fraternal life insurance company of Appleton, Wis., has allocated funds for those Lutheran colleges and universities enrolling five or more Lutheran American minority students during the present academic year.

Dawson Feeders Select Wichelt

Omahan Pleads Guilty In Holdup Of Two Banks

Omaha (AP) — A former Omaha Golden Gloves boxing champion, charged in connection with two Metro bank robberies in the past three months, pleaded guilty Monday in U.S. District Court.

William L. "Boots" Washington, 34, appeared before Judge Albert G. Schatz, changing his earlier pleas of innocent to a total of four counts of bank larceny. The charges were filed in connection with the holdup of the Omaha National Bank Drive-In, Jan. 17, and March 6 holdup of the Mid-City Bank.

Schatz deferred sentencing pending an investigation by the federal probation office, and continued bond at $50,000. Washington remained in custody.

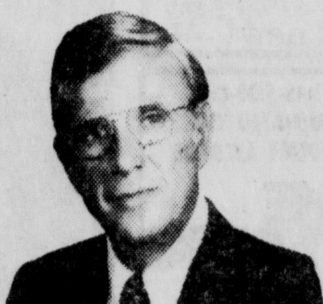

Washington asked Schatz to reduce the bond, but the judge said he could not under the circumstances. Washington was free on bond from the first bank robbery when he pulled the second holdup.

It's An Honor(?) For Norfolk

New York (UPI) — Esquire magazine Monday honored Norfolk Junior High School as the first of several American landmarks to be featured in the magazine's monthly bicentennial series.

Norfolk Junior High, once Norfolk Senior High, premiered the series in Esquire's April issue.

The educational facility was once attended by entertainer Johnny Carson, who moved to Nebraska from Iowa as a youngster.

Esquire noted it was in the senior high school where "young Carson's character was influenced by many hours spent studying English and algebra, acting with the Thespians and cheering the Norfolk Panthers on to victory as a member of the Minutemen pep club."

Summer vacation in the Norfolk area, Esquire said, provided Carson with "invaluable training for the rigors of hosting the Tonight Show."

The magazine went on to say the Norfolk Junior High School building, "towering over the Great Plains, graces the heart of the country."

Meyer To Keep Writing Memorandum On Courts

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

"As long as they read it and use it, I'll continue" former Nebraska Atty. Gen. Clarence Meyer said about the weekly memorandum on recent court opinions which he prepares for all law enforcement agencies in the state.

At no charge to the state, Meyer is still putting out the memorandum which has won wide acclaim.

Meyer told his successor, Paul Douglas, he would continue writing the memorandum until Douglas has an opportunity to get the office organized after the legislative session.

Douglas said he appreciates Meyer's willingness to continue his responsibility on a temporary basis, and he plans to continue the service which began in 1964.

Meyer abstracts the cases of interest to law enforcement for law enforcement rather than for lawyers.

He says law enforcement officers are not necessarily interested in the various legal points involved in a case but they are interested in the effect court rulings have on actual law enforcement.

The memorandum, which is part of the weekly "Bulletin" of the State Patrol, is sent to all law enforcement officers in Nebraska and to at least the head of the state patrol in practically every other state.

Meyer said the City of Las Vegas wanted to reprint it for its people and the University of Louisville uses it for law students.

The International Association of Chiefs of Police took an entire set of the memorandum to a meeting in London and it was suggested as a model for England and France to use in bringing information to law enforcement officers.

America's First Economic Need To Combat Depression—Peterson

While the nation's first economic need is to combat depression, the long-term problem remains chronic inflation. University of Nebraska economist Wallace Peterson said.

"Our first need is turn the economy around and get unemployment down," Peterson wrote in a 17-page public lecture delivered at Hastings College.

"For that there is no alternative but to cut taxes and expand the money supply, hoping that there is now enough slack in the economy so that the required stimulus won't bring an immediate resumption of uncontrolled inflation.

"But, in the long view, inflation remains our most serious economic and social problem."

Peterson pointed to a number of long-term problems which must be resolved:

—The overvalued economy in which "public and private aspirations and expectations for material gain continuously outrun our real capability."

—Concentrated economic power in the private sector which has grown "almost without limit," creating "a condition which, in combination with an indefensible maldistribution of income and wealth, is a sure-fire recipe for inflation."

—Government policies, including "unhealthy features" of the federal tax system, "lavish" military spending and "an array of anticompetitive practices."

There has been "no significant change since World War II in income distribution in the United States," Peterson said.

The poorest 20% of families still get about 4% of money incomes, while the wealthiest 20% get 43% of the total.

Government, Peterson said, has fostered "a gradual tilt" of the tax system toward taxes which are both regressive and inflation-prone, including taxes on payrolls, such as the Social Security tax.

Taxes on payrolls, sales and corporate incomes are all passed on to the consumer, and are inflationary, he said.

Military spending, he noted, has "absorbed a disproportionate share of the economy's technological resources."

And government's regulations and practices which restrict competition "hamstring the efficient operation of the market economy," he said.

The American economy, Peterson said, is in "its most serious difficulty since the Great Depression of the 1930s."

While the February unemployment rate, including discouraged workers who have given up trying to find jobs and those new on a shortened work week, is in excess of 10%.

"Clearly we are in a depression, the first since the dust bowl, soup kitchens and bread lines of the 1930s," he said.

Blair Receives Investment Post

Gov. J. James Exon Monday appointed Charles Blair of Hastings to the Nebraska Investment Council.

He will fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Bill Riley, who was appointed director of banking.

Bryan Therapist Is Elected Head Of MS Chapter

A physical therapist at Bryan Memorial Hospital, Larry Bartels, was elected chairman of the Lincoln Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society at the annual meeting.

Dr. Harlo McKinty, a dental instructor at the University of Nebraska Dental College, is the new vice chairman. Dwain Carlson of First National Bank of Lincoln, treasurer, and Norma Stoehr, executive secretary.

The Lincoln chapter took in $29,336 in 1974.

It's An Honor(?) For Norfolk

New York (UPI) — Esquire magazine Monday named Norfolk Junior High School as the first of several American landmarks to be featured in the magazine's monthly bicentennial series.

Norfolk Junior High, once Norfolk Senior High, premiered the series in Esquire's April issue.

The educational facility was once attended by entertainer Johnny Carson, who moved to Nebraska from Iowa as a youngster.

Esquire noted it was the senior high school where "young Carson's character was influenced by many hours spent studying English and algebra, acting with the Thespians and cheering the Norfolk Panthers on to victory as a member of the Minutemen pep club."

Summer vacation in the Norfolk area, Esquire said, provided Carson with "invaluable training for the rigors of hosting the Tonight Show."

The magazine went on to say the Norfolk Junior High School building, "towering over the Great Plains, graces the heart of the country."

Meyer To Keep Writing Memorandum On Courts

By GERRY SWITZER
 Star Staff Writer

"As long as they read it and use it, I'll continue" former Nebraska Atty. Gen. Clarence Meyer said about the weekly memorandum on recent court opinions which he prepares for all law enforcement agencies in the state.

At no charge to the state, Meyer is still putting out the memorandum which has won wide acclaim.

Meyer told his successor, Paul Douglas, he would continue writing the memorandum until Douglas has an opportunity to get the office organized after the legislative session.

Douglas said he appreciates Meyer's willingness to continue his responsibility on a temporary basis, and he plans to continue the service which began in 1964.

Meyer abstracts the cases of interest to law enforcement for law enforcement rather than for lawyers.

He says law enforcement officers are not necessarily interested in the various legal points involved in a case but they are interested in the effect court rulings have on actual law enforcement.

The memorandum, which is part of the weekly "Bulletin" of the State Patrol, is sent to all law enforcement officers in Nebraska and to at least the head of the state patrol in practically every other state.

Meyer said the City of Las Vegas wanted to reprint it for its people and the University of Louisville uses it for law students.

The International Association of Chiefs of Police took an entire set of the memoranda to a meeting in London and it was suggested as a model for England and France to use in bringing information to law enforcement officers.

America's First Economic Need To Combat Depression—Peterson

While the nation's first economic need is to combat depression, the long-term problem remains chronic inflation, University of Nebraska economist Wallace Peterson said.

"Our first need is turn the economy around and get unemployment down," Peterson wrote in a 17-page public lecture delivered at Hastings College.

"For that there is no alternative but to cut taxes and expand the money supply, hoping that there is now enough slack in the economy so that the required stimulus won't bring an immediate resumption of uncontrolled inflation."

"But, in the longer view, inflation remains our most serious economic and social problem."

Peterson pointed to a number of long-term problems which must be resolved:

—The overblown economy in which "public and private aspirations and expectations for material gain continuously outrun our real capability."

—Concentrated economic power in the private sector which has grown "almost without limit," creating "a condition which, in combination with an indefensible maldistribution of income and wealth, is a sure-fire recipe for inflation."

—Government policies, including "unhealthy features" of the federal tax system, "lavish" military spending and "an array of anticompetitive practices."

There has been "no significant change since World War II in income distribution in the United States," Peterson said.

The poorest 20% of families still get about 4% of money incomes, while the wealthiest 20% get 43% of the total.

Government, Peterson said, has fostered "a gradual tilt" of the tax system toward taxes which are both regressive and inflation-prone, including taxes on payrolls, such as the Social Security tax.

Taxes on payrolls, sales and corporate incomes are all passed on to the consumer, and are inflationary, he said.

Military spending, he noted, has "absorbed a disproportionate share of the economy's technological resources."

And government's regulations and practices which restrict competition "hamstring the efficient operation of the market economy," he said.

The American economy, Peterson said, is in "its most serious difficulty since the Great Depression of the 1930s."

While the February unemployment rate, including discouraged workers who have given up trying to find jobs and those now on a shortened work week, is in excess of 10%.

"Clearly we are in a depression, the first since the dust bowl, soup kitchens and bread lines of the 1930s," he said.

State Rewarded For Road Safety

Gov. J. James Exon said Monday Nebraska has received a $435,000 highway safety grant from the federal government because Nebraska was one of 24 states "that have made the most significant progress in reducing their annual rate of highway fatalities."

John L. Sullivan, highway safety director, said the money would be used for law enforcement, emergency medical services and local traffic safety projects.

Hereford Show Returns To Fair

The return of the National Register of Merit Hereford Show to the Nebraska State Fair in 1975 will add nearly $6,000 to premium offerings for that breed, according to State Fair manager Henry Brandt.

Brandt announced the premium offering in conjunction with the release of revised premiums for 4-H, FFA and certain livestock classes approved by the State Fair Board.

Also adjusted by board action were stall fees in all open livestock classes. The first increases in eight years reflect both higher premiums and advancing operational expenses, according to Fair Board president Don Clement.

The total contribution to 4-H premiums was set at $19,500, compared with the 1974 figure of $17,500. The FFA Department will receive $9,400, an increase from last year's $8,400.

Stall fees for all open horse classes were increased from $4 to $5, with entry and other fees remaining at previous levels. Fees for beef and dairy cattle were increased from $3.25 to $5. Dairy cattle premiums were increased from $1,200, to a total of $14,450 for the six breeds.

Stall fees for swine were increased from $3.25 to $5 per pen, and for sheep, from $2.50 to $5.

The Fair Board will allocate $1,000 in premium money for Arabian horses and $300 for Limousine cattle. Both figures will be matched in equal amounts by the national organizations for those breeds, following board policy on breed competition. Arabians and Limousines have both been approved for class judging at the 1975 fair for the first time.

The Fair Board will put up $5,000 in premium money for the National Register of Merit Hereford Show, to be matched with a like amount from the American Hereford Association. The national show was last held in conjunction with the Nebraska State Fair in 1972.

Polled Herefords will be eligible for Nebraska premiums of $800, bringing the total for all beef classes to $30,156.

In other action, the State Fair Board awarded contracts for services to the State Fair and Fairgrounds Race meet as follows: Eastern Ambulance, ambulance service; Carter's Sound Service, sound; Midwest Refuse Service, trash pickup; Overland Armored Express, armored car service; Consolidated Security Systems, security; and Bailey Lewis & Associates, advertising and public relations.

Time For Shots For Youngsters

Now is the time to have children under age 12 immunized before they enter school in the fall, according to William R. Pack of the Nebraska Department of Health.

Shots required are for measles (red or rubella), rubella (three-day measles), polio, diphtheria-pertussis (whooping cough)-tetanus or DPT.

Mrs. Helen E. Weber, Lincoln Public Schools health services supervisor, said children who have previously been immunized against polio and DPT might require booster shots.

Although all children under 12 must be immunized, under a 1973 Nebraska law, Mrs. Weber emphasized that parents of children who will enter kindergarten in the fall should arrange for immunizations soon.

She encouraged parents to contact their family physicians for pre-school immunizations. The State Health Department, Pack said, can furnish any of the vaccines free if the physician requests it, and parents then must pay only the physician's administrative fees for giving the shots.

The Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Department also gives the required immunizations for free.

Pack said that for the first time, Nebraska's school entrance immunization level is 90% or better for rubella, measles, polio and DPT. However, he noted that schools "are still in danger of measles and rubella outbreaks."

In Omaha, outbreaks of measles began in a school with reported immunization levels of 90% or higher, as well as in Fremont and Albion schools. Thus, Pack stressed that all children be immunized.

Nebraska law requires that every child be immunized unless parents indicate in writing they do not wish it.

Based on school entrance immunization level reports of kindergarten children as of last Dec. 20, Pack said the Lincoln Public Schools kindergarten enrollment of 2,100 was 92.8% immunized against rubella, 93.9% against measles and 92.5% against polio.

NAPE Seeking Largest State Labor Vote Ever

The Nebraska Association of Public Employer (NAPE) is seeking the largest labor representation election in the history of Nebraska state government.

NAPE Monday asked the State Court of Industrial Relations for election to determine whether it can represent 2,000 State Department of Roads employees in contract negotiations.

In addition, Roger Schulz, NAPE's executive secretary, told reporters the organization also has filed for another election first — a representation election for supervisory personnel.

NAPE also asked the court for an election among 40 supervisors at the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, where NAPE already has a bargaining unit representing 248 employees.

NAPE also asked the court for an election among 40 supervisors at the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, where NAPE already has a bargaining unit representing 248 employees.

NAPE is likely to be challenged by the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) for the right to represent Roads Department employees.

AFSCME presently has a petition pending before the court seeking an election among 1,000 Roads Department employees, chiefly maintenance workers.

Schulz said NAPE chose the larger bargaining unit to encompass architects, auditors and clerical personnel in addition to maintenance workers, since all are under the state pay plan.

He said NAPE is confident it would beat AFSCME in an election at the Roads Department.

Schulz said he expects Roads Department management will object to the size of the bargaining unit.

Instead of presenting authorization cards to the court, Schulz said NAPE filed cards from employees requesting payroll deductions for union dues.

Under state law, 30% of the people in the proposed bargaining unit must sign cards requesting an election. Schulz said the fact that NAPE could meet this requirement with existing dues-paying members indicated the organization's strength.

Panel Receives Protests To Hike In LT&T Rates

"We live on Social Security payments, so if the (telephone) rates are raised again we will be compelled to have our telephone removed."

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Cook of Cook made those comments in a letter sent to the Nebraska Public Service Commission protesting the Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph Co. request for a 10-15% rate hike.

The Cooks' letter was one of roughly 25 protests the commission has received to LT&T's request. Many of the protests from individuals complained of service.

Mrs. Barbara Nielsen of York wrote: "If an increase in rates is necessary and used to purchase new equipment then a rate hike is justified."

"But in the past we've had increases with no improvement in service," she said.

Other protests were received from the Village of Greenwood, Dahlsten Truck Lines, the Clay Center Community Club, the City of Plattsmouth, the Village of Guide Rock, Stromsburg, Clay Center and Edgar.

Herb Sherdon, commission communications chief, said a hearing date on LT&T's request has not been set.

LT&T is seeking a $5 million increase in revenue, $2.8 million of which would be net profit.

Mrs. Helen E. Weber, Lincoln Public Schools health services supervisor, said children who have previously been immunized against polio and DPT might require booster shots.

Although all children under 12 must be immunized, under a 1973 Nebraska law, Mrs. Weber emphasized that parents of children who will enter kindergarten in the fall should arrange for immunizations soon.

She encouraged parents to contact their family physicians for pre-school immunizations. The State Health Department, Pack said, can furnish any of the vaccines free if the physician requests it, and parents then must pay only the physician's administrative fees for giving the shots.

The Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Department also gives the required immunizations for free.

Pack said that for the first time, Nebraska's school entrance immunization level is 90% or better for rubella, measles, polio and DPT. However, he noted that schools "are still in danger of measles and rubella outbreaks."

In Omaha, outbreaks of measles began in a school with reported immunization levels of 90% or higher, as well as in Fremont and Albion schools. Thus, Pack stressed that all children be immunized.

Nebraska law requires that every child be immunized unless parents indicate in writing they do not wish it.

Based on school entrance immunization level reports of kindergarten children as of last Dec. 20, Pack said the Lincoln Public Schools kindergarten enrollment of 2,100 was 92.8% immunized against rubella, 93.9% against measles and 92.5% against polio.

NAPE Seeking Largest State Labor Vote Ever

The Nebraska Association of Public Employer (NAPE) is seeking the largest labor representation election in the history of Nebraska state government.

NAPE Monday asked the State Court of Industrial Relations for election to determine whether it can represent 2,000 State Department of Roads employees in contract negotiations.

In addition, Roger Schulz, NAPE's executive secretary, told reporters the organization also has filed for another election first — a representation election for supervisory personnel.

NAPE also asked the court for an election among 40 supervisors at the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, where NAPE already has a bargaining unit representing 248 employees.

NAPE also asked the court for an election among 40 supervisors at the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, where NAPE already has a bargaining unit representing 248 employees.

NAPE is likely to be challenged by the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) for the right to represent Roads Department employees.

AFSCME presently has a petition pending before the court seeking an election among 1,000 Roads Department employees, chiefly maintenance workers.

Schulz said NAPE chose the larger bargaining unit to encompass architects, auditors and clerical personnel in addition to maintenance workers, since all are under the state pay plan.

He said NAPE is confident it would beat AFSCME in an election at the Roads Department.

Schulz said he expects Roads Department management will object to the size of the bargaining unit.

Instead of presenting authorization cards to the court, Schulz said NAPE filed cards from employees requesting payroll deductions for union dues.

Under state law, 30% of the people in the proposed bargaining unit must sign cards requesting an election. Schulz said the fact that NAPE could meet this requirement with existing dues-paying members indicated the organization's strength.

Panel Receives Protests To Hike In LT&T Rates

"We live on Social Security payments, so if the (telephone) rates are raised again we will be compelled to have our telephone removed."

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Cook of Cook made those comments in a letter sent to the Nebraska Public Service Commission protesting the Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph Co. request for a 10-15% rate hike.

The Cooks' letter was one of roughly 25 protests the commission has received to LT&T's request. Many of the protests from individuals complained of service.

Mrs. Barbara Nielsen of York wrote: "If an increase in rates is necessary and used to purchase new equipment then a rate hike is justified.

"But in the past we've had increases with no improvement in service," she said.

Other protests were received from the Village of Greenwood, Dahlsten Truck Lines, the Clay Center Community Club, the City of Plattsmouth, the Village of Guide Rock, Stromsburg, Clay Center and Edgar.

Herb Sherdon, commission communications chief, said a hearing date on LT&T's request has not been set.

Older Women In Need Of Financial Advice

New York — Perhaps the most neglected group of people in this country, as far as financial advice is concerned, is the troubled sisterhood of older women. Those who have husbands to take care of them may still feel relatively secure — but the mortality tables tell us that sooner or later the majority of women are apt to be on their own.

When that happens they may be responsible not only for their own welfare but for that of their mothers. A 50-year-old today may even have a grandmother still living.

Since widows and retirees rely mainly on fixed incomes, our virulent inflation has severely undermined the economic standing of many widows and retirees. Yet most lack the financial knowledge to shore up their positions.

Granted, when assets are limited there's generally little to be done. Nevertheless, a good financial counselor would be able to help a widow figure out how much of the capital she could afford to use to supplement her income. Furthermore, a lot of money sits around in 5% savings accounts. With good management, that money might have earned 8 or 9% last year. (Those opportunities are gone for a while, but they may be back.)

Foresight Still Best

Obviously, nothing can substitute for foresight. While the husband is still alive, a middle-aged couple should draw up a list of what they'll have in the retirement years—including Social Security, pension, income from savings and investments, rents, annuities, life insurance and so forth. Get estimates on what you'll have in the future from your insurance agent, the employee benefits section of your company, and the Social Security office.

Figure the probable income for you both, and also what the survivor would get if the breadwinner died. Set this against expected expenses. There most probably will be a gap between what you'll have and what you'll need. If you can't fill it with savings, you will have to prune living standards in later years.

Unfortunately, few families have paid much attention to this kind of planning. As a result, widows today typically have little financial knowledge and are often frustrated in their attempts to gain it.

The painful fact is that unless you really have a lot of money, established financial institutions aren't much interested. A broker will sell you a bond and a banker arrange a term savings account, but neither will normally be eager to help order your finances into a rational plan. They are generally more involved in the "growth market" of young people, rather than the more limited incomes of the old.

Counseling Firms

Various retirement counseling firms have sprung up here and there, but professionals in the field say most are too new to have much of a record. If there's one in your community, however, you might at least check to see what it offers and — more importantly — the training of the person giving the advice. Associations of retired people offer general advice (usually along with insurance). You also might find a financial planning course at a junior college or adult education center.

A few of the nation's banks have sponsored seminars for women, which might include a special panel on retirement problems. This is certainly a step in the right direction. But as we found by attending such a conference in Philadelphia recently, many participants left the hall feeling more confused than ever. "I just don't know where to start," was a typical comment. "There are so many things I don't know." Clearly, some follow-up is needed.

Most older women keep a goodly portion of their money in banks or savings and loan associations. Maybe it's time for progressive, customer-oriented banks and S & Ls to set up senior citizens centers, where older depositors could get information that would help them out.

Not just information on bank services, but booklets on Medicare, Social Security, cash planning — even bonds and government securities. If any bank has already established such a center, I'd certainly like to know about it.

Decline Is Worst Of Year

New York (AP) — News of the breakdown of U.S. mediation efforts in the Middle East touched off an early burst of selling that left the stock market with its worst decline of the year Monday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 20.10 in the first half hour, wound up with a 19.63 loss at 743.43.

It was the biggest setback for the Dow since it fell 22.69 last Nov. 18 amid worries over the recession and a nationwide coal strike. The average's largest previous decline in 1975 was a 17.76 drop in profit taking Feb. 25.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index tumbled 1.97 to 81.42, and the New York Stock Exchange composite index of more than 1,500 common issues gave up 1.04 to 43.22.

Losers help a lopsided 1,416-to-167 edge over gainers among the 1,823 issues traded on the NYSE.

Big Board volume, active in the early selloff, slackened as the market leveled off. The final total was 17.81 million shares — with 6.71 million coming in the first hour-compared with 15.94 million on Friday.

Robert Stovall at Reynolds Securities pointed to "emotional selling" in the early going on the weekend news that Secretary of State Henry Kissinger had ended his efforts as a go-between with Israel and Egypt without success in achieving a settlement.

Brokers noted that the new uncertainty over the Middle East outlook came atop deteriorating government positions in Cambodia and South Vietnam.

An added negative, they said, was concern that interest rates might be headed into an up-trend, after several months of decline, because of heavy borrowing demand on the bond market.

It had appeared that the market was becoming increasingly vulnerable to a pullback last week, when it spent four straight days in a gradual but virtually steady decline.

The selling swept into virtually every major stock group. All 30 of the Dow industrials lost ground, as did all of the 20 most active issues on the NYSE.

National Semiconductor, the day's most active issue, fell 2 1/2 to 27 1/2 on turnover of 251,100 shares. The stock has had a sharp runup from as low as 9 1/4 earlier this year.

Elsewhere in the often volatile glamor sector, Polaroid was down 1 1/4 at 22 1/2; Avon Products lost 1 1/4 to 36; Walt Disney Productions fell 1 1/4 to 41 1/2, and IBM was off 1/2 at 204 1/2.

The lone exception to the trend was the gold mining group, which posted some rational gains. Analysts said it appeared some investors were turning to the stocks as a haven from the uncertainties in the international outlook.

Forecast for Tuesday

They look like their signs. Charles Bronson, Scorpio, Mae West, Leo, Robert Brannings, Gemini, Merv Griffin, Cancer, Mike Douglas, Leo, Johnny Carson, Libra, Regis Philbin, Virgo and Joe Louis, Taurus. How do you compare to your sign?

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Light touch is best—don't attempt to force issues. Diplomacy wins—especially when dealing with Taurus. Libra individuals. Keep those resolutions concerned with work, diet and health. Be sure you are being correctly quoted.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Glean of truth shines in connection with emotional response. Member of opposite sex is involved. Love and your feelings figure prominently. Strive to see in realistic manner. If mature, you win. Otherwise, you pay a dear price. The choice is yours. Don't expect perfection!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Contracts, legalities and the like are featured. Past actions pay dividends—or cause you to pay through the nose. If you now is to be practical, to build on solid base and to get "okay" from one in authority. You can turn apparent setback to your advantage.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Finish project—improve current relationships. See beyond the immediate. Exchange ideas. Make amends for recent misunderstandings which involved close neighbor or relative. Aries, Libras are in picture. Find better means of communicating, distributing, advertising.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You get new deal, proverbial second chance. Money picture brightens, you know what to do for definite gain. Another Leo—and an Aquarian—could be involved. Original approach is best—and proves profitable. Keep the faith!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Trusthunch. Your intuitive abilities are on target. Study Leo message. Emphasize originality, independence. Insist on preserving your rights. Gain is shown through written word. Special study is beneficial.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Diversity is featured. Social activity brings you in contact with "world traveler." Your intellectual curiosity is active. Some questions are answered, others are better left unasked. Get behind the scenes. Visit one confined to home, hospital.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Don't mix money and friendship. Be conservative, prudent where assets and concerned. Impulsive associate is merely "letting off steam." Know it and don't compound error. Revisions are necessary. Check between the lines.

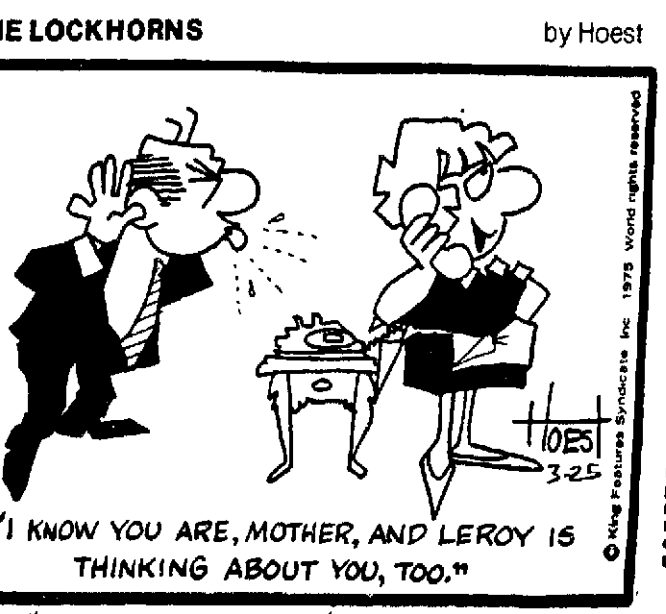

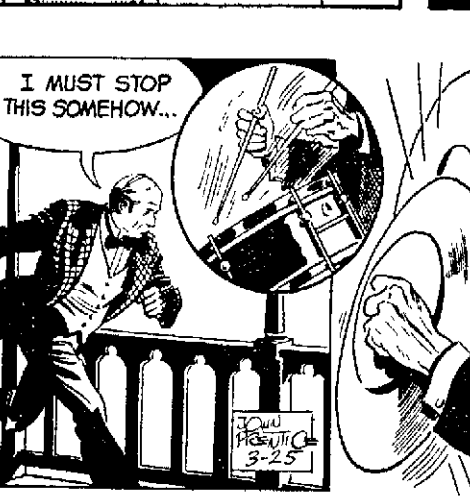

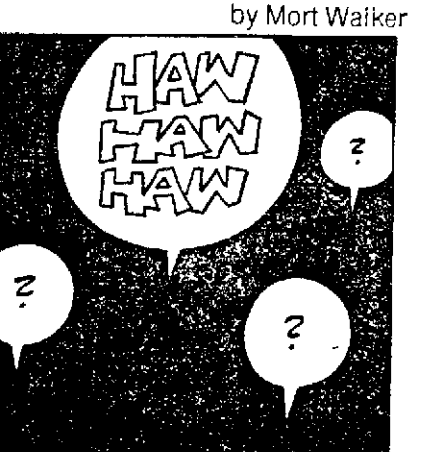

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your ability to ask and analyze is put to test. Your love of travel, lectures and study is highlighted. Another Sagittarian, a Virgo and a Gemini—figure in picture. Romance could dominate. Aura of glamor permeates what is usually a routine procedure.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Those who mean most to you may seem out of touch at a distance. Bide your time. Avoid hasty judgment. Family member will make concession. Be gracious. A chance occurs to make up for lost time, past mistakes.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Avoid making demands. You have support from persons who do not yet want to make public their intentions. Some of your desires are fulfilled, yet you could feel unfulfilled. That situation is to be corrected—shortly.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Lie low. Wait and observe. Bediscreet Play cards close to chest. Avoid naming names. Someone is waiting to get you in legal tangle. You have ally in high places. The individual is a silent partner. Don't lose patience. Voice will eventually be heard.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are studious, spiritual, sensitive and a fighter when the cause is sufficient. Pisces. Virgo persons play important roles in your life. March and December are indicated as your outstanding months in 1975. You have an innate understanding of theater—and people respond to you, to your emotions, desires and beliefs. Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Finish project — improve current relationships. See beyond the immediate. Exchange ideas. Make amends for recent misunderstanding which involved close neighbor or relative. Aries, Libra persons are in picture. Find better means of communicating, distributing, advertising.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You get new deal, proverbial second chance. Money picture brightens; you know what to do for definite gain. Another Leo — and an Aquarian — could be involved. Original approach is best — and proves profitable. Keep the faith!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Trust hunch. Your intuitive abilities are on target. Study Leo message. Emphasize originality, independence. Insist on preserving your rights. Gain is shown through written word. Special study is beneficial.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Diversity is featured. Social activity brings you in contact with "world traveler." Your intellectual curiosity is active. Some questions are answered, others are better left unasked. Get behind the scenes. Visit one confined to home, hospital.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Don't mix money and friendship. Be conservative, prudent where assets are concerned. Impulsive associate is merely "letting off steam." Know it and don't compound error. Revisions are necessary. Check between the lines.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your ability to ask and analyze is put to test. Your love of travel, lectures and study is highlighted. Another Sagittarian, a Virgo and a Gemini — figure in picture. Romance could dominate. Aura of glamor permeates what is usually a routine procedure.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Those who mean most to you may seem out of touch, at a distance. Bide your time. Your love of travel, lectures and study is highlighted. Another Sagittarian, a Virgo and a Gemini — figure in picture. Romance could dominate. Aura of glamor permeates what is usually a routine procedure.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Avoid making demands. You have support from persons who do not yet want to make public their intentions. Some of your desires are fulfilled, yet you could feel unfulfilled. That situation is to be corrected — shortly.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Lie low. Wait and observe. Be discreet. Play cards close to chest. Avoid naming names. Someone is waiting to get you in legal tangle. You have ally in high places. The individual is a silent partner. Don't lose patience. Voice will eventually be heard.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are studious, spiritual, sensitive and a fighter when the cause is sufficient. Pisces, Virgo persons play important roles in your life. March and December are indicated as your outstanding months in 1975. You have an innate understanding of theater — and people respond to you, to your emotions, desires and beliefs. 2 People Charged In Omaha Killings

Omaha (AP) — Omaha police and the Douglas County attorney's office continued their probe into three weekend murders Monday.

In two cases, suspects were taken into custody, but no arrest has been made in the third death, according to police.

Being held in lieu of $50,000 bond was Kenneth Sims, 30, of Omaha. Sims was formally charged with second-degree murder Monday in connection with the Saturday night stabbing death of Chauncey Hodges, 50, also of Omaha.

Sims, who was paroled from the Nebraska Penal Complex late last month, pleaded innocent, according to Assistant Douglas County Atty. Thomas Brown.

Brown said the stabbing occurred in a bar. He quoted Sims as saying he just patted Hodges on the back. Brown said at least one witness told investigators Sims had a knife, but several other witnesses confirmed Sims' story.

Also charged with second-degree murder Monday was DeLores Hartfield, 39, also of Omaha.

She was released on a $10,000 recognizance bond after being charged in connection with the shooting death of another Omaha, John Liseby, 42.

The incident occurred at the Hilltop Delivery Service early Sunday. Witnesses said a woman, armed with a pistol, entered the building and began firing.

The witnesses said she jumped into a restroom to avoid being hit, and when she emerged, Liseby lay dead on the floor. The woman fled in a car.

Police said Liseby died of a head wound.

Early Sunday afternoon the Hartfield woman, accompanied by an attorney, turned herself in.

The Douglas County attorney's office said a preliminary hearing would be April 1 for Sims and about April 17 for Miss Hartfield.

Early Monday morning, acting on a tip from an anonymous caller, police found the partially sun covered body of Archie Lee Turnbaugh Jr., 20, of Omaha.

Turbough's body was found several blocks from his residence. He was apparently killed by a bullet wound to the head.

Police theorized that Turnbaugh may have been shot near his home and dumped from a car. They quoted neighbors as saying they heard a shot and a car leaving the area in a hurry.

No developments in the Turnbaugh case were reported late Monday.

Traffic Controller Apparently Got Planes Mixed Up; 16 Dead

Seattle (AP) — A recording played Monday indicated that radio orders transmitted moments before an Air Force plane with 16 men — including a Nebraskan — aboard plunged into a mountain apparently came from an air traffic controller who thought he had given those instructions to another aircraft.

Federal Aviation Administration officials played for reporters Monday the dramatic tape of the communication between the controller for the FAA's Seattle region and the Air Force C141 Starlifter.

The tape indicated the controller meant his descent order for a Navy plane approaching the Whidbey Island Naval Air Station.

Into Mountainside The Air Force plane, following the controller's apparently erroneous instructions, descended from 10,000 to 5,000 feet and smashed into the side of the 7,743-foot-high Mt. Constance in the Olympic Range.

Regional FFA Administrator Chris Walk said the controller, stationed at the FAA's Northwest Control Center, has been taken off duty. Walk said the man is "obviously distressed and concerned," and under a doctor's care.

The flight was bound for McChord AFB near Tacoma from Yakota Air Base in Japan. Ten Air Force crewmen and six Navy passengers were killed when the plane slammed into the mountain late Thursday.

Among those aboard was a crew member from Nebraska,

A.I.C. Robert D. Gaskin, 21, of Fremont.

The tape indicates that when the transport was handed to Seattle controllers at 10:45 p.m. PDT, the pilot told controllers he was descending to 15,000 feet. At 10:52, the controller cleared the jet to 10,000 feet and less than a minute later, cleared the inbound Navy jet to the same 10,000-foot level.

At 10:56.16, the Air Force jet told the controller: "And Seattle 40641 (the Air Force jet) is level at 10." At 10:56.19, the Seattle controller, identified as SEA-D3, told the Air Force jet,

Kearney Man Struck By Car, Killed Instantly

Kearney (AP)—An elderly Kearney man was struck by a car and killed instantly Monday evening as he walked across Highway 30 on his return from a grocery store.

Carl Hanner, 76, was struck by a car driven by Larry Paden, 21, of Kearney. The incident occurred about three blocks east of the downtown area.

An autopsy was ordered. No charges were filed but authorities are investigating.

Hanner is the first pedestrian to be killed in more than five years in Kearney which has been cited on two occasions for pedestrian safety.

The 1975 Nebraska highway fatality toll stands at 53 compared with 55 on March 25 of last year.

"40641 maintain five thousand." At 10:56.25, the Air Force jet acknowledged, "Five thousand — 40641 is out of 10," and it headed for 5,000 feet.

Meant For Navy Plane The FAA said the instruction to maintain 5,000 feet was meant for the Navy plane.

At 10:58 p.m., the Navy jet radioed it was still at 10,000 feet. The controller replied, "28332 (the flight designation) level at five?"

"Negative, level one-zero-thousand," the Navy jet replied. The controller then cleared it to 5,000 feet.

At 11:00 a controller who was to take over the transport told the first controller, "Yeah, this is Two Where is MAC 40641?"

"Aw, shoot," D3 said. "I forgot to ship him to you. Stand by." "Where is he, though?" said D2.

The first controller then tried nine times over about two minutes to make contact with the ill-fated jet. The last was at 11:04.

Walk said at this point, the center realized something was wrong and took the controller off duty to try to determine what had happened.

'Straight' Surges High In Regional Records

McCook (AP) — An all-Nebraska jazz-rock group is on the brink of making it big in the music business.

The group is called "Straight" and has surged high on regional record lists with a single called "Save Your Breath."

Scott Best of McCook, the bass player, said the group is negotiating for the release of an album which members have tentatively titled "Lost In Nebraska."

Other members of the group are Ric Teller of Hastings, Dave Buchhold of Ayr, Tom Ensley, Dennis Stearns and Lynn Elgett of Grand Island, and Randy Nygaard, Arthur McCann and Tim Quance of Bellevue.

Best said he received encouragement from Robert Lamb, a member of the musical group, "Chicago," while on a visit to the Illinois city several years ago.

The Nebraska group later went to California where they cut their first single release on the Encore label.

"This is our own label," Best said. That puts the group in a better bargaining position with the major labels, Best explained.

The group has appeared in clubs but now is seeking a regional concert tour with the possibility of a national tour of college campuses to follow.

No One Shows For Health Dept. Public Hearing

No one showed up Monday to comment on the State Health Department's proposed rules for community service affecting hospitals and nursing homes.

The rules require any health facility receiving federal funds to accept third party payments, such as Medicare and Medicaid, for health services so long as a reasonable payment is made.

A spokesman for the department said most health facilities accept such payments; he said it is no problem in Nebraska, as it is in other states.

2 People Charged In Omaha Killings

Omaha (AP) — Omaha police and the Douglas County attorney's office continued their probe into three weekend murders Monday.

In two cases, suspects were taken into custody, but no arrest has been made in the third death, according to police.

Being held in lieu of $50,000 bond was Kenneth Sims, 30, of Omaha. Sims was formally charged with second-degree murder Monday in connection with the Saturday night stabbing death of Chauncey Hodges, 50, also of Omaha.

Sims, who was paroled from the Nebraska Penal Complex late last month, pleaded innocent, according to Assistant Douglas County Atty. Thomas Brown.

Brown said the stabbing occurred in a bar. He quoted Sims as saying he just patted Hodges on the back. Brown said at least one witness told investigators Sims had a knife, but several other witnesses confirmed Sims' story.

Also charged with second-degree murder Monday was Debra Hartfield, 39, also of Omaha.

She was released on a $10,000 recognizance bond after being charged in connection with the shooting death of another Omaha, John Liseby, 42.

The incident occurred at the Hilltop Delivery Service early Sunday. Witnesses said a woman, armed with a pistol, entered the building and began firing.

The witnesses said she jumped into a restroom to avoid being hit, and when she emerged, Liseby lay dead on the floor. The woman fled in a car.

Police said a Liseby died of a head wound.

Early Sunday afternoon the Hartfield woman, accompanied by an attorney, turned herself in.

The Douglas County attorney's office said a preliminary hearing would be April 1 for Sims and about April 17 for Miss Hartfield.

Early Monday morning, acting on a tip from an anonymous caller, police found the partially sun covered body of Archie Lee Turnbaugh Jr., 20, of Omaha.

Turbaugh's body was found several blocks from his residence. He was apparently killed by a bullet wound to the head.

Police theorized that Turnbaugh may have been shot near his home and dumped from a car. They quoted neighbors as saying they heard a shot and a car leaving the area in a hurry.

No developments in the Turnbaugh case were reported late Monday.

'Straight' Surges High In Regional Records

McCook (AP) — Group is all-Nebraska jazz-rock on the brink of making it big in the music business.

The group is called "Straight" and has surged high on regional record lists with a single called "Save Your Breath."

Scott Best of McCook, the bass player, said the group is negotiating for the release of an album which members have tentatively titled "Lost In Nebraska."

Other members of the group are Ric Teller of Hastings; Dave Buchhold of Ayer; Tom Ensley, Dennis Stearns and Lynn Elgert of Grand Island, and Randy Nygaard, Arthur McCann and Tim Quance of Bellevue.

Best said he received encouragement from Robert Lamb, a member of the musical group, "Chicago," while on a visit to the Illinois city several years ago.

The Nebraska group later went to California where they cut their first single release on the Encore label.

"This is our own label," Best said. That puts the group in a better bargaining position with the major labels, Best explained.

The group has appeared in clubs but now is seeking a regional concert tour with the possibility of a national tour of college campuses to follow.

No One Shows For Health Dept. Public Hearing

No one showed up Monday to comment on the State Health Department's proposed rules for community service affecting hospitals and nursing homes.

The rules require any health facility receiving federal funds to accept third party payments, such as Medicare and Medicaid, for health services so long as a reasonable payment is made.

A spokesman for the department said most health facilities accept such payments; he said it is no problem in Nebraska, as it is in other states.

Traffic Controller Apparently Got Planes Mixed Up; 16 Dead

Seattle (AP) — A recording played Monday indicated that radio orders transmitted moments before an Air Force plane with 16 men — including a Nebraskan — aboard plunged into a mountain apparently came from an air traffic controller who thought he had given those instructions to another aircraft.

Federal Aviation Administration officials played for reporters Monday the dramatic tape of the communication between the controller for the FAA's Seattle region and the Air Force C141 Starlifter.

The tape indicated the controller meant his descent order for the Navy plane approaching the Whidbey Island Naval Air Station.

Into Mountainside
The Air Force plane, following the controller's apparently erroneous instructions, descended from 10,000 to 5,000 feet and slammed into the side of the 7,743-foot-high Mt. Constance in the Olympic Range.

Regional FFA Administrator Chris Walk said the controller, stationed at the FAA's Northwest Control Center, has been taken off duty. Walk said the man is "obviously distressed and concerned," and under a doctor's care.

The flight was bound for McChord AFB near Tacoma from Yakota Air Base in Japan. Ten Air Force crewmen and six Navy passengers were killed when the plane slammed into the mountain late Thursday.

Among those aboard was a crew member from Nebraska,

A.I.C. Robert D. Gaskin, 21, of Fremont.

The tape indicates that when the transport was handed to Seattle controllers at 10:45 p.m. PDT, the pilot told controllers he was descending to 15,000 feet. At 10:52, the controller cleared the jet to 10,000 feet and less than a minute later, cleared the inbound Navy jet to the same 10,000-foot level.

At 10:56, the Air Force jet told the controller: "And Seattle 40641 (the Air Force jet) is level at 10." At 10:56:19, the Seattle controller, identified as SEA-D3, told the Air Force jet,

"Negative, level one-zero-thousand," the Navy jet replied. The controller then cleared it to 5,000 feet.

At 11:00 a controller who was to take over the transport told the first controller, "Yeah, this is Two. Where is MAC 40641?"

"Aw, shoot," D3 said. "I forgot to ship him to you. Stand by."

"Where is he, though?" said D2.

The first controller then tried nine times over about two minutes to make contact with the ill-fated jet. The last was at 11:04.

Walk said at this point, the center realized something was wrong and took the controller off duty to try to determine what had happened.

Carl Hanner, 76, was struck by a car driven by Larry Paden, 21, of Kearney. The incident occurred about three blocks east of the downtown area.

An autopsy was ordered. No charges were filed but authorities are investigating.

Hanner is the first pedestrian to be killed in more than five years in Kearney which has been cited on two occasions for pedestrian safety.

The 1975 Nebraska highway fatality toll stands at 53 compared with 55 on March 25 of last year.

"40641 maintain five thousand."

At 10:56:25, the Air Force jet acknowledged, "Five thousand — 40641 is out of 10," and it headed for 5,000 feet.

Meant For Navy Plane
The FAA said the instruction to maintain 5,000 feet was meant for the Navy plane.

At 10:58 p.m., the Navy jet radioed it was still at 10,000 feet. The controller replied, "28332 (the flight designation) level at five?"

"Negative, level one-zero-thousand," the Navy jet replied. The controller then cleared it to 5,000 feet.

At 11:00 a controller who was to take over the transport told the first controller, "Yeah, this is Two. Where is MAC 40641?"

"Aw, shoot," D3 said. "I forgot to ship him to you. Stand by."

"Where is he, though?" said D2.

ADAPT Program Aims To Enrich 40 UNL Freshmen

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

A team of six University of Nebraska-Lincoln professors intends to explode the podium out from under the freshman orientation speaker who said:

"Look at the person on your left. Now, look at the person on your right." A flourish of noses obeyed. "One of you won't be here next semester." And the second won't graduate, the speaker casually predicted.

Two of the three freshmen often followed that script.

Those lines are in for a major rewrite, when ADAPT premieres this fall, designed for 40 select freshmen. ADAPT is an acronym for an individualized program, "Accent on Developing Abstract Processes of Thought."

UNL is now accepting applications for the program that could have nationwide use, said ADAPT Director Robert G. Fuller, physics professor.

"I see one of the problems in higher education, simply stated, as a mismatch between the intellectual experiences of students, and the intellectual demands of college teachers," Dr. Fuller said.

"We think this may account for a large percentage of the dropouts."

He said "one of the things college really leans on is an abstract rather than a concrete experience." Thus ADAPT will focus on the students' ability to develop sound reasoning skills, since many freshmen experience difficulty in meeting their own objectives in university work, and are often unsure of their own career plans and potential.

Fuller will coordinate the overall program and instruction, in which ADAPT freshmen will get special courses and intense faculty attention. He said that should prepare them to "deal easily with the rest of the demands of the college programs" beyond the freshman year.

Made possible by a $99,840 grant from the Exxon Education Foundation, ADAPT will also get $33,000 from the NU Teaching Council for workshops and materials development.

UNL will contribute about $90,000 in salaries during the two-year project, for the faculty who will be away from their regular teaching posts.

ADAPT classes will be informal and smaller than most for freshmen. Men and women who enroll will earn the normal 30 credit hours, and will explore numerous study areas and career opportunities — even if they've already selected a major field of study.

Fuller said the staff "has a very definite idea of what they think (student) intellectual growth is." Besides sharing several classes with other ADAPT students and getting to know them personally, the freshmen will deal "with situations that they really haven't thought seriously about before."

For example, instead of the teacher lecturing students on specific facts, ADAPT students will get structured experiences in which they may get results different from what they expected — whether in a lab experiment or in a social situation.

Fuller calls it a "more interactive learning situation than the usual kind of college course." Previously, integrated courses have always been offered on the basis of content: ADAPT, rather, overlaps reasoning skills. For example, students may learn that the same thinking processes apply in history and in physics.

And because "no one knows exactly how to do it" well yet, Fuller said the faculty will be learning along with the ADAPT students.

When the second-year group begins in 1976-77, he said the staff will follow up on the first ADAPT enrollees "to see how they progress in the rest of their academic program," compared to freshmen in the regular curriculum.

ADAPT credits will apply to group requirements in the Arts and Sciences College and others. Preparation for advanced courses, and a BA or BS degree, will be divided among English, math and logic, natural and social sciences.

Fuller said he hopes evaluation of ADAPT will "make a strong case" for UNL to expand it beyond 40 students.

The ADAPT project faculty are Profs. Leslie C. Duly, history; Fuller; Robert D. Narveson, English; Martin Q. Peterson, anthropology; Jerry L. Petr, economics and Melvin C. Thornton, math.

Evaluators are Profs. Carol A. Tomlinson-Keasey, educational psychology and measurements, and Vernon G. Williams, educational psychology, history and philosophy of education, and Counseling Center director.

Administrator To Head 2 North Platte Hospitals

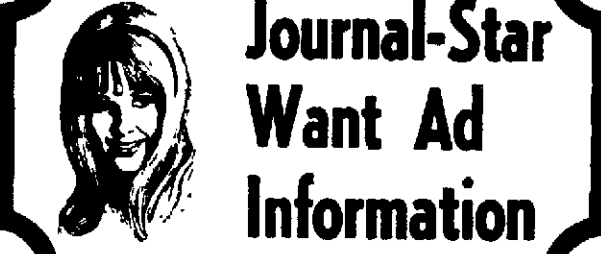

North Platte (UPI) — A single administrator has been named to handle the operation of two North Platte hospitals in the first step toward merger of the two facilities.

Paul Balerud, administrator of Memorial Hospital, was appointed administrator of North Platte Hospital, the North Platte Hospital Corp. announced.

Balerud succeeds De Witt Tidwell as administrator of North Platte Hospital. Tidwell had held the post since the hospital was acquired from the Sisters of St. Francis of Sylvania, Ohio. He will remain available for consultation during the transition period.

The merger of the two hospitals under a single administrator was the first phase of a plan suggested by Anthony J. J. Rourke Co., hospital consultants, in a 1970 report which also recommended that the two hospitals be replaced by a single new facility.

of a plan suggested by Anthony J. J. Rourke Co., hospital consultants, in a 1970 report which also recommended that the two hospitals be replaced by a single new facility.

Construction has begun on the new hospital, with completion expected in August. The two existing buildings will be converted to other uses when the new one is completed.

Balerud will be administrator of the new hospital.
